Watch Mighty Russia. Our Poor Old Dollar. All Friendly to Japan. Penguin Or Polar Bear?

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

WHATEVER our haughty American opinion of Bolshevik government, there is no doubt that Russia is the most interesting country on earth today, the most uncertain in possibilities, and one that other nations should watch closely.

Our Admiral Fiske warns Europe that Russia is aiming at war, and represents "an actual threat to overwhelm Europe."

This, says Admiral Fiske, is "not the weak threat of a weak and purposeless nation, but the threat of a strong nation, which governs a larger number of contiguous square miles than any other nation in the world."

Admiral Fiske speaks of Russia as Mirabeau did of Robespierre:

"He will succeed, for he believes all he says."

Russia believes all she says, whatever we may believe.

WILLIAM ALLEN WHITE, able newspaper observer, having visited Russia, says:

"Russia's government with its dictatorship of the proletariat, seems about as stable a government as any in the world."

He advises this country to make up its mind about "future relations with the Soviet Union."

He is impressed by "the honesty of the Soviet government," which makes for stable government, "and it is the stability of the Bolshevik regime which interests investors in Russia."

WHY THE United States refuses to recognize the government of Russia is a puzzle to many Americans. We may not like their Bolshevik government, but they do not like our capitalistic government, as they call it.

That is no reason for not selling them goods, and giving work to Americans. The Lord certainly didn't put us on earth to regulate nations across the ocean, or tell them how to run their government.

A CAT playing with a mouse, or a little child with a doll, now caressing, now spanking, are consistency itself compared with this government playing with the dollar and business conditions in the country.

When the dollar was kicked off the gold basis there must have been some plan back of that idea. What, in Heaven's name, was it? Why not let the people know?

You are told now that the dollar may be put back onto the gold basis. That may not be so easily done, with all the expenditures incurred and coming, including the government's announced willingness to finance businesses that enroll in the NRA. Whatever the plan of the government, if any, it ought to let the American people know.

Some of them still think it is their government and that they are entitled to information. Vacillation, too prolonged, too many strikes, too many theories, too much brain trust with too little decisive consecutive action might create conditions not pleasant, either for people interested in prosperity, or Democrats interested in re-election.

JAPAN'S FOREIGN minister, Koki Hirota, proposes sending "good will envoys" to the United States. The envoys would be most welcome, but so far as good will, here, is concerned, no envoys are necessary. This country has all the good will in the world for Japan, admires her energy, courage, enterprise, and wishes her all success.

The suggestion of difficulty between the United States and Japan is preposterous, as far as the United States is concerned.

We admire Japan, but Japan has nothing that this nation wants. And when a nation wants nothing that another has, trouble is not probable.

MONSIEUR HENRI BARBUSSE, distinguished French scholar and ardent pacifist, here to speak against war, objects to the preparedness that George Washington recommended, saying it paves the way for war "under various guises."

If Monsieur Barbusse could go to the cold regions where penguins used to live in millions, he would find few of them. They offered no objection when sailors knocked them on the heads. They were quite "unprepared."

Polar bears, on the other hand, are still about as numerous as ever. They let you alone if you let them alone, but if you do not let them alone, you regret it.

It is safer to be a polar bear country than a penguin country.

TOMORROW, Virginia, voting on prohibition, will be the thirty-second state to tell what it thinks of the crime wave that came with prohibition.

Postmaster General James A. Farley, as chairman of the National Democratic Committee, asks voters in Virginia to pile up "an overwhelming majority for repeal."

In connection with prohibition's early disappearance, it is interesting to learn that the price of "corn likker" has increased, many moonshiners assuring their customers that:

"Since NRA started, Negroes working for white moonshiners demand shorter hours, higher wages, and it is necessary to employ more of them."

WILLIAM GREEN, head of the American Federation of Labor, one of the wisest advisers that organized labor has had, advises union men to "conserve effort," be cautious about calling strikes, and "make use of mediation before striking."

Upholding the right to strike, he says it "involves so many

Wild Ovation Given As President Pledges 'Fair Deal'

CHICAGO STADIUM, Chicago, Oct. 2.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt backed up his veterans' economy program with plain talk and a comrade's smile today before the World War soldiers assembled in the American Legion convention.

The band swung into the National anthem as the President took his place on the platform. With an overseas cap of the National Press Chapter of the American Legion set jauntily on his head, he stood rigidly at attention while the band finished playing.

He told the cheering men in blue after a tumultous reception that greater benefits were hoped for the veterans who suffered disability in service, but he stood by his rule against "special benefits" to those who incurred injury or disease not connected with service.

Walking on to the platform where he accepted the nomination as President from the Democratic convention in 1932, Mr. Roosevelt donned the cap of the Legion as the massed stadium roared with cheers and applause.

HITS CLASS DISTINCTION

Striking at class distinction as an enemy of national unity, President Roosevelt assured the veterans that any suffering and destitute would be assured of the same relief the government was giving to other citizens in the same plight.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, who served in the war as Assistant Secretary of the Navy, was cheered as he recalled his own service and his Legion membership. He spoke also as a veteran disabled after his war service. An attack of infantile paralysis in 1922 made it slightly difficult today for his legs

Girl sympathizers in the picket line today at the United States Steel's Carnegie Steel Company plant at Clairton, besieged by striking steel workers. The girl in the white shoes, dress is young Miss Virginia Hallas, daughter of the president of the Clairton local of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, the national labor union for which workers are demanding recognition from the steel companies. And so the picket lines drive on and on. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

END OF STRIKE URGED AS MOSES AGREES TO 'CONFER' WITH UNION

On the industrial recovery front there were these developments today:

1—Gen. Johnson appeals to miners "by authority of the President of the United States" to end coal strike, return to work at once.

2—Philip Murray, United Mine Workers' vice president, announced he would ask holidaying miners to return to mines as a result of Frick company promise to confer with union officers on wages and working conditions.

3—As the coal code went into effect 75,000 miners kept their holiday strike ranks virtually unbroken by dint of strenuous picketing.

4—In Clairton steelworkers settled down to a steady siege of the Carnegie Steel Company's plant.

5—In Weirton, W. Va., a split developed in ranks of 10,000 strikers as E. T. Weir began conferences with mill committees.

Plea Cites 'Roosevelt Authority'

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—(AP.)—Hugh S. Johnson today addressed to the United Mine Workers a request deback by "the authority of the President of the United States" that they accept the settlement of the Pennsylvania "captive" mine controversy offered by the operators and send their men immediately back to work.

The telegram set forth that representatives of the steel companies had consented to discuss all matters affecting the workers in their "captive" mines with the union leaders and that "the men will have the right of appeal for the protection of their interest to the National Bituminous Coal Labor Board (created by the coal code in effect today and the administrator of the National Industrial Recovery Act."

PLEA TO MURRAY

Addressed to Philip Murray, vice president of the mine workers' union, the telegram also disclosed that Johnson was informed that Thomas Moses, president of the H. C. Frick Coke Company, largpany of the captives, "has handed to you a letter, addressed to you in your official capacity as Vice President of the United Mine Workers of America, confirming the acceptance of the coal code through agreement with the President on the 29th day of September and agreeing to maintain working conditions, wages and hours as prevailing under agreements between other operators and the United Mine Workers of America in the several districts where mines are located."

The message was made public shortly after Johnson held a further conference this morning with John L. Lewis, president of the

Union Head Orders Men To Work

After receiving a telegram today from Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, Philip Murray, vice president of the United Mine Workers of America, announced that he would instruct the 75,000 striking coal miners to return to work at once.

Reaction of the "holidaying" miners, who have been striking in defiance of their national officers, was being awaited. They have insisted that only union recognition will return them to the mines.

Murray said he interpreted the latest stand of the Frick Coke Company as recognition of the union. As he prepared to speak to a meeting of union delegates in Moose Temple this afternoon, Murray said:

"We are instructing all our men to go back to work this afternoon or tonight or tomorrow morning at the latest, on the basis of the telegram from Gen. Johnston and recognition of the union by the Frick Coke Company."

Johnson quoted a letter from Thomas Moses, president of the Frick Company, to Murray, in which he agreed to maintain "working conditions, wages and hours" prevailing in agreements between other operators and the union.

Great curiosity existed this afternoon as to how the latest developments would be received, not only by the delegates attending the meeting in the Moose Temple, but by the thousands of the strikers in the rank and file. They have been loud in their insistence on unqualified recognition of the union.

In his speech to the delegates, who represented every local union in the Frick territory, Murray, after urging the miners to return to work, declared:

"Our representatives, working day and night to reorganize our union in accordance with the NRA, negotiated the Appalachian agreement. These two pacts lifted 350,000 mine workers out of abject slavery."

VERONA FIGHTS INDICTMENT

First attack on the federal grand jury's probe into the general election of 1932, in which 107 persons were indicted, was made today by Alderman John J. Verona, John A. Fugassi, John J. McGrath and Berton J. McKee.

A demurrer to quash the indictment and motion for a bill of particulars were presented in behalf of Verona and Fugassi, well-known politicians, who argued that the indictment did not charge them with violating a law of the United States. The pair was represented by Attorneys Charles J. Margiotti and John E. Evans.

A motion to quash the indictment against them and a petition for an order to inspect the minutes of the grand jury were filed for McGrath, who was a candidate for County Court judge at the last primaries, and McKee.

American, 20 Others Slain in Cuban Battle

Schwab's Condition Termed 'Very Good'

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—(AP.)—The condition of Charles M. Schwab, veteran steel magnate, was described yesterday as "very good." Schwab entered a hospital two weeks ago, suffering from what his physicians described as fatigue.

American Matador Under Knife Again

MADRID, Oct. 2.—(AP.)—Sidney Franklin, American bullfighter, was successfully operated on yesterday at Crespo Hospital. It was the last of five operations resulting from a bullring accident in 1930.

Soldiers Open Fire On Besieged Officers

HAVANA, Oct. 2.—(AP.)—One American was killed, the lives of many others were endangered and an artillery shell struck the Ford Motor Company building in a battle which raged today about the National Hotel, in which besieged officers battled soldiers outside.

At least 20 soldiers officially were reported slain along with the American, Robert C. Lotspeich, Havana manager for Swift & Co. As fire from machine guns, rifles and artillery rained upon the hotel, stray shots pierced the America apartment house, where many Americans lived.

An attempt to bring about a truce failed this afternoon.

The firing ceased momentarily after two men bearing a Red Cross flag gained entrance to the hotel, but was resumed a few minutes later when the workers departed, aparently empty-handed.

Lotspeich, shot through the chest, was struck as he watched the fighting from the Lopez Serrano apartments nearby.

OTHERS UNIDENTIFIED

The other persons killed and most of the wounded were not immediately identified, owing to the practical impossibility of getting within close range of the battle.

Similar difficulty was encountered by those who attempted to learn the extent of the damage at the Ford building.

After President Grau San Martin had been informed there were

PICKETS ACTIVE AT CLAIRTON

Threatened breaks in the ranks of holiday mine strikers today diverted 30,000 miners from a projected march on Clairton and sent them hurriedly to picket lines nearer home.

While the majority of the miners strove to hold their own lines intact, 500 of them joined with an equal number of steel workers on the picket lines at the Carnegie Steel Company's Clairton by-product plant.

ON PICKET LINE

There were 500 men from the Pittsburgh Coal Company's Warden mine at Sutersville taking their turns in the lines, and a few from Blythedale and Loveland.

In Clairton there were 27 county detectives, 75 sheriff's deputies, 15 mounted county patrolmen and 40 state troopers.

This strong array of peace officers found little to do. All was quiet, except for the strikers' shouts:

"Join the union. Stick 'till Frick recognizes the union."

Gracie Allen Solves World Series Puzzle as Medbury's Star Guesser

Famed Radio Clown Proves Einstein Of Baseball

By JOHN P. MEDBURY
Written Expressly for International News Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2—The outcome of the World Series which opens here at the Polo Grounds tomorrow is just as much of a puzzle as it was at the beginning of the season. All that the experts can do is guess. Joe Cronin, manager of the Senators, guesses that Washington will win, while Bill Terry, of the Giants, guesses that it will be New York.

As long as everybody else is guessing, we figured that we might as well guess too. So we present as our guess star this afternoon Miss Gracie Allen, of the famous radio team of Burns and Allen. Miss Allen has some definite ideas on the coming series and her ideas are so brilliant that she will undoubtedly go down in history as the Einstein of baseball. But instead of trying to tell you about it, we'll just give you a public stenographer's report of the interview:

Medbury—Miss Allen, whom do you think will win the World Series?

Gracie—Well, I might say yes and no, and then again, I might not; but don't quote me.

Medbury—Which team are you betting on?

Gracie—The Red Sox.

Gracie—Certainly not; everybody knows that.

Medbury—Then why are you betting on them?

Gracie—Because they go so nice with my little blue hat.

Medbury — Do you think Washington has a chance to win?

Bishop Says Roosevelt Wields 'Lash of Fear'

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 2.—(AP.)—Bishop Adna Wright Leonard, resident bishop of the Pittsburgh area of the Methodist Episcopal Church, closing the Genesee Methodist Conference here, said the "Christian citizenship" of the country should "resent the lash of the whip of fear" which he charged President Roosevelt with trying to wield.

He quoted the President as saying, "If the nation does not comply with the NRA, then the present President will be the last," and commented:

"In an hour like this it is right for everyone to speak his convictions, but I cannot agree with such a statement, and the great backbone of Christian citizenship in the country should resent the radical inference of the overthrow of the government in this statement. It should resent the lash of the whip of fear."

The bishop added:

"I wish to God there might be something in the White House except temporal interests. I would like to see coming from the White House a true spiritual attitude—a reaching for God in the hour of need."

Bishop Leonard preached the closing sermon of the conference yesterday.

GREEN DEMANDS 30-HOUR WEEK TO ASSURE NRA SUCCESS

LABOR LEADER AGAINST RAPID INFLATION

Denies Federation Has Taken Advantage of Recovery Act

WASHINGTON Oct. 2.—(AP.)—Appealing for patience and "faith in the new deal," President William Green told the American Federation of Labor convention today that unemployment would not be eliminated until a 30-hour work week was established.

Opening the fifty-third annual convention, he opposed "rapid inflation" and said the federation would press for unemployment insurance, adoption of the child labor constitutional amendment, adequate retirement laws for workers and the elimination of discriminations against workers 40 and 45 years of age.

Discussing codes drawn under the recovery act, Green told the 500 delegates:

"The hours of labor and the minimum rates of pay established in these codes are unsatisfactory. The hours are too high and the wages too low if we are to realize the real objective of the recovery act.

"In our mature judgment, our honest judgment, the hours in many of these codes are so high that they will not absorb a single worker. Three million have been taken back to work, but eleven million are still unemployed.

CODE REVISION

"So labor must press with all vigor in its possession the necessity for revising codes until the opportunity to work is given to all those who want to work.

"In my opinion the 11,000,000 will not get back to work until we face the issue boldly and uncompromisingly and establish in these codes a six-hour day, a five-day week.

"We must realize that mistakes will be made and we must have patience.

"Labor must have faith in the New Deal, in that great fearless leader, the President of the United States."

Recalling labor's traditional stand against rapid cheapening of money, Green told the convention:

"We are against unrestrained inflation until they assure us that labor will get more of these cheap dollars to meet the higher costs. In my judgment, labor must stand unflinchingly against rapid inflation.

ASKS 'REAL' DOLLAR

"We do not oppose credit expansion through sensible and sound means, but when the worker earns a dollar he wants to be sure that it represents a real dollar."

Referring again to the recovery codes, Green said they were drafted hurriedly, while an administrative organization was being set up in the "midst of great confusion, allowing no time for wise counsel or deliberation in all cases. He said:

"Any reasonable man or woman could not fail to realize that mistakes would be made — and they have been made.

"We find it advisable to call on the administration for a revision of many of these codes so labor will get the benefits of the New Deal.

"But despite these mistakes, we have passed definitely from the stage of innocuous desuetude and inaction to a stage of action, action, action all the time."

BUYING POWER GAINS

Since March, Green said, 2,800,000 people had gone back to work and buying power in dollars had increased 26 per cent. Deducting increased living costs, he estimated increased buying power amounts to 17 per cent.

Patience also was advised the delegates, some of whom have said the recovery program was moving too slowly, by Senator King (Dem.), of Utah. King said:

"During the World War Samuel Gompers and labor stood shoulder to shoulder with that intrepid leader, Woodrow Wilson. Labor will do that now."

INVITES WORKERS

Inviting workers throughout industry to come into the American Federation fold, Green denied the organization was taking advantage of the NRA in its expansion. He said:

"The workers are marching, organizing, keeping step and turning with us in the great American Federation of Labor. Some have said we are taking advantage of the NRA. That is not the fact. They are coming in because they realize it is the day of the New Deal.

"They have been held back persecution, company unions and the 'yellow dog' contract. They are coming in and nothing is going to stop them."

All Tongues Utter Woe In Steel Strike Town

Italian, Jugoslav, German, Slovak Lament

By ZORA UNKOVICH
Staff Correspondent.

WEIRTON, W. Va., Oct. 2.—All up and down Main street you meet them, their main topic the strike, scattered groups of four and five which increase in numbers near the steel company's offices.

The surprising thing is so many of the men are quite willing to return to work. They never wanted to strike, they say, but they've been intimidated by the pickets. In all languages, as you pass by one group after another, you hear them, serious-faced, discuss it.

PRAY FOR SETTLEMENT

On one corner an Italian exclaims:

"Io desidero che lo sciopero finisca."

(I wish this strike would end.)

"Jesi li citoa Weirovo pismo?"

(Have you read Weir's letter?)

And in still another gathering a Slovak tells the news:

"Poslihajte, sjutra ce placovat ljudi."

(Did you hear—they are going to pay us off.)

Even in the churches yesterday the topic was not forgotten. In one church the parishioners were urged to offer up their prayers so that the strike might be brought to a speedy end. A priest said:

"We can stand it; we've gone through it before, but with winter coming on we must think of our children. We don't want them cold and hungry."

As it is, most of the little boys in town, October though it is, are still running around barefooted and in tattered overalls.

With the closing of the coke ovens last Friday, the tenseness of the situation was visibly increased. When once the coke ovens are shut down they crumble and must be rebuilt. A matter of two months is involved in starting them up again.

HUNGER THREATENS

Then, too, tomorrow the merchants of the town plan to go on a cash basis of business. A day or two, unless the merchants relent, and hunger will be added to unemployment.

Although the men gather in groups all along Main street, their wives are staying in their homes, the usual dreary, monotonously alike houses of a company town. They are not saying much; they are just waiting.

Where a few weeks ago smoke, the guardian angel of the town, belched forth from every chimney, today only a few smoke stacks are busy, and these, company-owned like the rest, are from the water plant which even the pickets agree must be kept going.

MILK STRIKERS ACCEPT PACT

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 2.—(AP.)—Prospects seemed brighter today that bread would take its place beside the milk bottle on Philadelphia doorsteps.

Drivers of bakery trucks decided to accept the "Reading plan" of the National Labor Board for settling their week-long dispute involving demands for more pay and shorter hours.

The plan, effective in settlement of the Reading hosiery strike, provides for immediate return to work of all strikers, without discrimination; settling of all further disputes by the National Labor Board, and election, under the board's supervision of representatives to negotiate with the employers.

PICKETS ACTIVE AT CLAIRTON

The reserve coal was being steam-shoveled into cars for shipment to the plant. A picket line was formed on the hill and a short time later, of 125 men who had been moving the coal none remained at work.

The steel mill of the Clairton plant, which has been down for two weeks, was scheduled to begin work today on a large order, but, according to certain of the foremen, some departments had as few as three men when the day began.

In the by-products plant there was a surplus of labor, with 1,800 men on hand. Most of them had been in the plant since Friday.

BARRACKS IN PLANT

Bunks have been built for them there, and they are being fed from the company commissary. Over the week-end they were supplied with playing cards and checkers.

A threat to halt picketing attributed to Mayor McVey, of Clairton, did not materialize, Roy Hallas, president of the Clairton local of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, yesterday telegraphed Gov. Pinchot that the threat had been made. He warned it would mean bloodshed.

Gov. Pinchot responded that he had "taken steps to keep order." The detail of 40 state police, rushed to Clairton by auto last night, was the result.

2,500 FAMILIES FACE FUELLESS WINTER HERE

Coal Strike Balks Efforts By Relief Agencies

Twenty-five hundred needy families in Allegheny County have been unable to obtain coal because of the coal strike, George P. Mills, executive secretary of the Emergency Relief Board, said today.

He said that the Mutual Supply Company and Snyder and Swanson Company, which have contracts with the city to supply the needy, have been unable to obtain coal.

DENIES CHARGE

In some cases of extreme need coal has been bought from other companies at higher prices, Mills added. He said that he and Col. W. R. Dunlap, city's director of supplies, would confer this afternoon on the matter.

Robert Lieberman, executive chairman of the Unemployed Citizens' League, charged that the two supply houses were able to obtain coal and were selling it to other consumers at prices higher than those obtained from the city.

COAL DUMPED

The county is having similar difficulties, Clyde J. Miller, chairman of the board of Poor Directors, said. Unless the strike is settled within three or four days, he said, the county Poor Board will not be able to make deliveries.

The contractor who supplies the McKeesport district, said Miller, has 200 tons of coal on hand, but has been prevented by pickets from delivering it. Miller also said that pickets had dumped a truckload which the contractor had sent out from his yard last week.

He added that United Mine Workers' officials had made every possible effort to have the pickets pass coal intended for relief cases.

800 CLEANERS BACK ON JOBS

With 800 employes returning to work in a score of cleaning and dyeing establishments this morning, union leaders and owners of five plants were preparing for further conferences in hopes of ending the strike which for several weeks has tied up cleaning and dyeing plants of the city.

Agreement of the 800 to return to work came after a long conference in Webster Hall last night.

About 400 men now remain out in the city, as well as all plants in McKeesport, all of which refuse to recognize the union.

Pittsburgh plants refusing to sign were the Howard Cleaning Company, Crandall-McKenzie and Henderson Corporation, American Cleaners, Seruset Company and Swiss Cleaners.

Union leaders said the sole reason for their refusal to sign up with the men was recognition of the union.

WEIRTON STRIKE SPLIT AS 300 BOLT UNION

Insurgents Vote to Return to Jobs, Meet Weir

BULLETIN.

WEIRTON, W. Va., Oct. 2.—E. T. Weir today told a delegation of 80 nonunion men of the strip mill, who asked to return to work, that they could do so and they would be protected against the picket line.

By DAVID ROSENTHAL
Staff Correspondent.

WEIRTON, W. Va., Oct. 2.—A split in the ranks of striking Weirton Steel Company employes occurred today as E. T. Weir, chairman of the National Steel Corporation, opened a conference with various mill committees.

These committees were meeting independently of the group chosen by the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, scheduled to confer with Weir late today.

VOTE TO RETURN

Three hundred employes of the electrical department meeting in Hollidays Cove today voted to return to work and named a committee of 28 to consult with Weir.

Ken Snodgrass, chairman of the meeting said:

"We have voted to go back to work. We are going to ask that our department nominate new officers."

Meanwhile William J. Long, strike leader and six other heads of Amalgamated Association lodges were conferring with Hugh D. Friel, United States commissioner of conciliation preparatory to meeting with Weir.

Company officials applied for and were granted three passes to enter the picket lines for the president and two vice presidents, the former evidently referring to Weir.

The passes were signed by George Ellison, vice president of the Weir-Cove Lodge, Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, who is in charge of issuing such permits.

At two mass meetings in Holliday's Cove yesterday the men authorized a committee of seven, all Amalgamated lodge presidents, headed by William J. Long, president of Weir-Cove Lodge, to represent them in negotiations with Weir.

HEAR PLEA

At one of the meetings yesterday Long told the men:

"This fight we are in now will be a general fight that will extend the length and breadth of the land. We are all back of President Roosevelt and the NRA. If the steel companies are going to make the NRA a joke we are going to fight them. If they think they are bigger than the government, let's stick together and fight like men."

Charles Greenwood, president of the New Deal Lodge, declared:

"I am going up there with only one thing in mind. I stand for the recognition of the Amalgamated association and nothing else."

A report was in circulation today that the company would attempt to pay off the men tomorrow and ask them to turn in their badges. Strike leaders said the men would not accept the pay or relinquish the badges as this would be equivalent to their discharge and would mean they would have to be rehired.

Meanwhile all plants of the company here, in Steubenville, O., across the Ohio River, and in Clarksburg, W. Va., continued down with the exception of maintenance and office forces.

LEAVING HOSPITAL

Immediately afterward NRA officials were informed Johnson had decided to leave the hospital where he has been recuperating for the past 12 days and return to his office this afternoon.

Associates expected him to be able to announce before long that his negotiations for returning Western Pennsylvania's 75,000 striking miners to work were nearing a conclusion.

"On Saturday afternoon Mr. Eugene Grace, Mr. Myron Taylor and Gov. Nathan Miller, representing owners of the captive mines, agreed to have Mr. Thomas Moses, president of the H. C. Frick Coke Company, meet with you and discuss all matters affecting the workers in the captive mines.

LETTER FROM MOSES

"As a result of your conferences I am advised Mr. Moses has handed you a letter, addressed to you in your official capacity as Vice President of the United Mine Workers of America, confirming the acceptance of the coal code through agreement with the President on the 29th day of September, and agreeing to maintain working conditions, wages and hours as prevailing under agreements between other operators and the United Mine Workers of America in the several districts where mines are located.

"I am telegraphing you with the authority of the President of the United States urging that the United Mine Workers of America and its membership accept this settlement to become effective forthwith and the mines to immediately resume operations.

"This request is made in the national interest and I trust that each affected member of your organization will contribute his part to the necessity of an immediate resumption of work.

"They are advised that under the provisions of the bituminous coal code the men will have the right of appeal for the protection of their interest to the national bituminous coal board and the administrator of the national industrial recovery act."

MINERS IGNORE CODE, STAY ON STRIKE

30,000 Drop March On Clairton to Keep Pits Closed

The coal strike continued today, as the code went into effect. Some 75,000 miners still were on holiday. All mines of importance apparently were shut down in the Western Pennsylvania fields.

Determination by United Mine Workers pickets that the H. C. Frick Coke Company and other captive mine operators recognize the union continued the walkout.

Throughout the field, increased pickets at all mines and a sullen determination to prevent defections from strikers' ranks, marked continuation of the strike past the deadline set when commercial operators signed an agreement recognizing the United Mine Workers of America.

VIOLENCE FLARES

Violence flared late yesterday and early today in brief spurts, but the general situation continued orderly.

It was apparently partly in response to a message from Gov. Pinchot that the men continued their strike, but remained away from the steel strike situation in Clairton, on which they had originally planned a huge march.

Pinchot's message was read to a huge mass meeting of miners at Bobtown, Greene County, by Attorney Anthony Cavalcante yesterday. Pinchot urged the men to stick to their own strike and win it, but to leave the steel situation alone.

'APPROVED' BY UNION

At the Bobtown meeting tacit approval was given the holiday strike by Congressman Charles I. Faddis, Frank Cardoni and Will Hynes, the latter two organizers of the United Mine Workers. They neither approved nor condemned the strike, but each told the men:

"Stick together until you win."

A canvass of the situation in Allegheny and surrounding counties showed both captive and commercial mines shut down.

Mines in Allegheny County were policed by a crowd of about 300 pickets from the National Mining Company, in Muse—a mine owned by the H. C. Frick Coke Company—who toured the district in trucks.

After persuading workers in the Moon Run mine of the Pittsburgh Coal Company not to enter the pit at 4 a. m., they turned their attention to the adjoining Moon Run Coal Company on the Steubenville pike.

Finding the mine working, some of them entered the pit and exhorted the workers. Superintendent William F. Hardie said:

"After threatening the drivers with guns and knives and the men came out, I advised them to go home—we didn't want any bloodshed.

"I tried to keep them from trespassing, but they claimed the property wasn't posted. I found they tore down the trespassing signs.

"I telephoned the Sheriff's office at 9 a. m. and they said they'd send deputies out right away, but they weren't there by 11:30 a. m.'

Pickets persuaded men at the Castle Shannon mine of the Pittsburgh Coal Company to join the walkout when they reported for work today.

A brief outburst of mob fury in Mount Pleasant, Pa., took as toll the life of Michael Garcher, 30, father of five small children. Garcher was one of a mob besieging the home of Lewis Clausner, a non-union miner, who refused to quit work.

Clausner, 45, was held for murder by state police who quoted him as saying he fought with Garcher, that Garcher had him down and that he fired in self-defense.

Meanwhile, 300 men took to picketing the Warden mine of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, scene of past violence.

United Mine Workers of America's headquarters reported no mines known to be operating and said their representatives were still conferring with representatives of the operators and NRA officials in Washington. They were hopeful for possible early settlement.

Greeting to Old Jailer Lands Sam in Cell

Charles Boyd, a guard, was directing a gang of prisoners on a coal pile outside the County Workhouse at Blawnox when, from a passing freight train, somebody yelled:

"Hello, Charlie. How's things? Give me regards to the boys."

Boyle recognized the "passenger" as an old customer of the workhouse—one Sam Dye, 30, Negro, of Penn avenue. Boyle recalled, also, that a few hours earlier the city detectives had been inquiring about Dye.

So he telephoned the sleuths, who arranged to have Dye picked up at the freight's first stop—Blairsville.

Sam, brought back, denied in Central Police Court today that he had stuck up a gasoline station at Twenty-fourth and Smallman streets. He explained that he was carrying a revolver these days because there were so many holdups. He was held over.

Sheriff Candidate Hurt Dodging Death Seeker

John W. Collins, of 516 Sheridan avenue, East End, defeated candidate for Sheriff in the recent primaries, is in Homeopathic Hospital, recovering from injuries received yesterday when he swerved his car into a clump of trees at Haddonville, Pa., to avoid hitting an aged man, who Collins said intentionally stepped in front of his machine.

Collins, liaison officer of the Department of Pennsylvania United Spanish War Veterans, was on his way to Uniontown to address veterans there on the pension, when the man, about 65 years old, apparently with suicidal intent, stepped in front of his car.

To avoid hitting the man, Collins turned his car towards some trees on the side of the road. It turned over twice.

The old man, who refused to give his name, began cursing him for not having killed him, Collins said.

According to physicians at the hospital, Collins suffered a compound fracture of the wrist, a dislocated shoulder blade, two broken arm bones, body bruises and possibly other injuries.

WOMAN DIES AS QUAKE JOLTS SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

LOS ANGELES BUILDINGS COLLAPSE.

Thousands Flee Into Streets in Pajamas; Schools Closed

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 2.—(AP.)—A short and sharp earthquake rocked Southern California at 1:10 a. m. today, resulting in at least one death, injury to four persons and a light property damage.

The Coroner's office reported that Mrs. Sophia Kanapow, 73, became hysterical after the shock and died a few hours later from heart trouble.

SCHOOLS SHUT

So severe was the quake, which sent thousands pouring into the streets in their night clothes, that Frank Bouelle, superintendent of Los Angeles public schools, ordered all schools closed until such time as an official examination by competent engineers can be made. Said Bouelle:

"No pupil in the city schools will be permitted to enter a school building until the structure has been checked for safety."

The sharp quake, lasting from four to five seconds, was preceded by a gentle swaying motion for at least 15 seconds. The Pasadena Seismological Laboratory of the Carnegie Institution of Washington estimated the epicenter to be 25 miles or more south to southwest, which would be in the Palos Verdes area between Redondo Beach and San Pedro. The laboratory said:

"Beginning at 1:10:26 the shock was of sufficient capacity for minor damage, but no more. A number of after shocks have been recorded."

BUILDINGS FALL

Only two buildings were reported seriously damaged. They were the old Central Police Station on First street, where more than a ton of masonry was sent crashing into the street and where an automobile, parked at the curbing, was crushed, and a market building on Central avenue, which partly collapsed.

The quake was felt as far north as Santa Barbara and some residents in San Diego, to the south, reported feeling a minor shock.

The new City Hall, tallest building in the city, withstood the shock with only a few bits of plaster falling from its walls

Numerous downtown mercantile establishments lost large plate glass windows, and a number of buildings were cracked.

The jolt started hundreds of burglar alarms and the streets for half an hour afterwards were filled with screeching sirens of police and fire trucks answering false alarms.

The scene near Bobtown as "standpat" miners (as opposed to the majority who follow Miner Martin Ryan and met Saturday 25,000 strong near Centerville) met and agreed to stay on strike "until Frick recognizes the United Mine Workers of America." ## 4 DIE IN FLAMES AS AUTOS CRASH

PITTSTON, Oct. 2.—(AP.)—Two men and two girls were burned to death, two other persons were injured, and two escaped injury early today in the collision of two automobiles on the new Scranton-Wilkes-Barre highway.

The dead were Lazarus Gordon, 21, Wilkes-Barre, driver of one car. Edward Katz, 21, Wilkes-Barre, Frances Reisman, 19, Scranton, and Molly Lewenson, 20, Scranton.

The injured were Frances Cohn, 19, Scranton, and Abe Cutler, 21, Wilkes-Barre.

All the dead and injured were in Gordon's car, which sideswiped another driven by Joseph Mullery, of Pittston, on an inclined curve in front of the Mayfair Club, operated by Patrick Capone. Gordon's machine left the road, rolled over and burst into flames which shot 10 or 15 feet into the air.

KAMONS FACING DEATH PENALTY

CLEVELAND, Oct. 2.—(AP.)—L. J. Kamons, alleged leader of a Pittsburgh arson ring, went on trial today on a first-degree murder charge growing out of the deaths of 12 persons in an apartment house fire June 7, 1932.

Two jurymen had been selected tentatively by noon. Assistant County Prosecutor Charles J. McNamee asked each venireman if he opposed capital punishment.

Kamons requested not to be handcuffed as he was led from the county jail hospital ward, but his plea went ungranted.

Kamons, extradited from Western Pennsylvania, is the second to stand trial on a charge of first-degree murder as a result of the fire. Ray I. Turk, part owner of a barber shop in which the fire is alleged to have started, was sentenced to life imprisonment.

Boy Steals Bread Truck for Tour To Fair

Arnold Lignori, 17, of 3719 Weirer street, North Side, wanted to see the World's Fair.

Getting the money was his biggest problem until he happened to see a bread truck, heavily laden, according to police.

Driving the truck through Freedom yesterday, he picked up two hitch-hikers, police said, but they became suspicious and called police.

Lignori was brought back to Pittsburgh to stand trial.

NOTE HINTS TWO DIED NEAR POLE

MONTREAL, Oct. 2.—(AP.)—A piece of paper—evidence of the apparent perishing of a German and a Danish scientist a few hundred miles from the North Pole—today was on its way to Ottawa.

The note contained the first word of the plight of Dr. H. K. E. Kreuger, a German scientist, investigating conditions around Ellesmere Island with his Danish assistant, R. A. Bjare, unheard of since 1930.

Corp. H. W. Stallworthy, of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, found the note and the fact was disclosed when he returned to civilization after a long absence last month.

Written in German, the note said the two scientists were traveling westward across Severdup Channel to Meighen and Perley Islands. They were believed to have starved.

ROOSEVELT TO AIR DEBTS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—(AP.)—Dean Acheson, Undersecretary of the Treasury, who will handle the coming debt revision discussion with Great Britain, said today he planned to go over the situation thoroughly with President Roosevelt before the conversations begin.

He expected the actual negotiations would be deferred until early early next week, although the British representatives will land in New York on Thursday.

Thus far, he said, he has received no instructions.

Meanwhile, it became apparent that the whole question of the relation between the dollar and the pound would figure importantly.

Terms of payment, it was explained, could not be discussed apart from methods of payment and the effect of the latter upon the fluctuating values of foreign exchange.

Officials expect the British to offer a lump sum settlement, although they declined to predict the amount. To receive or to reject the offer will confront the administration with an important problem entering deeply into the domestic political situation and international relations as well.

INSULL'S HOARD TIED UP

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—An alleged secret fund of $1,000,000 said to be held in a Chicago bank for Samuel Insull's fight to balk extradition proceedings by the United States government for the former utilities magnate's removal from Greece will remain where it is.

Federal Judge John P. Barnes today issued a temporary restraining order against the Harris Trust and Savings Bank preventing removal by Insull or any representatives, of any part of the alleged fund which it was charged the utilities czar created before he fled to Greece.

The action came as former Corporation Counsel Samuel Ettleson formally filed in Federal Court a suit designed to impound the fund for Insull creditors. The suit was filed on behalf of Gus Lowry, of Sullivan, Ind., holder of $6,000 in debentures of the bankrupt Insull Utility Investments, Inc.

DAVIS DEFENSE CALLS EDITOR TO STAND

Move to Overcome Inference Senator Planned Charity

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—(AP.)—Testimony that the Loyal Order of Moose sought to "capitalize in every way" the name of United States Senator James J. Davis was offered in his defense today at his federal lottery trial.

Seeking to overcome the inference left by an article in the Moose Magazine, signed by former Supreme Dictator Rodney P. Brandon, but written by Donald F. Stewart, the magazine's editor, the defense asked Stewart on cross-examination why he had stated in the article that the Mooseheart charity balls "originated in the keen mind of our Director-General."

CHARITY BALLS

Davis is the Director-General of Moose. The charity balls were part of what the government charges was a huge national lottery scheme.

Stewart explained:

"Because the executive committee of the Supreme Council instructetd me to capitalize in every way the name of Senator James J. Davis in the columns of the magazine. The committee instructed me continuously to emphasize and re-emphasize the name of Davis in Moose activities."

Attorney Charles J. Margiotti asked:

"Well, did you have any knowledge that the charity balls did originate in the mind of Senator Davis?"

The witness replied:

"No, I hadn't."

Stewart also testified that he heard Davis make a speech to district organizing supervisors in which he announced that his organization contract with the Moose had been turned over to Joseph Jenkins and Fred W. Jones in August, 1930, the Senator explaining that he was getting "too old and gray" to carry on.

RECORD PRODUCED

On re-direct examination of Stewart, Louis Mead Treadwell, assistant United States attorney, produced the record of Davis' first trial to refreshen Stewart's memory on his reasons for deeming an article about charity balls "inexpedient at this time."

Stewart had stated today that his only reason was that by the time the magazine appeared the subject matter would be "dead." Faced with his former testimony he agreed that he had another reason—namely, postal regulations, which bar from the mails any matter having to do with awards by lot or chance.

Treadwell asked the witness if he prepared and sent campaign material to Moose members during Davis' campaign for election to the Senate from Pennsylvania. He said:

"I prepared it."

Defense attorneys objected, but were over-ruled.

STATE PRISONS OVERCROWDED, BREED RIOT

Welfare Head Praises Wardens But Scores Cramped Cells

By WILLIAM J. KELLY
International News Service.
(Copyright, 1933, by International News Service.)

HARRISBURG, Oct. 2.—Cramped, antiquated quarters... ...three in a cell...no segregation...unjust penalties!

These are the conditions which exist today in all Pennsylvania's penitentiaries. They are the factors which breed discontent, insurrection and riot. And no relief is in sight!

These declarations come from Mrs. Alice F. Liveright, who, as state secretary of welfare, delivered herself of a critical, impartial observation of the penal system under her own charge.

Eastern Penitentiary recently had two riots within a week. Officials at the institution blamed overcrowding. Mrs. Liveright agrees. She mentioned a number of other factors, however. She said:

"All penitentiaries in Pennsylvania are overcrowded, but the riots were not caused solely by that."

Mrs. Liveright offered no adverse criticism of the prison's warden, Herbert J. Smith, who was injured in the riot, nor of Warden Stanley Ashe at Western Pennsylvania where a threatened uprising two weeks ago caused additional guards to be thrown about the jail. She smiled:

"I have no criticism to make of either warden. They did their duty as they saw it. Statements that Eastern Penitentiary is not adequately guarded are false. The prison has more guards than any other in the state."

Salvation Army Lassies Periled in Prison Disorder

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 2.—(AP.)—Six Salvation Army workers, three of them women, know today what a narrow escape they had in the Eastern State Penitentiary Chapel where rebellious convicts had planned to seize them a week ago Sunday and hold them as hostages.

Warden Herbert J. Smith, discussing the outbreaks among the prisoners in the century-old institution which have made the place a bedlam several times in the last week, disclosed the outline of the plot yesterday.

Premature action on the part of four prisoners involved frustrated the scheme, Smith said.

The four broke out of line while marching from breakfast to the chapel service and one of them threw pepper in a guard's eyes. They were subdued after a struggle, however, and later the warden got the story of the proposed kidnaping.

He said the convicts planned to hold the Salvationists in an effort to enforce certain demands.

CONVICT SLAIN, 8 STILL FREE

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 2.—(AP.)—A shotgun charge fired by a Brown County resident, whose suspicions of a stranger were justified, has narrowed to eight the number of convicts still fugitive from Indiana State Prison as the result of last Tuesday's escapes.

James Jenkins, convicted Greene County murderer, made the fatal error of seeking refuge in a sparsely settled hill county, where strangers are conspicuous. He was shot and killed at Beanblossom Saturday night after he wounded a storekeeper when three men cornered him.

Search for the eight still missing was pressed with undiminished vigor.

The tenth who escaped, James Clark, was returned to the prison after he was captured in a taxicab at Hammond Friday night.

Cat in Plane Fall Loses Only One Life, Recovers

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 2.—(AP.)—A Persian kitten dropped into an East Side backyard yesterday, made a deep dent in the sod, and remained unconscious for several hours, but later recovered in time to eat a hearty supper. Residents assert the kitten must have stepped out of an airplane.

Miss Mary E. Makepeace, librarian at the Rhode Island College of Education, into whose yard the kitten dropped, said there were no trees or poles from which it could have fallen. Several planes had circled over the neighborhood during the morning.

CRAFTON BANK PLAN GAINS

Progress in the sale of stock in the proposed Crafton National Bank, following a week of work by a depositors' committee, is reported by J. W. Giffin, conservator of the old First National Bank of Crafton.

Approximately 75 per cent of the $110,000 necessary for capital and surplus has been raised, he stated, and reports are not yet in from a number of members of the committee.

The plan is to transfer 60 per cent of the old bank's deposits to the new bank. Depositors are being asked to subscribe to stock in the new bank out of the money freed by the reorganization.

A depositors' committee headed by Roy A. MacGregor, is continuing its work for the plan.

LINDYS ARRIVE IN NORWAY

OSLO, Norway, Oct. 2.—(AP.)—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh arrived here yesterday after a 4½-hour flight across the Baltic Sea from Tallin, Estonia. (The distance is about 600 miles).

Part of the way out, the American flier said, they encountered fog which forced them to turn back, but later better conditions were found and they decided to continue on to Oslo.

Only a few spectators in addition to United States Minister Hoffman and the commander of the Norwegian Air Force were present at the landing.

KELLY, BATES FACE CHAIR

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 2.—(AP.)—Two state charges of robbery with firearms were drawn today in the government's fight to execute George (Machine Gun) Kelly and Albert L. Bates, alleged kidnapers of Charles F. Urschel.

Based on the robbery of Urschel and his guest, Walter Jarret, the charges were designed for the avowed purpose of sending Bates and Kelly to the electric chair. Robbery with firearms is a capital offense in Oklahoma, but the extreme penalty has been exacted only once.

County Attorney Lewis R. Morris and District Attorney Herbert K. Hyde decided at a conference with Urschel and Arthur Seeligson, Urschel's brother-in-law, to proceed with the state prosecution.

Both Hyde and Morris denied the charges were designed as a club to force Kelly to plead guilty to the kidnaping charge in Federal Court or to coerce Bates to reveal the hiding place of his alleged $75,000 share of the $200,000 ransom. Morris said:

"This case will be brought to trial, so far as I am concerned. I am filing it at the wish of federal authorities."

HARRISBURG, Oct. 2.—(INS.)—Gov. Gifford Pinchot announced today that he planned to confer late this afternoon with Mrs. Alice F. Liveright, Secretary of Welfare, concerning conditions at Eastern Penitentiary, Philadelphia, where two outbreaks have occurred in the past week.

Byrd Supply Ship Docks at Norfolk

NORFOLK, Va., Oct. 2.—(Universal.)—Admiral Byrd's supply ship, the Bear, arrived here last night and began loading 250 tons of bunker coal for their trip to Little America.

Lieut. English, in command, said weather conditions put him in here earlier than he expected and he hoped to sail today to join Admiral Byrd's flagship, the Jacob Ruppert, somewhere west of Panama Canal, the time depending on sailing weather conditions.

50,000 Chinese Die In Mystery Plague

SHANGHAI, Oct. 2.—(INS.)—At least 50,000 persons have died in Hunan Province of a mysterious plague, according to reports received here today. The disease was described as resembling malaria.

One message said few men were strong enough to bury the dead.

BATTLE LOOMS OVER BONUS AT LEGION MEET

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—(AP.)—The men who bore the arms that helped carry the Entente Allies to victory in the World War, gathered today to listen to President Roosevelt and later to settle some major issues of their own, including the bonus question.

This was indicated when it was announced last night by Congressman Wright Pattman, of Texas, that he would propose the issuance of currency to pay the veterans' adjusted compensation certificates and restore disability compensation rates to the level of those in effect before the National Economy Act of last spring.

The opinion of the national commander—Louis A. Johnson—however, was that a majority of the 300,000 expected legionnaires was decisively opposed to immediate payment of the bonus.

OTHER PROBLEMS

Leaders said they looked to the President to help solve some of the issues that have come before other sessions of the veterans. In addition to the bonus these include:

The question of national economy.

The administration of the Veterans' Bureau, several state departments having already forwarded demands for the removal of its administrator, Frank T. Hines.

Charges that Hines figured in the cuts in relief under the economy act were reported to be the basis for the demands for his removal.

NATIONAL DEFENSE

National defense also loomed as an outstanding issue. Of the more than 400 resolutions ready to submission from the various state departments this subject topped them all, in points of numbers. Some of the resolutions alleged that cuts in the Army and Navy expenditures had left the United States "impotent against the possibility of foreign invasion" and contained demands that each department of defense be strengthened, particularly aviation.

But regardless of what the Legionnaires finally decide to do about the bonus and the other questions, the pre-convention activity gave a definite indication that they would stand behind the National Recovery Act and other measures designed to whip the economic recession.

HORNER GREETS LEGIONNAIRES

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—(AP.)—The American Legion was hailed by Gov. Henry Horner, of Illinois, in his address of welcome at the opening of its fifteenth annual convention as never having used unwisely the great power it possesses. He said:

"Its leadership has avoided all pitfalls and has steadily grown in the esteem and confidence of the entire nation. It has ever shown itself ready to put the cause of the nation first."

Mayor Edward J. Kelly, in voicing the welcome of Chicago to the visiting legionnaires, said their presence here is helping restore prosperity throughout the whole country. He said:

"No one can measure the value of this spreading of confidence, and confidence in the present and the future is still America's great need today."

EMPLOYERS ON 'HOLIDAY'

Three producers of metal goods in the Pittsburgh district took an employers' "holiday" today. In one instance pickets surrounded the plant.

When workers for the Central Tube Company at Ambridge, which normally employs 1,000 men, arrived at the plant this morning they found the gates locked and a sign posted:

"Closed until further notice."

More than 500 pickets assembled outside the plant and were still there this afternoon. According to W. J. Heinzel, a leader, the men are fighting for recognition of the Industrial Workers' Metal Union which has been trying to organize the employes for some time.

In Versailles Township, employes of the Columbia Radiator Company met the same conditions. Officials of the plant explained they had shut down for today because they feared an invasion by striking miners.

The Fort Pitt Steel Casting Company, of McKeesport, which works only night shifts, announced that it would be closed tonight. Officials would not explain why.

The Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers has been organizing both plants.

High School Girl Shot by Escort

MARLIN, Tex., Oct. 2.—(AP.)—Dorothy Baugh, 13-year-old Marlin High School student, died yesterday of a bullet wound suffered after a Saturday night motor car ride and Lee Francis, 18, was arrested.

Police said Francis, an ice plant employe, admitted the shooting. Officers quoted him as saying in a statement he did not "intend to kill the girl, but she wanted to marry her and I fired to scare her."

TEXT OF ROOSEVELT APPEAL TO LEGION

Commander Johnson, fellow members of the American Legion:

I am glad to come here as your guest and I am glad to have the right to come here as your comrade. I have come because I have faith in the American Legion and in all other veterans of our wars. The right which I have to come here works both ways, because as long as I am in the White House you have the right to come and see me there.

But my relationship with you is not a matter of the past six months; it dates back to the war days when I participated with you, not only in this country but also on the North Sea, and in the Channel and on the actual fighting front in France.

I want to talk with you about the problem of government, the difficulties which you and I as Americans have faced and solved, and those which we still face. I recognize and appreciate, and the nation recognizes and appreciates, the patience, the loyalty and the willingness to make sacrifices, shown by the overwhelming majority of the veterans of our country during the trying period from which we are beginning successfully to emerge.

I want to talk to you about national unity. Let us look at it as a living thing—not a mere theory resting in books, or otherwise apart from everyday business of men. It means that we all live under a common government, trade with each other, pay common taxes, give to and receive from a common protective governme. To recognize national unity, I hold it above all else, seeing that upon it depends our common welfare, is just another way to say that we have patriotism.

Sees Unity Need

You and I who served in the World War know that we represented a united nation in the time of danger to world civilization. But you and I know also that national unity is as essential in time of peace as in time of war. If this country is worth living in, if this flag of ours is worth living under, if our social order means anything to us, then this country of ours is worth defending every day and every year of the life of every individual one of us.

It is because I am unwilling to live myself, or to have my children or grandchildren live, under an alien flag or an alien form of government, that I believe in the fundamental obligation of citizenship to don the uniform of our country, to carry arms in its defense when our country and the things it stands for are attacked.

But there are two enemies of national unity, sectionalism and class, and if the spirit of sectionalism or the spirit of class is allowed to grow strong, or to prevail, it means the end of national unity and the end of patriotism.

Some people who visit us from other land still find it difficult to credit a fact that a nation sprung from many courses, a nation 130,000,000 strong, a nation stretching 3,000 miles from east to west, is in all the great essentials of its civilization, a homogeneous whole; for not only do we speak one language, not only are the customs and habits of our people similar in every part of the continent, but we have given repeated proof on many occasions, and especially in recent years, that we are willing to forego sectional advantage where such advantage can be obtained only by one part of the country at the expense of another.

The other enemy of national unity is class distinction, and you and I are well aware of the simple fact that as every day passes, the people of this country are less and less willing to tolerate benefits for one group of citizens which must be paid for by the others.

You have been willing to fight for the benefits of American life. You have been willing to live for American unity. You have understood that this is the very foundation of the Americanism for which you stand, in which you believe, and to which you and I swore allegiance when we became American legionnaires.

For several years past the benefits of American life were threatened. The crisis came in the spring of this year. It was necessary to meet that crisis. Again it was necessary for all of us to go back to fundamentals.

Credit Restored

Millions were out of work, the banks were closed. The credit of the government itself was threatened. The car was stalled. Obviously, the first objective was to get the engine running again. It is true that we succeeded in reopening the great majority of the banks, but this would not have been possible if at the same time we had not been able to restore the credit of the government.

In speaking of national credit we are again dealing with a real thing, not a theory in books. There is such a thing as national credit. It depends upon national unity. Without it the government cannot get the money to give. You and I depend upon it, and in a right sense your welfare and mine rests upon it.

That is not just an academic proposition. Industry cannot be restored, people cannot be put back to work, banks cannot be kept open, human suffering cannot be cared for, if the government itself is bankrupt. We realize now that the great human values, not for you alone, but for all American citizens, rest upon the unimpaired credit of the United States.

It was because of this that we undertook to take the national Treasury out of the red and put it into the black. And in the doing of it we laid down two principles which directly affected benefits to veterans—to you, and to veterans of other wars.

The first principle, following inevitably from the obligation of citizens to bear arms, is that the government has a responsibility for and towards those who suffered injury or contracted disease while serving in its defense.

The second principle is that no person, because he wore a uniform must thereafter be placed in a special class of beneficiaries over and above all other citizens. The fact of wearing a uniform does not mean that he can demand from his government a benefit which no other citizen receives. It does not mean that because a person served in the defense of his country, performed a basic obligation of citizenship, he should receive a pension from his government because of a disability incurred after his service had terminated, and not connected with that service.

Just Compensation

It does mean, however, that those who were injured in or as a result of their service, are entitled to receive adequate and generous compensation for their disabilities. It does mean that generous care shall be extended to the dependents of those who died in or as a result of service to their country.

To carry out these principles, the people of this country can and will pay in taxes the sums which it is necessary to raise. To carry out these principles will not bankrupt your government nor throw its bookkeeping into the red.

Every person who has made honest study knows that mistakes, many of them, have been made during the course of 15 years. I personally know that mistakes in individuaal cases and inequalities affecting various groups have occurred during the past six months. But at the same time there stands out the fact which you know—that many of these mistakes have been rectified and that we have the definite purpose of doing justice not only to the mass, but, insofar as possible, to every individual as well. Furthermore, it is my hope that insofar as justice concerns those whose disabilities are, as a matter of fact, of war service origin, the government will be able to extend even more generous care than is now provided under existing regulations. It is to these men that our obligation exists.

To these two broad principles the time has come, I believe, for us to add a third. There are many veterans of our wars to whom disability and sickness unconnected with war service has come. To them the federal government owes the application of the same rule which it has laid down for the relief of other cases of involuntary want or destitution.

In other words, if the individual affected can afford to pay for his own treatment he cannot call on any form of government aid. If he has not the wherewithal to take care of himself, it is first of all the duty of his community to take care of him and next the duty of his state. Only if under these circumstances his own community and his own state are unable, after reasonable effort, to care for him, then, and then only, should the federal government offer him hospitalization and care.

The young men of this country who today, in the event of war, would bear the first brunt of national defense, think of us of the American Legion as middle-aged people. You and I are not yet ready to admit that we have "one foot in the grave." We think of ourselves and with some justification perhaps, as people of some experience, of some maturity of judgement, of a position in the community which carries responsibilities. We believe we have influence as individuals and we believe that as an organization the American Legion has enormous power for the good of the country for many years to come. It is not enough that you have helped to write the history of America. It is a fact that much of the future history of America will be a history which you will help to make. Your future interests are inseparable from those of other citizens, and, granting that your interest in the disabled and dependent comrades is first upon your program, I ask in addition your co-operation in the great program of national rehabilitation in which you and I are equally engaged.

Industrial Gains

The charter of the Legion keeps it out of partisan politics. The strength and the very existence of the Legion depend on the maintenance of that principle. You are not here as Republicans or Democrats. You are here, as you should be, as Americans to work with your government for the good of the average citizen. I am grateful to the Legion for the splendid stand it has taken—for the "battle order" it had issued.

The realization of our national program cannot be attained in six months. Re-employment has proceeded only a part of the way. From week to week there will be ups and downs, but the net result is a consistent gain. The freezing of credits has been stopped and the ice is definitely melting. Farm income has been increased; it must be further increased. Industry has picked up, but an increased purchasing power must stimulate it further.

Your task and mine are similar. Each one of us must play an individual part in our own field in dealing with these many problems, but at the same time we must realize that the individual part belongs to a closely related whole—the national unity of purpose and of action.

I ask your further and even greater efforts in our program of national recovery. You who wore the uniform, you who served, you who took the oath of allegiance to the American Legion, you who support the ideals of American citizenship, I have called to the colors again. As your commander-in-chief and comrade, I am confident that you will respond.

Pittsburghers Named to Legion Committees

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—(AP.)—The Pennsylvania delegates to the American Legion convention today sought support for their demands for a reduction in national membership dues and for an investigation of the Veterans' Administration in Washington. A steering committee to canvass the candidates for national offices also was named. John G. Watson, Pittsburgh, was named to credentials and Silas A. Waddell, Pittsburgh, foreign relations, and C. P. Crain, Pittsburgh, time and place of the next convention.

Blue Shirts, Foes Clash in Ireland

CORK, Irish Free State, Oct. 2.—(AP.)—Between 30 and 40 persons were treated for head wounds yesterday after clashes following upon rival meetings of the Blue Shirts and the Irish Republican Army, but residents heaved a sigh of relief as the day ended without serious trouble.

There were sustained clashes between opposed factions on side streets leading to the grand parade where the Blue Shirt meeting was held. The I. R. A. meeting was close by.

LEGION WOMEN IN CONVENTION

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—(AP.)—A patriotic setting of flags and bunting in the colors of the Allies was provided for the opening session of the annual convention of the American Legion Auxiliary in the Auditorium Theater this afternoon.

The entire program, from the marching of 100 pages uniformly attired in white, and each bearing a flag of one of the Allied nations, to the address of welcome by Mrs. S. Alfred Blackburn, Lexington, Ky., national president, was planned to thrill the delegates by the spendor of its pageantry.

The honor of bearing Old Glory down the aisles of the convention was conferred upon Man o'War Post Drum and Bugle Corps of Lexington, in recognition of Mrs. Blackburn.

Today the name of Mrs. O. D. Oliphant, of Trenton, N. J., was placed beside those of Lady Edward Spencer Churchill and Mrs. Calvin Coolidge as the only holders of the Distinguished Service Medal, the highest honor of the national executive committee.

Vets Cheer Roosevelt Backing Economy

Reaching Chicago at 12 o'clock (eastern standard time), the President remained on his private car to communicate with Secretary Hull about the Cuban situation before motoring to the stadium.

Crowds jammed the streets and cheered lustily. Ticker paper and confetti blanketed the streets.

The President pounded the desk with his fist as he asserted with a friendly smile:

"The fact of wearing a uniform does not mean that he (the veteran) can demand and receive from his government a benefit which no other citizen receives.

"It does not mean that because a person served in the defense of his country, performed a basic obligation of citizenship, he should receive a pension from his government because of a disability incurred after his service had terminated, and not connected with that service."

The President's appearance before the Legion, which has taken issue with him over the cuts in veterans' compensation, was fully as dramatic as his previous appearance in Chicago Stadium.

Looking fresh, in spite of the hasty departure from Hyde Park, N. Y., the Chief Executive addressed the crowded stadium, his face alight with vitality, his words coming sharply and carrying clearly to the huge reaches of the hall.

Seeming to sense the drama of the occasion, the huge assemblage hung tensely on the Executive's words. The applause rocked the structure.

PRESENTS FLAG

Speaking in stronger voice, the President pointed his finger at the veterans and declared:

"If the individual affected can afford to pay for his own treatment he cannot call on any form of government aid.

"If he has not the wherewithal to take care of himself, it is first of all the duty of his community to take care of him and next the duty of his state. Only if under these circumstances his own community and his own state are unable, after reasonable effort, to care for him, then, and then only, should the Federal Government offer him hospitalization and care, and the government stands ready to do that."

Again the stadium echoed with cheers and applause.

Again a Chicago audience heard the President under circumstances of a critical national emergency. Today, he carried his fight for governmental economy to the organization which found exceptions to it. A year ago last summer, in the same place, he gave to the nation his first word after being nominated for President on the Democratic ticket. At that time, he stepped out of a fast plane that had borne him from New York to Chicago. He had slowly made his way to the platform, located in precisely the same place as the Legion speakers' rostrum. Then, his face showed lines of weariness. Today, he seemed less careworn than on that occasion in spite of his six months of stewardship of the nation's affairs.

As his last act on the platform, the President presented a silk flag from the Women of Clarksburg, W. Va., to Commander Johnson. The crowd cheered as he said he was acting as temporary chairman of the gathering.

He left the hall to the strains of the music.

The inventor's wife, the Marchesa Elena Marconi, accompanied Marconi here for a three-day visit. Today was Marconi Day at the World's Fair, the principal event of which will be a world-wide broadcast from the Hall of Science this evening.

Senator Marconi during the broadcast will send the letter S around the world through a chain of radio stations. The same letter was transmitted 32 years ago in the first wireless signals to be received from across the Atlantic Ocean.

It amounts to stupendous savings for you in the long run.

Here's the actual incident that saved millions of dollars for radio owners. It happened back in 1927. Gimbels New York radio buyer didn't like the ugly horns manufacturers were using as loud speakers. Besides, they cost too much. "Hide your homely horn INSIDE the Cabinet," the Gimbel buyer told the manufacturer. Built-in speakers knocked $25 to $40 off the price of every radio as well as revolutionized the radio's appearance.

That's just one case in thousands. We'll point out scores more during this month, every one of which made it possible for us to lower some price and so SAVE YOU MORE MONEY!

no Americans in the National Hotel, additional soldiers were ordered to join the attack.

The battle which had raged for hours, assumed the appearance of real warfare as the Red Cross established a first-aid station a half block away from the hotel.

Col. Fulgencio Batista, commanding Cuba's "enlisted army," set up field headquarters in the district and personally directed the attack.

Meantime, two army tanks which had left the hotel on an unexplained mission, rumbled back to the scene of action and loosed heavy machine-gun fire around the hostelry.

Five wounded soldiers lay helpless on the ground over an hour before comrades could pick them up.

FIRE BREAKS OUT

Fire appeared to have broken out in the hotel after an artillery shell whined through a window and exploded.

Another big shell shattered one of the main entrances and others smashed against the exterior with disastrous results.

Stray bullets peppered the walls of the Castro building, where an Associated Press observer was posted. Slugs occasionally whistled into the rooms, forcing the occupants to flatten themselves on the floor.

Two American newspapermen escaped through heavy fire to safety when bullets began piercing the walls of the America apartment house.

Soldiers were placed in the grounds around the home of Former Provisional President Carlos Manuel de Cespedes, two blocks from the hotel. They eplaced a field gun in the front yard and started firing toward the hotel.

De Cespedes, whose return to the chief executive post had been demanded by the embattled officers, was not at home.

It became known that Will Taylor, of San Francisco, manager of the hotel, twice tried to enter with his wife last night but was turned back. Soldiers explained they had been instructed to fire upon any automobile which attempted to enter the grounds.

HULL AGAINST INTERVENTION

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—(AP.)—Secretary Hull declared today that no change in policy toward Cuba is contemplated as a result of the fatal shooting of an American at Havana this morning.

At the same time, he urged in press conference that Americans on the disturbed island use all possible care in avoiding danger, especially when peril is so imminent as its was today when streets were filled with lead during an engagement between soldiers and the officers barricaded in Havana's National Hotel.

By long distance telephone to Havana, the Secretary of State personally verified reports that an American, Robert G. Lotspeich, a representative of Swift & Co., had been killed by a stray bullet.

Secretary Hull said the American had walked out on a roof or other needlessly exposed place. He added that everybody concerned is sorry he lost his life.

Hull then stated definitely that no change in this government's policy toward Cuba is in contemplation.

serious considerations that it ought to be utilized only as a last resort."

Mr. Green adds:

"The right to strike is fundamental," and it is. On the other hand, the right of the capitalist NOT to employ labor and risk his capital, with strikes on one side and income tax on the other, is also "fundamental."

A few thousand more strikes, called regardless of Mr. Green's wise advice, might bring a real labor problem. It is easy to walk out and sing as you walk. Ten millions idle suggest that it is not so easy to walk back again.

RUSSIAN scientists supply interesting details about their trip eleven and a half miles up into the air, sitting in a car of aluminum, lifted upward by a huge gas bag.

Outside the car in which the scientists worked, the thermometer registered eighty-nine degrees below zero. Inside the car, they suffered from a heat eighty-six degrees above, effect of the sun shining on their metal car.

No other human beings probably have ever traveled with a difference of a hundred and seventy-five degrees inside and outside of their carriage.

All of us travel through space, protected by our atmosphere from "absolute zero," more than four hundred degrees below, that prevails throughout the ether space.

THE UNIVERSITY OF PENNSYLVANIA Museum and the Boston Museum of Fine Arts co-operating, will excavate and explore the ancient city of Ray, near Teheran, in Persia.

That walled city, five thousand years old, was revered for many centuries by fire worshippers everywhere, because it was supposed to be the birthplace of Zoroaster's mother, as well as the location of the Zoroastian hierarchy.

It combined for the disciples of Zoroaster the sanctity of Palestine and Rome, combined.

Medbury—Did you know that this morning they were betting 10 to 7?

Gracie—That's too early. I never bet before quarter of eleven.

Medbury — Personally, I'm betting even money.

GEORGE BETTING, TOO

Medbury—I suppose you're going to the opening game tomorrow.

Gracie—No; I'm not going until a week from Saturday.

Medbury—They won't be playing a week from Saturday.

Gracie—That's fine; then I'll be able to get a better seat.

Medbury—You seem to know quite a lot about baseball, Miss Allen.

Gracie—Yes, but my brother knows more than I do. He's a real fan; last year, he went right out on the field and argued with the umpire.

Medbury—What happened?

Medbury—Did your brother get sore?

Medbury—I suppose that finished him as a baseball fan.

Gracie—No. He's more of a fan than ever. He's out in St. Louis now for the World Series.

BROTHER'S TROUBLE

Medbury—Why, the World Series isn't being played in St. Louis.

Gracie—It isn't?

Medbury—No.

Gracie—Well I hope my brother doesn't find it out; he'd be awfully disappointed.

Medbury—Your brother is bound to suspect something when he's sitting out there in the hot sun with nobody in the ball grounds.

Gracie—No, he'll probably think that the game has been postponed on account of rain. Even if he did find it out, he wouldn't have time to get to Cincinnati anyway.

Medbury—For your information, Miss Allen, the World Series isn't being played in Cincinnati either.

Gracie—It isn't?

Medbury—No.

Gracie—That's too bad; then my uncle won't be able to see it.

Medbury—The first two games are going to be played in New York.

Gracie—A minute ago you said that Washington is playing, and now you say it's New York. How do they expect the fans to know where to go, when they keep changing the towns all the time?

M'BRIDE FLAYS PARTY CHIEFS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—(AP.)—F. Scott McBride, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, had charged in a statement today that "state party leaders and wet interests now attacking state prohibtion laws are guilty of a brazen and unjustifiable violation of the obligation assumed by the national parties to permit state prohibition problems to be settled independent of the national prohibition issue." He asserted:

"Notwithstanding the assurance accepted in good faith by thousands of voters, particularly in the South, party leaders and wet groups in various states are now trying to stampede the voters into accepting the results of election on the question of national prohibition as an indication that the states are opposed to state prohibition.

"The assumption that a state is wet because a majority in the state voted for repeal is justified neither by the facts nor the election figures. Half of the voters who took part in the presidential election did not vote at all on the question of national prohibition repeal. Undoubtedly the stay-at-home vote was the dry vote which would oppose repeal of state prohibition laws."

'DRY' GOVERNOR FOR REPEAL IN VA. BALLOT

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 2.—(AP.)—Virginia, after an unusually quiet campaign of drys against wets, will vote as the thirty-second state tomorrow on repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. The state votes also on substitution of a liquor control law for its state prohibition act.

Interest during the final hours of the campaign was heightened by the announcement of Gov. John Garland Pollard that he would vote for repeal. In a formal statement, the Governor, a lifelong dry, said it would not be fair for Virginia to vote for retention of the Eighteenth Amendment after 31 states had voted for repeal. He said:

"I shall, furthermore, exert myself to secure the very best liquor control law which public sentiment will support to reduce intemperance to a minimum."

In a final appeal from the dry camps, William R. Phelps, director of the emergency prohibition movement in Vriginia, asserted it "is not simply a repeated statement, but a sad fact, that liquor cannot be controlled—it must be outlawed."

Repealists expressed confidence that repeal would win and that Virginia would join the ranks of the other 31 states, who in an unbroken sequence have voted for repeal.

NRA SPIRITUAL RECOVERY DRIVE OPENS HERE

Deeming spiritual recovery a necessity under the NRA, the Allegheny County Ministerial Union today discussed the county-wide evangelistic demonstration program which opened yesterday and continues through November 6.

Leaders of the Federal Council of Churches, holding the demonstration as the opening campaign of a national program, spoke at the meeting in the First United Presbyterian Church, North Side. The demonstration will include 24 group training meetings of young people under the banner of "Youth Win Youth for Christ."

Addressing the ministers were the Rev. Dr. W. F. Klein, of New York; the Rev. Dr. Bernard Clausen, pastor-elect, First Baptist Church; the Rev. Dr. H. B. McCormick, Cleveland; the Rev. Dr. Jesse Bader, secretary, Federal Council, and the Rev. Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr, Shadyside Presbyterian Church.

An interdenominational youth meeting will be held at 7:30 o'clock tonight in the Christ Methodist Episcopal Church, Liberty and Center avenues. Speakers will be Henry Lindstrom, discussing "Youth's Need of Christ;" Dr. McCormick, "Christ's Need of Youth;" and Dr. Clausen, "Rekindling the Fire."

The Rev. Dr. George W. Shelton, announcing the demonstration program, said:

"There must be a spiritual recovery as well as industrial recovery under the NRA. It must stress the need for honesty and fair play."

Dr. Shelton will conduct three Sunday radio sermons beginning next Sunday. An old-fashioned evangelistic service was opened simultaneously with the launching of the demonstration at the Second Presbyterian Church, Eighth street, yesterday. The Wheeling Gospel Tabernacle Party will conduct the services nightly for three weeks, excepting Saturdays. Louis P. Lehman, 19-year-old Wheeling youth, who has been heard on the radio, is the preacher.

CHURCHES BACK AIMS OF NRA

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 2.—(AP.)—A pronouncement by the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America on the permanent spiritual and ethical implications of the national recovery program and aimed to express the point of view of "thoughtful groups in Protestantism" was made here last night by the Rev. Dr. Albert W. Beaven, president of the council.

The pronouncement was made at a union meeting of the city's Protestant churches.

Disclaiming intention to judge the technical aspects of the program, the executive committee of 78 representatives designated by 26 Protestant denominations affiliated with the council unanimously gave recognition to the statement that the NRA program is in keeping with Christian teaching in implying "the practicability of a more co-operative economic order, socially controlled for the common good, and a willingness to relinquish special privilege and power.

Kill that COLD!

Don't Merely Coddle It with Half-Way Measures!

A cold is nothing to trifle with! It may end seriously. A cold, being an internal infection, calls for an internal treatment. It also calls for a COLD remedy and not something good for a number of other things as well.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is what a cold requires. It is expressly a cold remedy. It is direct and internal—and it does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels, combats the cold germs and fever in the system, relieves the headache and grippy feeling and tones and fortifies the entire system. Anything less than that is taking chances with a cold. Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is sold by all druggists, 30c and 50c. Accept no substitute.

TELL IT TO ELSIE

Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Do Wives These Days Get An Even Break?

Do women nowadays get a square deal?

Or are they the helpless victims of selfish men, who have all the easy breaks?

What do you think?

Not long ago Judge Eugene O'Dunne, of Baltimore, informed husbands that they should treat their wives "as tenderly as they would handle the rarest orchid that blooms."

And we rose up to ask—are ladies "rarest orchids" or just humans?

Of course we hastily admitted that plenty of ladies thought they were orchids. But did that make 'em so? Was, or wasn't, Judge O'Dunne right? Should, or shouldn't, Females be given De Luxe handling?

And here's Mrs. M. M. A. . . . with plenty of fireworks on the subject:

Dear Elsie:

I've just read your article on Judge O'Dunne's advice to husbands, with great interest—and I want to send in my three cheers for him. It's about time somebody took up our cause. And it's too bad the judge doesn't hold office here, where I could personally canvass the district and see to it that every fair-minded female would go to the polls and cast her vote for him.

We need more men of his caliber to take up the cudgels in our defense.

Certainly we women are "different"—just how much "rarer" or "finer" of course remains to be seen. Each person's problem has to be considered separate and apart. But I have to laugh at your question, "Should they receive extra special de-luxe handling?"

DEFENDS WOMEN

Don't be absurd. I'll wager that half to three-fourths of the women in this town never had even civil attention for any length of time, let alone the "extra special" treatment you prate about.

And as for tantrums—leave it to the men to take the willow for them. How about it, when they go around looking like thunder clouds, and sulk for days, while the poor wife wonders and worries and asks herself if she has unwittingly done anything to cause the black looks.

Of course the average female is as honest as the average man. How about the women who work down town by day, and then work at home at night in an effort to take proper care of children, whom a lazy, good-for-nothing father neither cares about nor supports? How about the so-called honesty of the male in respect to his lawful duty?

AGREES WITH JUDGE

You talk about "equal rights." Equal rights! There is no equality with reference to the rights of men and women, because women certainly get the lion's share of work and responsibility. And as for criticism—a woman certainly gets nothing else, whether she merits it or not. Man does nothing else but condemn a woman, no matter what she does.

So I say: Hurrah for Judge O'Dunne! Thank goodness there is one man in the world who has the courage to give good advice to the many members of the male population who need it so badly! MRS. M. M. A.

All of which, we'll admit, is interesting—if true.

But is it true? Are wives abused?

Do wives treat husbands better than husbands treat wives?

And should ladies be given special treatment? Or are plenty of them selfish, nagging, unreasonable—getting by with murder, under the excuse that they're just "weak women?"

FAY KING WRITES OF THE TRUE LOVE FOUND IN HUMBLE PLACES

LET'S WAIT A FEW YEARS UNTIL WE HAVE SAVED ENOUGH MONEY TO HAVE A NICE HOME

FAY KING

By FAY KING

Many young couples in love hesitate to marry because they have not the means to begin home-making on the scale they would like.

So, instead, a couple remains engaged for years, both working and saving for a better beginning. And too often by the time they have the means to begin as they preferred they have lost that enthusiasm and happiness that would have enhanced the humblest little place.

Surely it is when we have the least that we most need each other. And it is when a couple are most in love that they can be happy anywhere.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Initials for Silver

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I belong to a sorority of 10 girls. We are to buy a gift for the first member to be married. We have decided on silverware.

1—All of the girls think that the silver should be engraved with the sorority crest and Greek letters upon it, but it seems to me that this would not be good taste, and that a bride's silver should have the bride's initials and nothing else on it. Am I right or wrong?

Would it be correct to have the sorority crest, which is a scroll, with the bride's initials instead of the sorority letters?

2—When using the bride's initials, what initials are correct? If Mary Jane Brown is marrying John Smith, would the initials be M. J. B. or M. B. S.?

1—I'm so glad that you wrote me about this, for I agree with you that marring the silver in this way would be a terrible mistake, and one to be always regretted. Such marking would come under the heading of bizarre, and the marking of silver should be of the most conventional kind and type.

Conventionally, traditionally, the silver of the bride-to-be should be engraved with the initials of her maiden name. She may herself choose to use the initials of her name-to-be, but this choice must rest with her. In any case, it would not be at all correct to use the sorority crest and Greek letters, or the sorority crest in any form combining the bride's initials.

2—If Mary Jane Brown is marrying John Smith, the initials that would be used are M. J. B. This, as I say, is the conventional thing to do. But, if she prefers, she may use M. B. S.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

A Lot of Bad Bidding

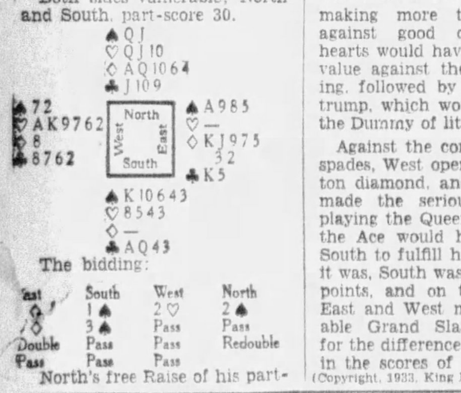
A correspondent wrote me recently that he greatly enjoyed reading these articles because I do not condemn the faults of my partners or opponents unsparingly. No one who ever played much Bridge, however, can be at all times a "Pollyanna" in discussing the various errors of omission and commissoon committed by Bridge players.

The other day, at a bridge club in New York, I saw a hand played by four very fine players who had compressed into it a great deal of bad bidding as well as a great deal of bad play. The situation was a fairly crucial one, the rubber game having been reached.

East, dealer.

Both sides vulnerable; North and South, part-score 30.



The bidding:

| East | South | West | North |
|---|---|---|---|
| ◇ | 1 ♠ | 2 ♡ | 2 ♠ |
| / ◇ | 3 ♠ | Pass | Pass |
| Double | Pass | Pass | Redouble |
| Pass | Pass | Pass | |

North's free Raise of his partner's Overcall of one spade appears quite daring. Of course, he feels reasonably confident that his partner has a five-card suit and this view is strengthened greatly by the possession of the Queen and Knave. However, the free Raise is rather bold. East's bid of three diamonds is based on the possession of a seven-card suit and South, void of the suit, is emboldened to continue the bidding because of partner's free Raise of his bid. As a matter of fact, had three diamonds become the final contract, East would have had difficulty in making more than 5 tricks against good defense. The hearts would have been of little value against the spade Opening, followed by the lead of a trump, which would have made the Dummy of little value.

Against the contract of three spades, West opened the singleton diamond, and the Declarer made the serious mistake of playing the Queen. The play of the Ace would have permitted South to fulfill his contract. As it was, South was defeated 1,800 points, and on the next hand East and West made a vulnerable Grand Slam, accounting for the difference of 5,000 points in the scores of the opponents.

Given in Marriage

A Sequel to Heart of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Finally Convinces Her Temperamental Husband

It is not often that I find myself ranged against my husband when he is in opposition or argument with anyone else, but as he flung his apparently innocuous but really insulting query concerning Mrs. Ticer at Hugh Grantland, I found myself hotly scoring Dicky for his boorishness, and sympathizing with Hugh because he was compelled to take Dicky's sardonic gibing without resentment, on account of my comfort.

"Hugh isn't a judge," I told him. "No mere man, not even you, can appreciate Mrs. Ticer. But I didn't start out to discuss her faults and virtues."

"Heaven only knows what you did start out to discuss," he said tartly. "But go on from where you left off."

DEFENDS MOTHER-IN-LAW

I plunged into my account quickly; thankful to be heard upon any terms, and as rapidly and lucidly as possible I sketched my telephone conversations with Avis Arlen and Philip Veritzen, and told him of Mr. Veritzen's request that Avis Arlen and her mother be invited to the wedding.

"That old goat has the gall of the devil," he commented. "But go on."

I obeyed, and realized with a heady little thrill of triumph that his interest in what I was telling him, and his resentment against Avis Arlen, were fast dispelling the jealous rage with which he first had viewed me sitting in a parked car with Hugh Grantland. And when I reached the point where Avis had insisted upon coming to the farm, and I had been equally insistent upon meeting her at Patchogue, I heard approval, even if grudging and reluctant, in his voice.

"Only thing to do, of course. But why did you bother old Hugh with our troubles? Why didn't you drag me along with you?"

"I did try to get you," I replied more or less mendaciously. "At least I called the farm, after I had finished talking with Miss Arlen. But your mother answered the phone, and, luckily for my scheme, asked me to go to Southampton to see about more small white boxes for the wedding cake."

"She would!" my husband snorted with disgust. "With a dozen people in the house, most of 'em capable of driving a car, she picks a woman with a sprained ankle to run her errands."

"You are unjust to her," I said spiritedly, for when Dicky champions me against his mother, I am so secretly warmed by his preference that in very shame I rush to the older woman's defense.

"All right, all right, stick up for her if you want to," Dicky retorted acridly. "So that's the way it was. You went to Southampton and kept on going. What did you find when you got there?"

GOOD NATURE RETURNS

He was getting calmer "by the minute," and I plunged into the tale of my interview with Avis Arlen and the way in which I extorted from her a confession of the theft of the letter. Dicky interrupted me with ejaculations from time to time, and when I came to the point where the girl finally promised "word of honor," he bent over and smote his knee a mighty blow, and burst into a hearty laugh.

"Third degree Madgie! By the great horn spoon!" he ejaculated.

I heard a sibilant breath from beside me, and knew that Hugh was so amazed that he had lost speech and breath. But I have had so many years of experience with my husband's "artistic temperament," that I am never surprised to see him turn almost in an instant from furious temper to riotous good nature.

I hurried to seize the goods the gods had provided.

"Third degree Madgie is right," I told him laughingly. "I really was ashamed of myself, but there was no other way."

"Ashamed of yourself!" Dicky ejaculated. "There you go, Little Friend of All the World! Not content with shielding the girl, you are chicken-hearted about making her come to time. Well, as long as you didn't soften when you had her between your talons, we can forgive you. And what then?"

With fear and trembling I told him of the ferret-faced man.

"I suppose you're headed for The Larches again," he said curtly.

Household Hints

Welsh rarebit will be improved, for those people who dislike too strong a flavor of cheese, by the addition of a little tinned tomato soup.

Young carrots have a better flavor if a lump of sugar, a dessertspoon of butter, and a squeeze of lemon juice is added to the water in which they are cooked.

HIGH TRIBUTES PAID HEARST AT FAIR

By CHARLES N. WHEELER
Universal Service.

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—In a colorful, dignified and impressive ceremony, William Randolph Hearst Day at A Century of Progress was officially observed yesterday.

Under the golden sunshine of a perfect autumn day, with bands playing and soldiers parading, happy throngs on the Exposition Grounds joined in the tribute.

The formal exercises were held in the court of the Hall of Science. Here the official appreciation was spoken by President Rufus C. Dawes of the Exposition. Addresses also were delivered by leaders in the govenmental, business, educational and social science life of the country.

Turning to young Mr. Hearst, in the midst of his address, President Dawes said:

"Nearly 40 years ago he (Hearst) established himself as one of the great publishers of America, and in all this period of social and political changes and of mechanical readjustment he has maintained himself and advanced his great properties in prestige and power. . . . In a great variety of ways we have been sustained by his powerful support."

SON RESPONDS

In his response young Mr. Hearst said:

"My father, and indeed the whole Hearst family, appreciates very greatly the honor of having a William Randolph Hearst day at this wonderful fair.

"We are told the honor is conferred because of services rendered the fair by the Hearst papers.

"That is particularly gratifying.

"The main purpose of the Hearst papers is to render public service.

"The motto on their editorial pages is 'Truth, justice and public service.'

"I hope the papers will always live up to that motto, and always deserve the approval of this great and inspiring American community."

TRIBUTE FROM LEGION

Louis Johnson, national commander of the American Legion, brought greetings from the legionnaires. He briefly reviewed the fight the Hearst publications had made for the veterans in all their struggles. He said:

"I am proud of this opportunity to pay a deserved tribute to William Randolph Hearst. I would be remiss in my duty and unfaithful to the record if I did not convey to him on this occasion the undying gratitude of the American Legion.

"He has stood loyally with us in all our struggles. We are indebted to him more than can be expressed in feeble words. He has understood the aims of this great organization. Our problems have been clear to him. He has never failed us, and today it is my happy privilege to say that we fully appreciate his sympathy and his great help."

John Quinn, former national commander of the Legion, paid a tribute to the publisher's mother, the late Phoebe Hearst.

GOV. HERRING SPEAKS

Gov. Herring, of Iowa, said:

"Out in the agricultural heart of the nation we have paid a lot of attention to Mr. Hearst's editorial policies. As the Governor of the state I know what a terrible task confronts those who seek to make both ends meet in the matter of taxation.

"But if this nation had taken Mr. Hearst's advice and insisted on the payment of war debts we would find the task much easier today. Aside from his leadership on a great many questions, I want to acknowledge his great aid to the interests of agriculture."

Lieut. Gen. Milton J. Foreman, founder of the American Legion, devoted his address to preparedness and national defense. He said he had read about everything Mr. Hearst ever wrote on national defense, and took this opportunity to subscribe to every word of it, particularly his recent appeal for an adequate aerial defense. He declared:

"I want to unqualifiedly indorse William Randolph Hearst's Americanism."

Preceding the formal ceremony, a brilliant spectacle was presented by the escort of honor as it moved down the Avenue of Flags. Forming in the court of honor the cavalcade approached the Administration Building and thence down the colorful avenue to the Hall of Science.

MARCONI, WARSHIP, PLANE -:- Captain Dobbs, Morton Downey -:- ON RADIO TONIGHT

Pittsburgh Joins in Tribute

By way of tribute to the inventor of wireless, NBC puts on a remarkable broadcast tonight titled "Marconi Magic."

Warships at sea, airplanes in flight, police cars in motion, the Gay White Way of New York and A Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago will contribute to the tribute.

The program will be climaxed when Marconi, himself, takes a Morse key and again transmits, around the world, the signal he first sent across the Atlantic.

At one moment during the broadcast an air transport on its regular flight between Pittsburgh and Harrisburg sends a message to listeners throughout the nation.

The next instant, Cleveland police radio will be heard calling a squad car and giving orders.

At other times a warship at sea will be heard receiving and acknowledging orders; noises of crowds and traffic in New York will be heard; a mobile transmitter will broadcast colorful scenes of the World Fair. And finallyy Marconi will send his historic signal.

The broadcast is carried locally by KDKA at 8 o'clock.

Dwight Myer, KDKA chief engineer, supervises the Pittsburgh contribution to the program, picking up the airplane message and feeding it to the network.

The Deaf Hear

Deaf mutes throughout the country are asked to "listen in" on a radio experiment which Charles Kellogg, famous nature singer, conducts before the microphone on Captain Dobbs Ship of Joy, an NBC-WCAE program heard at 9:30.

Believe-it-or-not—the publicity says so—Kellogg will blow out lighted matches held by listeners, and produce special bird notes which can be heard by deaf mutes.

If he doesn't blow out some tubes blowing out the matches, he'll at least keep the radio controlmen on their toes.

Phyllis Morton, who plays the part of Lady Isabel in "East Lynn," (WCAE's Opry House drama tonight at 7:15,) was starred in the same role years ago, when the down-east drama was the rage of the stage.

Downey

Morton Downey, silver-voiced tenor, steps into the "Parade of Champions," heard over CBS-WJAS at 9:15. He is accompanied by his old radio partner, Jacques Renard.

"An Evening in Paris" celebrates its fourth birthday on a CBS-WJAS network tonight at 9. Agnes Moorhead continues in her role of "Cousin Anna." Nat Shilkret and his orchestra play several of Europe's latest song hits.

The Contented Hour, heard over WCAE at 10, expands over a nation-wide hookup tonight so that Westerners may enjoy it.

Isham Jones, Lulu McConnell and Gertrude Niesen put on another "Big Show" tonight at 9:30 over CBS-WJAS.

Cowboy Tom and his gang bring back their program of wild west entertainment over Columbia-WJAS at 5:45.

Contented With Cow's M-o-o

By AIRCASTER

I've always known that in the abbatoirs they use up everything but the squeal when they butcher a pig.

I suspected for a time, in the old days of regenerative radio sets, that the squeal forever wandered through the air lanes, to haunt the listeners.

Anyhow, I've just found out what becomes of the moo when a cow is converted into filets. At least, I'm expecting to find out any day now.

"Please be on the lookout for a small package postmarked Oconomowoc, Mich.," a letter in the morning's mail warns me. "The sponsors of the Contented Hour are sending you a moo. Not a real, live heifer—just the moo.

These moos are famous in millions of households. For nearly two years they have ushered in the program featuring Morgan Eastman's orchestra, the Lullaby Lady and Jean Paul King."

And that's all very thoughtful of the Oconomowoc moo packers. But it's got me scratching my head. I'm a little wary of this modern packing science.

You see, I made a pass at Capt. Dobbs the other day for talking shop too much on his Ship of Joy. And I'm wondering if the packing company that sponsors the captain may not send me a can of ripe razzberries.

'Morning Judge!

Those of you who complain about announcers saying "Hello Folks," will perhaps hear a new salutation soon—"Good Morning, Judge." In a few days WCAE opens a series of daily broadcasts of the Pittsburgh Traffic Court sessions.

Hizonner Scott Morgan and the traffic culprits brought before him for gentle or severe reprimands, will be heard by the WCAE listeners.

I know more than one person eager enough to crash into radio, to crash into almost anything to crash into radio.

The broadcasting of the Traffic Court sessions was arranged by J. L. Kaufman, WCAE manager, and the Better Traffic Committee.

Among the hundreds of gals looking for jobs on the radio is an enthusiastic person who wants to be a network commentator, and she calls herself Mary Brown Warburton.

She is the daughter of John Wanamaker, and will probably ankle up to a web mike in a fortnight.

Aerial Games

The W. & J. athletic council have given WCAE the green light on broadcasts from the home gridiron this season.

Globe-Trotting

—By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN—

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

Can't you just picture Edward Maurer, Jr., his three-weeks-old brow furrowed, his little fists clenched, and his mouth moving to mutter the above.

His first experience with the outside world was on election day. His granddaddy, Martin Weber, took him, his papa and mamma, for an automobile ride.

To the excitement of election day was added the thrill of an automobile wreck, a fast ride to the hospital because his mother was hurt, a later appearance at a police station to report the accident, and then a breathless rush home to bed.

I might mention that Globe Trotter Martin Weber, Sawmill Run boulevard, mentioned above, claims some sort of a record. He is a grandfather at 36.

Boy, do I find them?

First, it was dogs and cats and now it's long lost brothers. Saturday's sum total was a dog for Regis Bartley, of the Sheriff's office, a dog for a little boy in Glenshaw, and a long lost brother for Mrs. Carboneri, of Connellsville.

Mrs. Grace A. Neel, McKeesport, is a budding song writer. Her "Prosperity Song" has been sent to New York for publication.

Edward Siegel, librarian of the Tuberculosis Sanitorium at Cresson, stresses the consolation and enjoyment found by patients in reading. He needs books. If you can help, leave books at the same old place, Fifth and Market, at the Want Ad store, or at the Sun-Telegraph Building.

Bridge players want to know what kind of man Milton C. Work is. That's easy. He's the kind of a man you'd like to play bridge with. Slow, placid, philosophical, a not-too-great believer in special systems, you can't imagine him getting excited even if you trumped his ace.

Globe Trotter's News Schedule

Louis L. Kaufman, Globe Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, broadcasts the news of the day over WCAE-WJAS at 9:05 a. m., WJAS at 12:15 p. m., WCAE-WJAS at 2:15 p. m. and 6:30 p. m.

The regular 12:15 broadcast over WCAE is omitted today in deference to the American Legion program, beginning at noon.

During the World Series baseball broadcasts, the Globe Trotter will not be heard at 2:15 p. m., unless weather prevents the playing of the games.

The Sun-Telegraph Family Children's Program is heard on WCAE at 4:45.

Dear W. W.: That was a most interesting story about M. Houston, the only baseball expert in New York to pick the Giants and Washington team to win the pennants, only to lose his job . . . What actually happened was that Houston took the Richmond Times-Dispatch job because the wages were so much better . . . They urge you to rectify the records, if you please . . . Agnes Ayres wishes you would do something about the talk that she is plotting marriage, which she isn't. Says the rumor may spoil her chances, etc. . . . Here's the lowdown on why Baby LeRoy the movie mimic, is so easy to direct in Hollywood. His nurse, whom he adores, stands next to the camera, and she does the things they want the baby to do. . . He always apes her antics—and there you are . . . United Artists would like having you at a birthday party tomorrow night—it's for Mr. Mouse . . . Incidentally, the pictorial maps made up by the bus firms indicate "Hollywood" by a photo of Mickey, which should melt some of the heads out there.

Berle is leaving that ciggie program and Moran and Mack probably will replace him . . . Of the new shows "Double Door" is the only sell out . . . The Joe Cook show, however is doing big business . . . Lennie Hayton has a neat way of describing Cab Calloway—Rhythm and Weep . . . Do you know where I can find Bert Grant? He wrote "Knock the L Out of Kelly" and other old time hits. A friend has a radio job for him . . . Here's a crazy item—Paul Trudal a Canadian was given six months in jail for counterfeiting coins . . . They discovered later that his spurious coins contained more silver than the real Canuck money! . . . Sally Rand the fan dancer who is supposed never to have wed did when she was 15, it lasted six days. Her real name by the way is Hazel Beck.

More calls about where to see "3 Little Pigs" . . . It won't be added to the "Follies" score probably because they're losing no time murdering that song too . . . I think this quip sounds like Eddie Cantor. He recently made a deal you know to have his name and likeness on a five-cent cigar . . . The other day an agent for another firm tried to get Cantor to strand that cigar for his . . . "You really ought to be ashamed of yourself" scolded the salesman "you're too big, Mr. Cantor, to have your name and picture on a five-cent cigar!" . . . To which Edward replied "You don't tell me. Well, did you ever hear of a fella named George Washington? He's got his on a two-cent stamp!"

While at the hairdressers last week, Maurice Chevalier came in to visit his former hairdresser (he has one!) whose name is Ferdinand. Maurice came in to have his hair cut. There were the ladies there in a dither, I think they drove him a little mad. One almost wept until she got a lock of his hair—which is when I gave up . . . I hear that the Ritz bar here is spending plenty to make their bar the smartest in town—a la the Ritz Bar in Paris . . . Hannen Swaffer, who for a time was England's most wicked critic and who won international newspaper space when Lillian Foster, the actress, slapped his face, is going into vaudeville there—doing what do you imagine? . . . I have no idea, either . . . Movie magnates will know better than to invade public places and snap shots of anybody, after what happened when they took scenes of "Sloppy Joe's" for "Havana Cocktails" . . . A woman caught in the scene is suing for plenty . . . Roscoe Turner's new backer is Paul Lukas, the star . . . Sally Chase, the novelist, spells it Chayes.

People who claim to know him well tell me that Al Capone abhors women who smoke or drink . . . The Edward Dickmanns and the H. Workmans of the Don Bestor orchestra want their forthcoming blessed events noted . . . Fox Films, it appears, are hiring showmen who know their theater to make their flickers . . . George White they have signed already—and Jed Harris will be next. Herman Shumlin, producer of "Last Mile" and other worthy things, probably will follow . . . Caroline Nolte probably will marry Sam Feldman in Feb'y, I hear . . . I like the attitude of Otis Skinner, who has been a star so long. The Players' Club shortly will send him on tour with "Uncle Tom's Cabin" and want him to star. Instead, Mr. Skinner insisted that Queenie Smith co-star with him—she will do "Topsy" . . . Nothing small-time about him, what?

I know how to make a frozen cocktail. You merely add to your regular cocktail a tablespoonful of dry ice (obtainable in drug stores) then stir the drink slowly and in a minute you have a drink the consistency of sherbet . . . But don't handle the dry ice—it burns the fingers frightfully . . . E. Ray Goetz goes abroad to bring back another Raquel Meller, only this time it's a man . . . Fred Fradkin, the concertmaster, gave up his fiddle for Wall street and now can buy any of the theaters that hired him . . . Your dentist will wait for you—I take it you won't cover the new shows this week? . . . Nice weather for drilling, at that . . . You can tip your friends that after the election the police will bear down on night parkers, taking advantage of the law at that time which permits them to tag a car, without seeing the owner . . . Bettie MacDonald, who revealed what she knew about her comrades in the Ziegfeld shows for the papers, is the newest to head her own night club—a Village spot, due Nov. 10 . . . They are kidding the old-fashioned drama, again, in Newark at the Broad St. At the finish of the play ("Drifters") the heroine asks the audience: "Shall I Live Or Die?" and then the fun starts.

A lovely looker from one of the Cleveland gazettes was in—she's making a tour, including Yurrop, and she'll be in later to quiz you on this and that . . . The Paramount wants you to know that Mae West's record for the first three days fell when Bing Crosby's "Too Much Harmony" opened . . . They had to double the usher staff to handle the mobs . . . The demand is greater for photographic models (boys and girls) who resemble various motion picture people because of their "attention value" . . . The banks have agreed upon a code of a minimum four walls rental of legit theaters at $500 weekly, the lowest ever . . . J. Wald has finally connected with Warner's and leaves for the Coast tomorrow . . . D. Alber says the Capitol Theater has to admit that their eye was good but their Aimee wasn't . . . Elinson left these: Gen. Johnson says the fight against Depression is a War . . . Izzy says he gets it—we're all no-dough boys. And that he is the kid with the crumb . . . Also that the real reason why the Stock Exchange didn't move to Jersey is that they couldn't find a building high enough for brokers to jump out of.—Your Girl Friday.

Diamond Lil Not Mad at Marlene

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 2.—No matter what they say, Mae West doesn't believe that Marlene Dietrich ever denied having heard of her. What with Mar-lay-na denying it herself in a long telegram to Josef Von Sternberg, it looks as if a prospective feud is going to die before it got fairly started.

Miss West never have said that," she told me, "because we've been good friends. When my picture, 'She Done Him Wrong,' made such a hit at the box offices she came over and congratulated me.

"The same thing happened in New York when I took Lenore Ulric's public away from her. She was a good sport, too.

"Miss Dietrich knows she has had the public for a few years, and now that my sort of work is kind of topping hers at the box office, she's going to be sporting about it."

And then, with a touch of Diamond Lil's fire, Mae added:

"If I thought anyone really would do a thing like that, why I'd ruin the dame in 10 minutes."

The Dietrich explanation of what happened is something different from New York reports. A horde of newspapermen were questioning her, she wired, and one of them asked if her new Patou wardrobe shows any influence of the Mae West styles. Her negative answer to this query, she maintains, was misconstrued into the statement that she had never heard of Hollywood's brightest new star.

Newspapers all over the country have been showing a passionate curiosity about that sock in the jaw Clara Bow got during a picture scene. They wired Fox to isolate the frame of film showing the blow struck and to broadcast pictures of it. The owner of the flying fist also could be identified in this manner. It was a swell idea, but they say Clara's head was hidden from the camera at the identical moment she took it on the button.

The death of Alice M. Williamson in England reveals that she and Harold Lloyd had a rendezvous to meet in Sidi Bel Abbas and to make a study of the Riff country. When the novelist was in Hollywood two months ago, Harold engaged her to write the Foreign Legion story that he intends to make after "The Catspaw." Harold had planned to take his family to Europe and to go with Mrs. Williamson to the actual scenes of the legion's domain.

Tearle Back And All Is Forgiven

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 2.—(AP.)—Conway Tearle's story is one of the classic ironies of filmland. He is back in the movie fold once more, this time welcomed, although for the five years before he left for Broadway his presence was rather pointedly overlooked.

He is now playing a leading role opposite Alice Brady in "The Vinegar Tree," but when he left Hollywood two years ago he was so little in demand that, in his own words, "I wasn't making enough to feed my dog."

Tearle entered films as a profession in 1922, when he was lured to Hollywood from Broadway by the then magnificent salary of $2,500 a week. For several years before that he had played in films in the East between stage engagements, and so is a veritable movie old-timer.

That he was constantly cast as the dress-suited lover—he had to argue and plead before obtaining the virile outdoor role in "The Great Divide"—may have contributed to his decline. But he made the fatal blunder of arguing with the powers that were, and soon he found himself outside.

The old breach is healed now, and Tearle walks on the welcome mat—just like any other actor who scores a big hit on the stage. Tearle's success was in "Dinner at Eight," in the role, of course, of the fallen movie star. In his quiet way, Tearle calls a spade a spade.

"Barring his drinking," he says, "I was that fellow. Like him, I was out of the picture. When I felt I couldn't get anything to do, except a poorly paid part now and then. For instance, I had worked in a serial—making 13 episodes in one week!—and I wouldn't tell you how little I got for it. I though I'd better try the stage again while I could."

Norma Shearer Gets 'The Green Hat'

Selection of "The Green Hat" as a Norma Shearer starring film represents the fulfilment of an ambition of several years' standing for the M-G-M actress, who has made no secret of her desire to portray Michael Arlen's Iris March on the screen. Katharine Cornell played this role on the stage for two seasons.

NRA CHECKS ON JOB GAIN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—(AP.)—NRA announced today the immediate start of a canvas to cover every employer in the country to establish how much new employment and increase in payroll has been secured by the recovery program since July 15.

The "recovery census" will be handled by means of 3,000,000 questionnaires to be distributed by the Postoffice Department, together with return envelopes.

Just as the blanks for the President's re-employment agreement were taken from door to door by the mail carriers, so will the census forms be delivered within the next few days.

The questionnaire is addressed by President Roosevelt "to every employer" with the following message:

"Two months ago I invited you to enter an agreement with me to aid industrial recovery by shortening hours of work and by increasing wage rate.

"The time has come to take stock. The information here requested is necessary to determine the progress we have made."

GIRL GETS $35 BALM VERDICT

Miss Agnes Sabol, 26, of 1132 Rebecca street, North Braddock, who sued for $50,000 in a breach of promise case, was awarded $35 by a jury today, exactly the amount she testified she had expended for her trousseau.

The defendant was Andrew Zoltak, 29, of Port Vue, former professional football star at one time with the McKeesport Olympics. The case was retried after Zoltak protested a verdict of $1,000 obtained by Miss Sabol in the first trial.

Zoltak testified he had promised to marry the young woman and wanted to, but that she refused and he finally wed another girl. Miss Sabol introduced numerous love letters which sch said Zoltak had written her. Judge A. B. Reid presided.

Gossipy Chat With Nancy Jane

His sister, Mary Martha Dalzell, not only goes to school—to Miss Ellis'—and he does not, but she had a part, as flower girl, in the Kelly-English bridal party.

To make up for the comparative dullness of his young life, his little sister plays his favorite game—dresses up in her flower girl gown, and tells him all about weddings. You can see he's delighted.

Since Martha is going to school, she feels that she has laid aside childish things, and she's embarrassed when her little brother kisses her before anyone.

At a smart night club opening the other night, Mrs. Blair Childs was asked, "Are you a debutante?" And Mrs. Childs not only manages a home, her social life, but has a department store career!

Patricia Witherow is, I believe, the shortest deb. Peggy Mitchell and Eloise Dorrance the tallest.

Friends of debutante Annette Chester call her Nettie.

Deb Mary Edwards, who always looks as though she were about to dash off to something ever so amusing, has a most attractive coiffure. She wears her short blonde hair brushed back from her forehead and behind small ears, and has the ends curled in little ringlets.

Brother of Bridegroom Officiates at O'Shea Wedding Ceremony

On Tuesday morning at 6 o'clock in St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church, Lawrenceville, Miss Elizabeth T. O'Shea, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John O'Shea, of Calvin street, became the bride of Edward J. Ricke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ricke, of McKinley street, Knoxville.

Officiating was a brother of the bridegroom, the Rev. Francis H. Ricke.

The bride wore a gown of maroon velvet with a matching hat and carried yellow talisman roses and lilies of the valley. Her maid of honor was Miss Anna Mae Tiernan, of Versailles, Pa., who wore sapphire blue velvet with a hat to match, and carried pink Columbia roses. Ralph White, of Mt. Oliver, was best man.

After a Western wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Ricke will be at home in Calvin street.

In the Chatterbox After "Dinner at Eight"

From the very moment the western sun sunders the horizon, the daughters of Eve are qui vivre for conquest. Dinner and dance dresses this season have a very satan's lure. The new optimism in business is reflected directly in the new opulence of party gowns. One little affair in taffeta is near the sweetest story ever told. Even a beaded dress, purposeless and tasteless as it is generally, has character and MOMENT in this collection. And so on—for each particular style of beauty there is glorification here—at low cost. And on the suavest terms. Why not dress before our mirrors and see yourself grow beautiful, in readiness for "Dinner at Eight" at the Nixon to-night—and the Wm. Pen Chatterbox afterwards.

DRESSING SMARTLY FOR THE CONTRACT GAME IS SCARCELY LESS IMPORTANT THAN SMART BIDDING

Lame Trims Many Models

By PRUNELLA WOOD

NOT even the horrid warning of a divorce case now and then in which a hand of contract plays the villain's role can dim feminine enthusiasm for the game. There is many a girl, in fact, who would be glad to put in a 40-hour week testing phychological bids and whatnot over the tables.

Now that the desultory rubbers of summer time are over, and the earnest hibernation of the winter about to begin, frocks for the card fan are worth considering. At the Cavendish Club in Mayfair House, for instance, it is the good looking, slightly formal gown that is favored. Luncheon before the game is the usual stunt there, hence pretty luncheon costumes are popular.

AT other clubs which meet regularly in Manhattan hotels or in their own quarters, the sort of frock which can withstand the wear and tear of commuting is often a favorite. Models made of rich colors which defy soot and of fabrics which decline to wrinkle are easy to find. The berry shades are all good choices, and the rough crepe or ribbed silks are attractive and dressy in these tints.

Only an amateur would select a frock for cards which is elaborated with flowing sleeves or cuffs which will make havoc of the lay-out on the table. Lots of sharks think there ought to be a bounty on any woman who makes such a mistake. But the sleeves of this season run to the long, slim, fitted variety, anyway, attached to broad, comfortable shoulder lines that one can sit in without a cramp for hours, all in all doing a great deal for gowns that go to matinees and bridge games.

THE revived interest in metal fabrics is a boon to daytime frocks which need a sober skirt to get about the streets and a formal bodice to dress up an indoor afternoon diversion. A vestee, a piping, a jabot, or the detailing of a shoulder or a cuff with lame is all legitimate ornamentation to the casual party frock these days.

Health Colony Honors Head Tomorrow

Mrs. Carl E. Coslowsky, who, like Mary Roberts Rinehart, was one of the founders of the Health Colony Club, will serve as chairman for its president's day tomorrow in the Congress of Clubs. Norman O'Hara is to sing, with Beulah Taylor Marston playing his accompaniments and also reading. In the new year books Miss Janet Forbes, of Rieck-McJunkin Co., is announced as the November speaker.

The annual benefit by which the club finances its splendid work among the tubercular, is set for December 5. Health Day comes in January and a program devoted to political education in February, Miss Suzanne Beatty speaking. T. D. Mylrea will talk about "Carillons" and the music department of the Crafton Woman's Club will furnish music for March's meeting. April's event is a reciprocity meeting with the Woman's Historical Society.

Rose Irene Wolk Becomes Bride Of Dr. Harris

A bride of Sunday evening was Miss Rose Irene Wolk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sol Wolk, of South Graham street, when she married Dr. James W. Harris.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of rum brown tucked tulle with a matching hat and accessories and carried Talisman roses. Mrs. R. Morris Glick, who was her sister's matron of honor, wore black lace trimmed in American beauty. She carried red roses. Joseph Harris was his brother's best man.

After the ceremony Dr. and Mrs. Harris left on an eastern honeymoon. They will be at home upon their return in the Stahlman Apartments, Monongahela City.

Bridgeville Juniors To Hear President

We sit here writing with a hearty whack of our typewriting fingers . . . and a mouthful of some crispy new muffin-like bites which we discovered. They're non-fattening and non-starchy . . . and unlike most breads or crackers of their ilk, are surprisingly un-hay-like as to taste (this thing of munching a weedy-flavored cracker and pretending it's a chocolate-nut-sundae never did appeal to us!) Anyway, if wouldst be sylph-like, get going on these . . . 25c for a large box. And equally good for making into hors d'oeuvres.

A decision . . . that we're all reverting to type and are going cave man (or woman). Else why all this thus-ness about new hair woolens . . . and now about shoes as well? We have just awakened to Marcella cloth shoes of a tweedy surface which is hairy enough to interest any dog (puh-lease! no pun intended). Black . . brown . . buckled at the toe . . opera pump . . with Boulevard heel . . $3.95. And we're breathless!

But with woolens in our mind (it being one-track) we shall tootle off the news about the snuggly new bed jackets we've seen . . . pajamas . . . and nighties!

Flesh as to color . . . and of daintily knitted cotton (which sound old-fashioned, but isn't) . . . and costing, oh snugglers, but $1.95! Find if you can, a three-quarter bed jacket with tassled ties, sweet style, and a bit of warmth, for $1.95. Sizes 14 to 18.

And with cooler nights upon us, the flannel robe makes its seasonal bow. These are 2-tone . . . Tuxedo or shawl style . . . in many shades . . . all sizes . . . and priced $3.98. But the beauty of them is that you get a 2 or 3 letter monogram put on them FREE, aha!

Now to jump into some clothes . . . the group we ogled at a $19.95 price contained frocks for every Fall and Winter occasion. Most particularly some fine woolens . . . a hairy oxford street dress with bundled-up throat effect and "fins" of black caracul.

And yet another cluster . . . these with $15.95 price tags, listing some gay afternoon-ers among their ranks. A black crepe with new Schaparelli gathered collar of white bengaline be-sprinkled with weensy gold threads and pastel embroidery . . . this by way of example of what can be done with $15.95 and the desire to be well-dressed.

And afterwards . . . gape at yourself in one of these really stunning console mirrors for which we should receive palms! They're 7 inches wide by 31 . . . long and slim . . . and have gilt frames of a fineness . . . BUT of a fineness! $2.85 (And not too many of them at that!)

* * *

So to fall into a chair and rest from your labors . . . we announce a slipper chair covered in cretonne of various patterns. Lift the seat and gaze into a spacious compartment just meant for maybe a hat . . . or sewing oddities. For only $2.95. A joy to any household!

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Clean Hands Ward Off Disease

Measles, chicken pox, scarlet fever and other infectious diseases, are common ailments of childhood. It is probable that many of the diseases children catch can be traced to dirty hands where disease germs lurk. The common habit of childhood to put the fingers in the mouth increases the danger.

Dr. Copeland

This menace is ever present. No doubt it will surprise you to learn that millions of germs can be removed from your hands after handling a few door knobs and the common household objects. This fact has been demonstrated repeatedly in the researches of laboratories.

It is true that most of the germs are harmless in their nature. But occasionally the germ may be of the type that leads to serious disease. Most contagious diseases, especially the so-called "childhood diseases," are quickly spread in this manner.

Cleanliness of the hands is absolutely necessary when you care for a member of the family who is sick with a contagious disease. Carelessness in this matter may spread the disease to other members of the household.

Everyone should be familiar with the simple procedure of disinfecting the hands. They should be soaked in 1 per cent "liquor cresolis compositus," or a 1:1,000 solution of bichloride of mercury. The druggist will supply the solution.

Next thoroughly wash the hands with soap and water. Follow this by again immersing the hands in the germicidal solution. Pay special attention to the spaces about the finger nails.

I wonder how many of my readers are familiar with the cleansing methods and the care of the hands used by surgeons before they operate. The surgeon washes his hands and forearms with soap and water for five minutes. He vigorously scrubs with a bristle brush and then soaks his hands for one minute in 85 per cent alcohol. The hands are then soaked in a 1:1,000 bichloride of mercury solution for two minutes.

I am telling you all this to impress upon you how important absolute cleanliness is. There has been marked improvement in the results of surgery since this thoroughness has been practiced.

Bear in mind that a very large percentage, perhaps 90, of infectious disease can be traced to dirty hands. Children and adults should be impressed with the importance of frequent washing of the hands and always before eating or handling food.

Leisure School To Teach News Appreciation

MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

One of the more unusual classes to be conducted in the Leisure Time School (for unemployed high school graduates) at Central Branch Young Women's Christian Association is "The Newsreel," which Harvey O'Connor, author of "Mellon's Millions," will instruct. Mr. O'Connor will give a critical, ethical evaluation of each day's news and, with the co-operation of local newspaper writers, will endeavor to create critical, appreciative news reading in his class.

The school, which is to be conducted Tuesday and Thursday afternoons from 1 until 5 o'clock, opens tomorrow and the branch is asking that registrations be made tomorrow morning to avoid a last-minute rush. Three morning classes, one in dramatics, one in young people's relationships and another in bookkeeping are conducted in the morning in conjunction with the Downtown Y. M. C. A.

So heavy has the registration been in the modern manners and social arts class that it is now closed. A second class in literature is being organized and the dramatics class at the Y. M. is the result of heavy registration in that subject. "What to wear and how to make it" is closed also, but registration has been light in psychology, creative writing and the class called "how people make their living." One of the new classes this year is in advertising and publicity.

WORLD'S GREAT CHEFS COOK HERE

A generation ago New Yorkers praised the distinctive and fine cuisine they could get at Delmonico's.

Inasmuch as one can find Antoine S. Geraud, formerly with the famous Delmonico's and the Astor Hotel in New York City, now at the Hofbrau in the Diamond, Pittsburghers have a right to boast.

With him supervising each meal is August L. Folin, head chef at Kaufmann's for 17 years and at the Ritz-Carlton in London for a long time. Those are two of the reasons why Pittsburghers can do a little boasting.

OLD WORLD TAVERN

Added to the fine food one can get at the Hofbrau is the soothing atmosphere of an old world tavern and an orchestra playing light operatic tunes at dinner time, all of which adds to the enjoyment of the delectable cuisine.

Meals supervised by Geraud and Folin are served in the Old World Grill or the Danube Room to some of the city's leading personages. At the tables one can find corporation presidents, attorneys, doctors, political leaders, newspapermen, society figures, stage people and many others.

BEER STORED

When it comes to bartenders Pittsburgh can again do a little boasting. Back of the lengthy Hofbrau bar is 60 year-old Louis Wall, "dean of bartenders." The beer he serves is something to talk about. It is put in the Hofbrau cellar where it is kept at a constant temperature of 38 degrees by automatic refrigeration. After two weeks it is ready to be tapped.

Wall who knows a great deal about how they keep beer in European countries in deep cellars thinks our American method is far the better. He says the scientific method is best for preserving the natural taste of the beer.

Business Notes And Comments

There has been an active trade in various finished lines of cotton goods during the past week, according to textile interests. Demand for sheets has been particularly good and some grades are in limited supply.

Wholesale hardware volume in some districts is said to be running 50 per cent ahead of the corresponding period last year. The principal call is for seasonal goods, although the sale of tools has been on the increase for the first time in several years.

Furniture manufacturers are receiving fewer orders but still have a substantial backlog with shipments restricted.

Producers of machinery and equipment are operating at a lower rate than in August, although demand for textile machinery has picked up during the past fortnight.

Acetic acid, aqua ammonia, caustic soda and a number of other chemical items used by the textile trade are quiet as a result of labor difficulties in certain mill centers.

Prices for Greige goods continued to tend upward. Silk rayon trade interests assert that there has been no piling up of stocks.

Little municipal financing is scheduled for this week. The Daily Bond Buyer estimates the amount at $7,850,966, as compared with the weekly average for this year of $13,396,000. The largest item is a $3,760,000 offering of Cuyahoga County, O., 6 per cent refunding bonds, set for Tuesday.

Net income of Northern States Power Company (Delaware) and subsidiaries for the year ended August 31, was $6,446,024, against $8,068,514 the year before.

Colorado and Southern Railroad had August net operating income of $129,113, compared with $49,761 a year ago.

With retailers well stocked with goods and awaiting consumers' response, orders for shoes are tapering off according to manufacturers, many of which have started to reduce their operating rate.

Men's wear stores are making preparations for what they believe will be the most active holiday season in several years. Substantial orders are being placed for shirts, neckwear, robes, hosiery and novelties in all price lines.

The increase in home dressmaking this year has benefited laces and other yard goods, trade reports indicate. The heavier types of chantilly laces are selling well, although some increase in interest in the lighter laces has developed due to the sponsorship of these varieties abroad.

Mayflower Drug Meeting Called

A letter has been mailed to stockholders of Mayflower Drug Stores, Inc., inviting them to a meeting to be held on next Wednesday in the Chamber of Commerce Building. Plans for reorganization will be discussed.

STRIKES CLOUD STEEL MART

CLEVELAND, Oct. 2.—(AP.)—Further increases in steel prices, the magazine Steel said today, are foreshadowed by the labor situation which the publication described as becoming more tense and threatening a possible interruption of production.

Steel also made the statement that "Henry Ford is threatening to open his steelworks." It continued:

"Steel producers are already harassed by enormous complications in writing contracts under the new code and pressed to ship material specified again at expiring, low-price contracts.

"Automotive consumers without exception, parts makers largely financed by them, and other users in lesser degree (last week) ordered out steel which, when delivered, will make consumers' stocks as a whole the largest since 1929."

The steel market, the magazine said, became a sellers' one the last week as the industry presented a united front under the code. The trade was offered four forms of contract, each ironclad, and "generally favored a commitment for a percentage of requirements within a stated maximum."

The influx of specification held the week's decline in production to 2 per cent. Had production not been retarded by strikes in the Wheeling and Pittsburgh districts, the rate would have held at 40 per cent instead of at 38.

Nine Months Auto Sales Exceed All of '32

R. L. Polk & Co. reports sales of new passenger cars in the United States this year through the middle of September exceeded the sales for the full year 1932. Sales in August were 178,661, bringing the total for the first eight months to 1,046,688 units or only 50,000 short of sales of 1,096,245 in the year 1932. This mark will be passed when September sales are compiled late this month.

COMPANY BUYS EQUIPMENT

The Fort Pitt Bedding Company and Sealy Mattress Company, Liverpool street and Preble avenue, North Side, is actively supporting President Roosevelt's New Deal not only on paper, but in practice as well.

First among Pittsburgh bedding manufacturers to sign the President's blanket code and enlarge its working force accordingly, it is making various equipment purchases in support of the Buy Now and Buy American movement, as well as making repairs, painting its buildings and getting in A-1 shape to handle an even larger volume of business than heretofore.

Harry E. Wolf, vice president and general manager of the firm, when questioned on the subject, expressed the conviction that the New Deal is no longer a vague promise but is well on its way to realization.

FOREIGN BUYING BOOSTS TIN

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—(AP.)—Tin advanced sharply late in the week to the highest levels of the year thus far in sympathy with firmness of sterling and strength of London, which were coupled with vague rumors of a virtual corner on the tin market there. British interests were credited with purchasing here. Cornish tin producers have agreed to join the International Restriction Plan, it was reported.

Following a quiet week, lead demand suddenly revived toward the close, influenced by firmness abroad.

Although domestic demand for copper remained restricted at the unchanged basis of 9 cents for electrolytic in the Connecticut Valley, foreign demand broadened somewhat steadier prices.

The latter buying was associated with reports of one sort or another concerning monetary policies. While the report demanded improved sentiment, it failed to attract interest from home fabricators, who are still said to be awaiting final agreement on a copper code.

Rubber Market.

NEW YORK, October 2.—Crude rubber futures opened barely steady, 7 to 16 points lower. December 8.58@8.60c; January 8.78@8.80c; March, 9.03@9.08; May, 9.20@9.40.

UNCERTAINTIES HAMPER BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—(AP.)—Uncertainties regarding the government's future fiscal policies, labor troubles and the continuance of industrial improvement gave the bond market a rather spotty appearance during the past week.

Daily sales volumes generally were below normal as traders and investors exhibited renewed caution in taking on sizeable commitments. While highest grade corporation maturities had their doubtful moments, most of them finished a little better than even. Secondary issues, as usual, were influenced to a considerable extent by the movement of stocks and there were some sizeable losers on the week despite intermittent rallies.

The ending of the month and the third quarter found sentiment somewhat better. There was a growing feeling that fixed income securities would still have an imstructure place in the economic structure and that the government's efforts toward national recovery would be promoted, at least for the time being, through a broad expansion of credit rather than by drastic inflation of the currency.

RAIL ISSUES SAG

Railway liens probably suffered more than those of other categories. Here it was feared that labor difficulties, both in the coal fields and in other lines, might affect shipments. Car loadings for the week ended September 2, showed only a small gain over those of the previous week, but were some 57,000 ahead of those of the similar 1932 period. Earnings of some of the leading carriers were holding up fairly well. Some doubtful October interest payments were assured late in the week.

Industrial loans recorded only moderate recessions, with some specialties in this section actually showing gains. The lower-priced utilities were under pressure, however, as dividend omissions indicated doubt as to future earnings of some of the corporations in the light of probable lower rates and higher production costs.

FOREIGNS IRREGULAR

The foreign department was quite irregular throughout. German obligations rallied sharply on reports that the Reichsbank was supporting internal issues. Bonds of the gold standard countries backed and filled along with the movement of international dollar rates.

United States government securities were hesitant most of the time notwithstanding the optimistic implications of the administration's credit expansion program. The Federal Reserve system continued its steady open-market purchases with the excess reserves of member banks reaching the huge total of some $800,000,000.

BUSINESS

Statistics for August Reflect Results Under NRA

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

STATISTICS ARE becoming available which show the actual results of industrial operations under the NRA program.

Some of the results have been beneficial, but there have been others which have tended to offset some of the advantages.

An increase of 8.6 per cent in the number of persons employed in manufacturing industry and an advance of 9.2 per cent in average hourly earnings took place in August, according to the monthly survey of employment and wages made by the National Industrial Conference Board.

These changes apparently represent the influence of industrial codes and the signing of NRA agreements by employers.

But the increase in employment and hourly earnings was offset by a decline of 8.9 per cent in average hours of work per week during August. This decline, of course, was due to the downward trend of business which started at the end of July.

Cost of Living Balances Wages

THE SURVEY declared that average hourly earnings of wage earners in 25 manufacturing industries reporting to the Conference Board rose from 45.5 cents in July to 49.7 cents in August, or 9.2 per cent, while average hours of work per week fell from 42.6 to 38.8, or 8.9 per cent. The net result of these two developments was a slight rise of 10 cents, or 0.5 per cent, in average weekly earnings, which were $19.15 in July and $19.25 in August. Since, however, the cost of living rose relatively more between these two months than did average weekly earnings, real weekly earnings declined 1.8 per cent.

The number of persons employed increased 3.6 per cent in August over July and, since the contents of the average weekly pay envelope increased slightly in August, total payroll disbursements in the 25 manufacturing industries rose over 9 per cent. Total man-hours worked were 1.2 per cent less in August than in July. In the aggregate the changes noted reflect the Government's industrial policies rather than increased business activity.

Women Benefit More Than Men

FEMALE LABOR benefited relatively most from the adoption of minimum rates of pay. The average hourly earnings of women rose from 30.3 cents in July to 36.2 cents in August, or 19.5 per cent. Their average hours of work per week were reduced from 42.8 to 38.1, or 11 per cent. Average weekly earnings of female labor rose from $12.93 to $13.83, or 7 per cent.

Average hourly earnings of unskilled male labor advanced from 37.5 cents in July to 40.9 cents in August, or 9.1 per cent. A reduction of 10.0 per cent in the average hours of work, from 44.2 to 39.8, however, lowered the average weekly earnings in this class from $16.48 in July to $16.17 in August, or 1.9 per cent.

Average hourly earnings of semi-skilled and skilled male workers increased from 51.7 cents in July to 56.0 cents in August, or 8.3 per cent; average hours of work declined from 43.4 to 39.7, or 8.5 per cent, while average weekly earnings increased from $21.99 to $22.16, or 0.8 per cent, during the same period.

Soft Coal Output Shows 7.2% Decline

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—Soft coal production in the United States fell off 7.2 per cent the week ended September 23 as compared with the preceding week.

Total production for the week ended September 23 was estimated by the Bureau of Mines at 6,680,000 net tons, a decrease of 515,000 tons as compared with the preceding week. The output during the corresponding week in 1932 amounted to 6,325,000 tons, and in 1931, 7,510,000 tons.

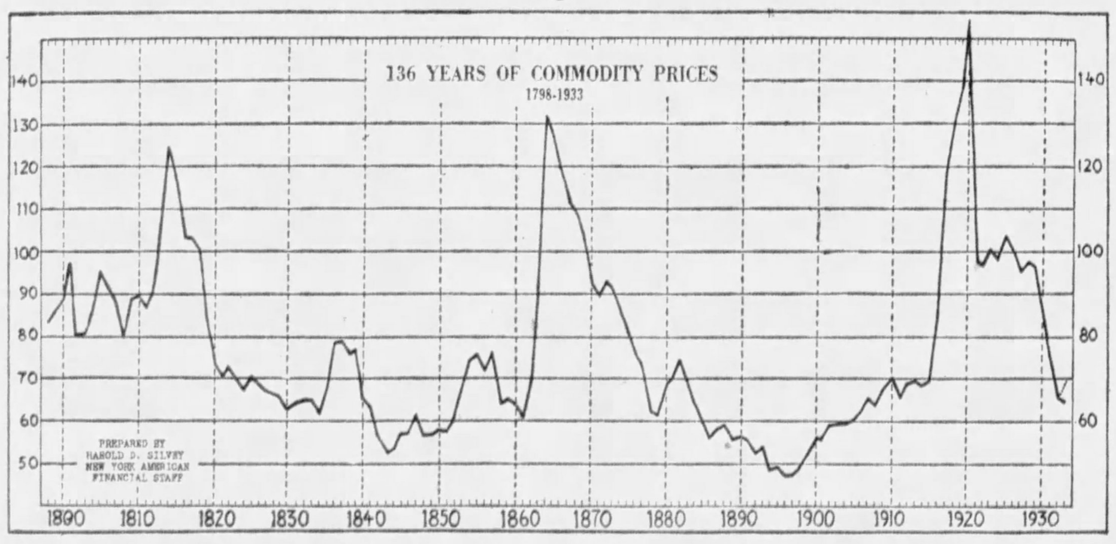
Commodities Index Principal Factor In Determining Value of the Dollar



By HAROLD D. SILVEY
Financial Staff, New York American

The violence of long-term even temporary, fluctuations in commodity prices is one of the first impressions gained from any analysis extending back over many decades, such as is presented in the accompanying chart.

Compiling an index is not a matter of taking a given set of figures or prices and averaging them. It is more intricate.

It is simple to take, for example, the price of a bushel of wheat for a certain day and compare it with the price for the preceding day or a year previous, etc. But that is not an index.

Then again, we might add the prices for two commodities and divide by two, getting a simply arithmetic average. If we did this with the same commodities on some other day, a comparison could be made, as follows:

| | August | September |
|---|---|---|
| Wheat, bushel | $1.00 | $1.05 |
| Cotton, pound | .10 | .09 |
| Totals | $1.10 | $1.14 |
| Divided by 2 | .55 | .57 |

But what right have we to compare a bushel and a pound? We have given a pound of cotton as much power in the simple average as a bushel of wheat. The average, therefore, must be "weighted" to be of more important use.

In weighing an index an arbitrary value is set for each ingredient. This is done by comparing the importance of each factor to the others. Continuing the supposition, let us decide that a bushel of wheat is worth twice as much as a pound of cotton. This means that wheat would have twice as much weight as cotton, as follows:

| | August Weight | Wtied Value | September Weight | Wtied Value |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Wheat, bushel | $1.00x2 | $2.00 | $1.05x2 | $2.10 |
| Cotton, pound | .10x1 | .10 | .09x1 | .09 |
| Totals | 3 | $3.10 | 3 | $2.19 |
| Divided by 3 | | .70 | | .73 |

The value of the two "weighted" commodities, therefore, rose three points between the two periods.

However, index numbers to have further values must be "anchored" to a certain period, so that comparison can mean more. It is the general rule to make the prices on a certain day or month or year the equivalent of 100. This simplifies the arithmetic involved in computing percentages.

The Labor Bureau's index uses the year 1926 for the base price, or 100. All other prices are recorded in percentages of their 1926 prices. Each individual item is weighted into a group; each group is given a certain weight in the aggregate index.

The figures used in the accompanying chart are yearly averages of the monthly totals. Recently the Labor Bureau inaugurated a weekly commodity index, which conforms quite closely with the monthly average. The Bureau has carried its index of 784 commodities back to 1890. Indexes for the years 1798-1889 have been prepared by Professors G. F. Warren and F. A. Pearson, of Cornell University.

Students of economies often use a commodity index to register the changes in the dollar. It would be absurd to state that the two-cent rise shown in our first commodity "table" represents a corresponding drop of two cents in the dollar's value. And even though the Bureau's index uses almost the entire commodity field, it would still be far-fetched to call that a finished measuring rod for dollar changes.

What must be taken into consideration is that commodity prices, while the principal factors, are only part of the general price level. Rents, clothing, realty values, security prices, etc., must be recognized.

FIVE DOLLAR PRIZE

MRS. RAYMOND BUCK,
1119 McCleary street, McKeesport.
SCHOOL LUNCH BREAD

Two cups cooked wheat cereal (warm).
One teaspoon salt.
One-third cup brown sugar.
One tablespoon butter.
One-half cup sweet milk.
One-half cake compressed yeast.
Whole wheat or graham flour, about four cups.
One cup chopped raisins.
One cup chopped dates.
One-half cup finely chopped walnut meats.

Add sugar, salt, butter to the warm cereal; soften yeast in the milk, which has been made lukewarm, and add to cereal mixture. Add flour (using graham or whole wheat) to make a soft dough, and knead thoroughly. Let rise until doubled in size. Knead again, add fruit and nuts, shape into loaves. When light, bake in moderate oven about 45 minutes.

It makes two small loaves and is an excellent substitute for cake in the school lunch box. An extra amount of cereal may be cooked at breakfast time and the bread can then be started immediately afterwards. I make it without the addition of any white flour except for kneading purposes.

FLOOD CONTROL ENLISTS BOOSTERS FOR U. S. HEARING

WATER SERVICE APPEAL LOST BY MONESSEN

Supreme Court Tells City to Put Case Before P. S. C.

In an unusual hearing that lasted no longer than 15 minutes today, the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania intimated that the city of Monessen will have to look elsewhere in its legal battle to supply water to some of its residents who are unable to pay.

Without even calling on legal representatives of the Tri-Cities Water Company, of Pittsburgh, on whose injunction, restraining the city from turning water into dwelling houses when consumers could not guarantee payment for it, the appeal to the Supreme Court was taken, the justices agreed that the remedy lay with the Public Service Commission.

HEALTH MENACE CHARGED

After hearing Attorney George H. McWhorter, counsel for Monessen, describe the water situation as a danger to the health of the city, Justice John W. Kephart said:

"You could have gone before the Public Service Commission and had the matter settled and you could also have had the same thing done through the Board of Health of Monessen."

Justice Alexander Simpson said:

"You have no right to ask a company to supply something that is not being paid for. If your theory is correct, you'd have everybody refusing to pay for water and then running into the courts to have it turned on to abate a nuisance."

FRAZER COMMENTS

Chief Justice Robert S. Frazer then turned to Attorney James Gregg, of Greensburg, counsel for the water company, saying:

"Under the law private property if taken for public purposes or injured or destroyed must be paid for. Mr. Gregg, if we want to hear your side of the case, we'll let you know."

The Common Pleas Court of Westmoreland County granted the water company an injunction against Monessen in January, 1932, after the city threatened to turn water into houses when the company failed to do so because occupants of the houses did not provide guarantors for their accounts.

TUBERCULOSIS SPREADS HERE

Predictions that malnutrition and overcrowded housing would result in a rise in the incidence of tuberculosis here are being borne out by an alarming increase in the number of new cases reported, according to Dr. C. Howard Marcy, medical director, although 1932 was itself responsible for several times the number reported at the league's clinics the previous year.

All the 150 beds in the league hospital are filled—have been filled for months—according to Miss Alice E. Stewart, superintendent. A large waiting-list is on file. Ninety-two per cent of those in the institution are being treated free. Assistance from state and county covers only a fraction of the cost. Even with the generous support of Pittsburghers, a large deficit will be incurred by the end of this year, she said, crippling the league's ability to cope with pressing cases.

MAGEE GAINING IN PRIMARY RECOUNT

Connelley Takes Lead In 1st Ward; Topped By 302 in 16th

The returning board today had completed two more wards, and the official count showed W. A. Magee regaining a count which, if continued, will push his lead beyond that given in the newspaper tabulation election night.

The official count of the First Ward is Magee, 796; English, 1,226; Duggan, 1138; Little, 1,170; Oliver, 1,041; and Connelley, 1,030, giving Connelley a lead of 234 votes over Magee.

The official count of the Sixteenth Ward is Magee, 1,584; English, 1,524; Duggan, 1,465; Little, 1,414; Oliver, 1,222, and Connelley, 1,282, giving Magee a 302 lead over Connelley.

Boards summoned to explain discrepancies in the tallies today were:

Pittsburgh—The First, Second, Third, Seventh and Eighth districts of the Eight Ward; the Eleventh of the Fifth Ward; the Sixth, Ninth, Eleventh, Twelfth, Sixteenth and Twenty-fifth districts of the Nineteenth Ward.

Glassport—The Third District of the Second Ward and the Second District of the Third Ward.

Secretary of War George S. Dern will probably be among the distinguished guests who will attend the seventh annual banquet during the national convention of the Propeller Club of the United States, set for the William Penn Hotel October 11-14.

The Port of Pittsburgh Club is host to the 250 delegates from all over the country. The Pittsburgh flood control plan, ship subsidies, river and harbor improvements, and the proposed Ohio River-Lake Erie Canal are subjects the convention is expected to discuss.

MEETS SISTER AFTER 23 YRS.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 2.—(AP.)—Mrs. Mary Jorgensen, 26, met her 25-year-old brother, William Anderson, here Sunday, and they had to be introduced.

It was 23 years ago, in Springdale, Pa., that they saw each other last, they explained after the introduction, made by Mrs. Jorgensen's husband.

Their parents separated at that time, each taking one child. Recently the mother, now Mrs. Henrietta Baumann, of Oakland, visited the Chicago fair and met old friends from Pennsylvania, who told her that her son was living in Pittsburgh.

The son, employed by a coal company, obtained a vacation, after hearing from his mother, and came west for a reunion.

Farmers Get New Lease On Life; Kicking Again

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

Gen. Johnson's retail charter brought the farmers to life. They're starting to oppose things again.

Well, as Lincoln said:

"You can't please all of the people all of the time if they're mad most of the time."

It's all over price control and proves the best things of life are free when they ain't in the hands of the speculators.

Seems like the battle between producer and consumer will never be settled until farmers stop raising too much when stout ladies are on 18-day diets.

The ultimate consumer ain't worried so much over a surplus of wheat in the summer as a deficit of strawberries in the winter.

If the NRA can straighten that out everything will be okay and the industrial administrator will be able to announce that caviar is moving in carload lots.

GIRL AWAITS DEATH INQUEST

Colleen Manns, 23, was to be turned over to the coroner today in connection with the fatal shooting of Roger Casilio, Pittsburgh patrolman, with whom she said she had been living two years.

Lieut. Frank Ferris, of the homicide squad, of which Casilio was a former member, lodged a murder charge against her.

The shooting occurred Friday night in an East End apartment. According to the girl's story she tried to stop a beating at the hands of the policeman.

BRADDOCK JAIL MOBBED, FREE 2

Out in Braddock where they take their politics seriously the year round, Mike Verosky, political chieftain, today was blamed for the arrest of Ray McDonough, 25, of North Braddock, and Malley Bradley, 23, of Swissvale, on charges of disorderly conduct.

The accusation was made by Edward McDonough, cousin of the former and a former police lieutenant, who said the two were arrested merely because they were adherents of his.

The arrested men were released after a mob of 200 stormed the Braddock jail.

As a counter move, McDonough said he and Bradley would charge Policeman Joseph Blane and Steven Sullivan, who arrested them, with assault and battery. The charges, he said, will be filed before Squire Charles Richards of North Braddock.

Burgess James Rose, of Braddock, today freed McDonough and fined Bradley $10.

PHILA. BRIDGE PLAYERS WIN

In a play-off yesterday the Philadelphia bridge team of four won the Pennsylvania state championship, 19 matches to 11, from a team of four Pittsburghers after Saturday night's finals in the Pennsylvania state tournament in the Fort Pitt Hotel had ended in a tie.

Milton C. Work, international expert; Olive A. Peterson, Capt. F. G. French and Charles Goren composed the Philadelphia team, while Dr. Wayne E. Booher, Bernard Summer, R. J. Henderson and Ray Auslander made up the Pittsburgh team.

HAYES DEPARTS FOR BISHOPRIC

With the cheers of nearly 1,000 men, women and children ringing in his ears, Bishop Ralph L. Hayes, left Pittsburgh last night for Helena, Mont., where he will be installed as the head of the diocese of Helena Thursday.

The Pittsburgher consecrated 10 days ago was accompanied to his new post by Bishop Hugh C. Boyle, Bishop Bernard Mahoney, of Sioux Falls, S. D., and a number of priests, including the Rev. Jerome D. Hannan, of the Catholic University, former secretary of Bishop Boyle, and Very Rev. Monsignor T. G. Carroll, chancellor of the archdiocese of New York.

JAILED BANKER BANKRUPT

Frank, who was convicted April 1, 1933, of embezzling funds of the bank of which he was president, is now serving a three-year term in Atlanta Penitentiary.

He listed liabilities of $1,147,764.03 and assets of $228,212.12. Of the liabilities $342,600 is secured claims and the remainder in unsecured claims or accommodation paper. The assets are in real estate, bills and notes collectable.

Forest Recruits To Get O. K. Here

Recruits for the Civilian Conservation Corps will be certified to the United States Army recruiting station here tomorrow by the Allegheny County Emergency Association.

They will fill vacancies caused by forest army members leaving after the first enlistment period. Recruits must be on emergency relief lists and have dependents.

FINAL PUBLIC PARLEY SET WEDNESDAY

Tri-State Leaders Urge Big Representation In Washington

Although the chances of success in obtaining $50,000,000 for the flood control project proposed by the Tri-State Authority appear bright, every effort is being made to have a large representation present when the proposition is given a final public hearing Wednesday before the Mississippi Drainage Area Board in Washington.

Telegrams urging the importance of the hearing have been sent to all burgesses and mayors in the tri-state district by Mayor John S. Herron, president of the authority.

In his telegrams Mayor Herron said:

"This is the final and only hearing and is vitally important to have complete attendance from all over the tri-state district. We have a good chance to land this great $50,000,000 project if we work hard and fast and show up strong at Washington on Wednesday."

In addition to making a united district effort to procure the construction of this project, Mayor Herron stated, the speakers will undertake to convince the board that the entire cost of the system of reservoirs should be borne by the federal government.

George S. Davison, president of the Flood Commission of Pittsburgh, said that this hearing is the final opportunity for the tri-state district to procure the installation of the eight reservoirs recommended by the United States Army engineers for immediate construction. He added:

"We believe we have a good chance to succeed. If we do, it means not only the expenditure of $50,000,000 of federal money in the tri-state district for labor and materials, the employment of a total of 30,000 men for the period of a year, both on the job and on supplying materials, but it means also the protection forever to the communities along the rivers from the periodical and destructive ravages of floods. We are depending upon each community in the district to send a large and representative delegation with a speaker qualified to present the case for the particular locality."

CAR INSPECTION WAR ON HERE

If your auto hasn't been inspected, watch out!

Twenty or more state highway patrolmen came to town today and, according to their headquarters in Greensburg, they mean business.

They have instructions to take the drivers of all uninspected autos before aldermen immediately—none of that last-warning business.

The patrolmen are scattered throughout the city. One of them said:

"We are not going to listen to any excuses. Motorists have had three months to get this inspection and if they haven't, why, they'll be hauled in front of the 'squire and it can cost them fines of $10 and costs."

Evangelist Offers 'Musical Sermon'

A series of revival meetings each night this week in Pittsburgh Evangelistic Temple, 611 Union avenue, North Side, will be climaxed Thursday night by J. R. MacMurray's "musical sermon." With a variety of instruments, MacMurray illustrates in tone the ebb and flow of religious sentiment.

MAJOR'S SON GOES TO WEST POINT

Schenley High Boy Elated at Chance To Be Officer

Like father, like son!

Today James N. Schrader, 17, Schenley High School senior, is walking on air. This time next year he will be marching on turf at West Point, if he succeeds in passing the competitive examinations next March.

The son of Maj. Otto H. Schrader, of the Department of Military Science and Tactics at the University of Pittsburgh, James is elated at receiving a presidential appointment from this district. He wants to be an Army man, like his father.

The Schrader family have been in Pittsburgh two years. James' dog, "Chang," was born in China, has traveled across the country several times and spent three years in Panama with the family. "Chang" likes everything about the West Point idea except that he will not be able to accompany his young master there.

ELK REGAINS LONG LOST JEWEL

SAMUEL C. TODD AND HIS BADGE . . . HE'S A LUCKY ELK

Emblem Returned 30 Years After Ruler Loaned It

No one will deny Samuel C. Todd is a lucky Elk.

The story of Todd's luck has to do with his past exalted ruler's jewel, presented him in 1902 by the Charleroi lodge after he had finished his term.

Todd's jewel, prized very highly by him, disappeared in 1903 and turned up last week—absent exactly 30 years.

Here's the story:

Todd loaned his jewel to a boy in 1903. The boy and his family moved away and with them went the jewel.

Thirty years pass, the scene shifts to the City Controller's office. Todd was sitting at his desk there last week when Attorney James Bane, of Washington, Pa., walked in and handed Todd the jewel.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Oct. 2.

Will Rogers

Roscoe Turner, who just broke the West-East record, already holding the East-West, was just out. Men like Turner, Hawk's, Doolittle, Post, Mattern and others have to promote the money, risk their lives, then do things that today are considered a stunt, but tomorrow are an everyday affair.

We used to think Japanese couldn't fly but I saw weekly where it looked like there was millions doing it. Lindbergh says Russia has a plane for every beard, so we got to speed up. Railroads, airlines, kidnaping jury convictions, and everything. Whatever is going to happen to us let it happen quick, and get it over with.

Yours, WILL.

Gertie Explains Why She Was With Dangerous Suspect

CHAPTER XXII.

Layton entered the room and deposited on the small table beside him ice, glasses, soda and whisky. Durant opened the bottle of soda, poured the whisky, and was stirring ice into the mixture when Gertie came through the bedroom door into the living room. She stared at him.

"Going to get soused, eh? Well, it's a funny thing, but every time I meet a suspicious guy I meet a man that hasn't guts, if you don't mind the word. You can't take it? Because I'm a double-crosser you have to get yourself stewed. I didn't think I was important enough in your life, Mr. Durant, to drive you back to the old stuff."

Durant looked at her. "You're not," he said. "Shall I ring for Layton to carry your bag?"

Crimson stained her face. "That's it, be calm and collected and indifferent so you'll live up to the picture of yourself. Well, that picture doesn't fool me. A person that was really calm and collected wouldn't change his mind about a person so quickly. You know what's the matter with you?"

Durant smiled. He lifted the high-ball glass to his lips. Like a cat the girl sprang across the room and knocked the drink from his hand. Her bosom heaving, she looked down upon the amazed Durant.

"You're not going to take a drink while I'm in this place!" she cried. "Make a tramp of yourself after I'm gone if you want, but you're going to be dead-cold sober while you listen to me. You're the great Mr. Jackson Durant, the Park avenue swell who got so bored with his ordinary law practice that he had to step over to Broadway and make himself a hero to the underworld. Okay. You've done a swell job. The racketeers say you're the greatest mouthpiece in New York; the police say you're the greatest detective that ever hit the town. Okay again. I think it's a better life than following the old-fogey career expected of you.

Gertie Explains

"But when you were of Park avenue you didn't distrust everybody, did you? The trouble with you is that for a year or so you've been mixing with gyps and crosses and two-timers until you don't believe anybody's on the level. Just because a girl ditched you, you think that all girls are ready to switch you. Well, they aren't. Here's one that isn't.

"I'm going to tell you something that you don't deserve to be told. You saw me in that Thirtieth street speak-easy with Murtoch, and you thought I was down there to tip him off about you. My God, can't you tell when somebody likes you? Are you so dumb that you'd think a girl would give the works to a man that acted the way you acted toward me?

"Why, you poor suspicious unhappy man, I went down to that speakeasy to hold Murtoch there. Did I want him going back to his apartment to find you there? Did I want that crazy gunman to put a bullet into you? I didn't tell you what

JEWISH FEAST DAYS BEGIN

Pittsburgh Jewry will celebrate the Feast of Tabernacles beginning Wednesday evening and continuing for eight days.

The first and last days of the feast are to be observed as holy days on which appropriate services are to be held in the city's synagogues.

The festival is, in intent and ceremonial, a thanksgiving feast of the type after which the American Thanksgiving Day was fashioned. In many congregations the central feature of the observance is the children's harvest service, a service of song and thanksgiving conducted by the children of the religious school.

HOW WOMEN CAN WIN MEN AND MEN WIN

The Favor of Other Men

Unless two pints of bile juice flow daily from your liver into your bowels, your food decays in your bowels. This poisons your whole body. Movements get hard and constipated. You get yellow tongue, yellow skin, pimples, dull eyes, bad breath, bad taste, gas, dizziness, headache. You have become an ugly-looking, foul-smelling, sour-thinking person. You have lost your personal charm. Everybody wants to run from you.

But don't take salts, mineral waters, oils, laxative pills, laxative candies or chewing gums and expect them to get rid of this poison that destroys your personal charm. They can't do it, for they only move out the tail end of your bowels and that doesn't take away enough of the decayed poison. Cosmetics won't help at all.

Only a free flow of your bile juice will stop this decay poison in your bowels. The one mild vegetable medicine which starts a free flow of your bile juice is Carter's Little Liver Pills. No calomel (mercury) in Carter's. Only fine, mild vegetable extracts. If you would bring back your personal charm to win men, start taking Carter's Little Liver Pills according to directions today. 25c at drug stores.

Refuse "something just as good", for it may gripe, loosen teeth or scald rectum. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name and get what you ask for. © 1933, C.M.Co.

"I" about Cigarettes

Of all the ways in which tobacco is used the cigarette is the mildest form

YOU know, ever since the Indians found out the pleasure of smoking tobacco, there have been many ways of enjoying it.

But of all the ways in which tobacco is used, the cigarette is the mildest form.

Another thing—cigarettes are about the most convenient smoke. All you have to do is strike a match.

Everything that money can buy and everything that science knows about is used to make Chesterfields.

There are other good cigarettes, of course, but Chesterfield is the cigarette that's milder, the cigarette that tastes better. Chesterfields satisfy—we ask you to try them.

FEARS OF WAR GRIP LEAGUE ASSEMBLY

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND

(Copyright, 1933, Universal Service, Inc.)

GENEVA, Oct. 2.—European war or peace is in a delicate balance at Geneva.

As the menace grows, prospects of Europe's repaying the United States the billions of dollars borrowed for the last war grow more and more gloomy.

Even Germany, which partly defaulted and partly declared a transfer moratorium on private debts to America, demands her share of arms, apparently convinced she can find the millions of dollars necessary for military purposes.

In the 12 years I have been coming to Geneva, I have never seen the League of Nations so deeply in the grip of paralyzing fear, so helpless in the face of a looming crisis, and so utterly leaderless.

Premier Mussolini has sought to seize leadership for Italy under guise of a mediator, but he has been frustrated partly by France and partly by the obstinacy of Chancellor Hitler, of Germany.

So serious is the disarmament deadlock with Germany, and so dark the outlook that at present the urge to oratorical declaration in the league assembly is silenced under the weight of forebodings.

The intensely complicated problem of disarmament is complicated simply because there is so much mistrust and lack of sincere desire to disarm, with all its cross-currents, its intrigues and its false facade of favorable utterances by statesmen.

With his "soldier-playing" making Germany a "nation in uniform," Hitler has achieved complete encirclement and isolation of Germany. France is taking full advantage of this. She demands that Hitler must demonstrate his peaceful intentions.

France refuses to disarm for four years and Germany is not to be given arms in that period—that is the outline. If Hitler refuses to sign such a convention, France will interpret it as intent to re-arm, which the French propose to take steps to prevent.

The French military keep talking of a "preventive war" and in usually well-informed league circles, there is unconfirmed whispering that the British cabinet has secretly appointed a committee to study an economic blockade of Germany, not only for its probable effect on the reich, but its reaction upon Britain.

BALKAN PEACE PACT FORSEEN

ISTANBUL, Oct. 2.—(AP.)—Former Premier Venizelos, of Greece, whose visit here coincides with that of King Alexander, of Yugoslavia, and is part of an intense political activity in the Balkans, declared smilingly in an interview today:

"We are on the eve of a Balkan Locarno."

King Alexander will arrive from Ankara, the capital, tomorrow after an interview with President Mustapha Kemal Pasha, and will receive Venizelos, who postponed his departure from Istanbul to participate in conversations which political circles here believe will be the most important move yet taken toward the realization of a Balkan pact.

The visit, the Turkish official press said, may pave the way for a Yugoslavian-Turkish accord, facilitating subsequent agreements with other Little Entente members, Rumania and Czechoslovakia, besides Yugoslavia.

Nazi Booms Farm Status With Fete

BERLIN, Oct. 2.—(AP.)—All Germany joined yesterday in celebration of a harvest thanksgiving such as the country has never before witnessed.

It was a day for farmers, whose status the Nazi regime is determined to raise to a "nobility of labor." All the resources of Nazi propaganda were called into play. Cities and towns in all corners of the land were profusely decorated, beflagged and ornamented with harvest emblems.

Von Hindenburg is said to be in excellent health and spirits.

Hitlerite Activities In Ukraine Reported

PARIS, Oct. 2.—(AP.)—Former Premier Edouard Herriot, in a magazine article to be published today, reports that on his recent trip to Russia he observed Hitlerite activities in the Ukraine with "evident desire for expansion toward the East."

FOES OF HITLER ACT TO EXTEND BOYCOTT

A resolution to press the boycott against German-made goods was passed at a meeting of the Jewish People's Committee Against Hitlerism, in the Irene Kaufmann Settlement last night. More than 400 attended.

Speakers were Max Jenkins, Albert Solly Mazer, Joe Mankin, of Pittsburgh, and J. Singer, of New York. Harry Simon, chairman of the committee, presided.

Conditions in Germany will be brought to the attention of merchants and consumers by the committee, in hopes of making their stand against Hitler and German-made goods effective.

The organization intends to operate cars through the Pittsburgh district with banners telling of the stand against Hitler, and the condition of Jews in Germany.

Report of German Crucifixion of Jews Unverified

VIENNA, Oct. 2.—(AP.)—(AP.)—The Socialist newspaper "Der Morgen" printed an account from Linz, Austria, today which said the post-mortem of a German Jew whose body was found floating on the Danube revealed he was "tortured to death" and "apparently crucified."

A tailor's label indicated he was from Nurnberg, Germany. Linz is on the Danube.

In reply to an Associated Press representative's query to officials in Linz, it was said the died violently, "whether from a fall or from a blow on the head could not be determined," but that indications of torture or crucifixion were completely lacking.

WORLD UPTURN REPORTED TO LEAGUE

GENEVA, Oct. 2.—(AP.)—A steady improvement in the world's economic situation, especially in the United States, was reported by various official sources today of 50 nations attending a meeting of the Economic Commission of the League of Nations Assembly.

Open satisfaction was expressed by the delegates following the reading of the official report by the commission's reporter, Augusto Schmidt, Estonian minister to Rome, citing increased production and diminishing unemployment throughout the world.

This was followed by a statement by Alexander Loveday, head of the league's financial section, showing that the monthly trade returns of 49 nations during July, representing nine-tenths of the world's trade, show a value greater than in July, 1932.

World exports rose 10 per cent between April and July, the statement said. It added:

"The volume of industrial production in the United States was 70 per cent greater than during the 12 preceding months."

GERMANS LIMIT SUNDAY DINNER

BERLIN, Oct. 2.—(AP.)—A well-disciplined German public limited its Sunday dinner yesterday to one "hot pot," without trimmings, soup, dessert and fruit, costing not more than 50 pfennings (about 17 cents).

The gastronomic restrictions were in accordance with a government injunction putting each German on his honor to limit his eating and turn over the balance of what the usual Sunday dinner would have cost to the winter relief fund.

Restaurants, from the de luxe variety to the humblest of cheap eating houses, restricted their menus to the prescribed "Eintopfgerich." Dining cars on trains, even the special cars carrying diplomats to the big harvest festival at Hamelin, were subjected to the same rule.

VARIED RUMORS KEEP MARKET ERRATIC

By LEWIS HANEY

Professor of Economics, New York University.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—Stock market averages lost three or four points last week, and bonds also showed an average decline.

According to the broader composite averages, the market has now fallen somewhere between six and nine points in two weeks, and is from 11 to 16 points under the July peak.

It has shown a highly erratic and uncertain performance, and especially so on Friday and Saturday. Many traders were badly "whipsawed" on these days, as was the case two weeks ago.

What else can one expect when conflicting rumors play upon such a "thin" affair as the market now is? Bid and asked quotations are far apart in many cases, and the absence of speculative interest is seen in the tendency of actual transactions to occur at prices near the bids.

Toward the end Saturday a sharp rally saved the market from closing at levels which would have seriously threatened a collapse. Doubtless there was some short covering, but apparently some constructive buying occurred in gold and other metal stoocks.

The most hopeful possibility is that the more urgent liquidation has been completed, and that this was sensed by operators on the short side.

SHORT INTEREST BUILT

On the bull side one can say that an appreciable, though cautious, short interest has been built up. The closing average has now held practically steady for four successive days, and the way in which the market was "saved" from a wide-open crack Saturday may be significant.

The period of declining trend has now nearly equalled the usual expectation for an intermediate reaction, and the amount of the decline may be enough to "correct" the immediately preceding rise.

In fact, it seems to me that the market is back to a level at which it should be able to hold, unless conditions are a good deal worse thany many suppose.

In the first place, a good many stocks are finally and conclusively filling the wide "gaps" they made on the big jumps of May 27 or June 19. (Some of the utilities have lost all the ground gained during the Roosevelt bull market). This should mean that at least the worst of the summer's speculative excesses have been corrected by liquidation.

In the second place, the comprehensive averages are down close to top levels made on the upswings in January, March and September last year. Unless technical conditions are worse than appears on the surface, that should be a tenable level, for a while here.

CLOSE TO 1931 MARK

In the third place, (1) the present level is close to the point where the averages were at the end of 1931, and (2), the curve of business activity is also somewhere in the same neighborhood.

Of course, the significance of the last point depends largely upon whether the outlook for profits is as good now as then, but it would seem that the level might hold until that point becomes somewhat clearer.

As to the inflation factor, I can see no possibility of anything in the shape of "stabilization" that would amount to more than (1) some experiments in regulating foreign exchange rates, and (2) vague utterances about revaluation sometime.

There is not likely to be any early revaluation of the dollar in terms of gold, which is the only thing that will bring real stabilization.

Sagging business, increasing maladjustments and strikes, and great monetary uncertainty are the main bear points, and there are the remains of over-bulled positions in some stocks.

While I do not expect much further decline here, and would not be surprised at an early rally, I think it wise to await administration moves, business developments and market leadership before taking any position on the trend.

STOCK MARKET MULLS ABOUT HESITANTLY

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—The uncertainties apparently overweighed certainties in financial markets today and stocks and staples mulled about hesitantly in trading which verged on the dullest of the year.

Equities, led by the recently hard-pressed American Telephone, were for sale at reduced prices in the first hour. There was no rush of buyers, however, and the ticker tape moved lazily. Although the activity was still at a minimum in later proceedings, some of the metals rallied and transformed early declines into small gains. The alcohols and oils also steadied, but with little enthusiasm.

Grains, cotton and other commodities generally recorded unimportant changes. Bonds were irregular. The dollar suffered an early slump in terms of leading European exchanges, but later got back most of its losses.

Shares of U. S. Smelting showed a small advance after being down more than two points. Issues of Cerro De Pasco, McIntyre Porcupine, Dome, International Nickel and American Smelting were fractionally higher. American Commercial Alcohol, National Distillers, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, Standard Oil of California, Socony, Deere, New York Central and Woolworth steadied. American Telephone was off nearly three and Consolidated Gas 1. General Motors, Case, Union Pacific, Chesapeake and Ohio and General Electric eased. United States Steel held about even.

There were some indications that the recently timid bear has grown somewhat bolder. Brokers reported sizeable expansion of the short interest in stocks last week and attributed Saturday's late recovery partly to cautious covering by operators who were rather fearful of remaining "out on a limb" over the week-end in view of possible announcements from Washington or Hyde Park.

Of particular interest to the speculative contingent was the apparent inclination of the security markets to ignore the movements of forcign exchanges in terms of the dollar. While market observers are still divided as to the possibilities of near-by stabilization of the American monetary unit, some bankers are of the opinion that this cannot be effected immediately because of the international situation. They hold that, aside from the cloudiness of the domestic picture, it would be extremely difficult for the administration to put a new gold value on the dollar without some sort of an understanding with France and England.

At the same time, it is said, it would be highly hazardous to attempt to assign a range for dollar-pound-franc rates while the war-debt problem is still solutionless. If this were settled, bankers believe, the road to stabilization might be reasonably clear. A renewal of conversations on international debts will begin soon with the arrival here of a delegation from Great Britain. Opinions as to whether currency stabilization will be discussed along with the debts are still rather conflicting.

Market analysts, in the meantime, while considering various momentary bearish implications in domestic developments, are generally hopeful for the "long pull." The liquidation and short-selling of stocks during the past week or more, they believe, have at least put the market in a stronger technical position than it has been for some time.

GIANTS, NATS ON EDGE FOR WORLD SERIES GAMES

SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS

SPORT COMMENT

By James J. Long

Cronin's Staff Underrated. Bucs Second Ten Times.
Crowder, Whitehill Stars. Stribling's Sorry Finish.
Unreckon Hubbell Defeat. Wash-Jeff Steals Show.

SENATORS' PITCHERS TAKEN TOO LIGHTLY

It's hardly to be questioned that, on paper, the pitching edge in the world series starting tomorrow is on the side of the Giants. But it's only the presence of such an exceptional moundsman as Carl Hubbell on the New York staff that makes the difference. Otherwise, the edge is not nearly so wide as it is figured to be in some circles; by no means wide enough to assure that the Terrys are going to have the better of the slab argument right through the derby. Don't make the mistake of thinking that the Senators themselves haven't got a few guys who can throw that ball.

Alvin Crowder

Reading some of the slab dope on the series that tells only of the greatness of the New York flinging corps, a stranger to baseball or to the American League might get the impression that Washington doesn't have any pitchers, or that, at best, the staff is only of about the same grade as that of the Phillies or the White Sox. As a matter of fact, the club that can win a pennant without good pitchers doesn't exist.

CROWDER WINS 124 GAMES IN SIX YEARS

To begin with, Joe Cronin's staff is headed by a man who in the last six seasons won 124 games, an average of more than 20 victories a year. And in one of those seasons he was with a sixth-place club, in another with a fourth-place team, and only this year with a pennant winner. That's the record of Alvin Crowder, and no other right-hander has approached it.

The only hurler in either big league who has beaten Crowder's mark is Lefty Grove, of the A's. Grove has won 152 games in the last six campaigns, but in three of those seasons he had a powerful pennant-winning club behind him. In the last two years Crowder has won 50 games, and not even Grove could equal that.

Don't overlook Earl Whitehill, either. He won 22 games this year, and while with Detroit he showed more victories than defeats in all but three of his nine seasons.

The pitching strength of the Senators does not end there. They have in Walter Stewart, a southpaw, one of the leading five pitchers in the Harridge circuit; a right-hander of class in Monte Weaver, held back by illness and injury until two months ago, and the best relief man of 1933 in Jack Russell.

HUBBELL WOULDN'T BE FIRST ACE TO FAIL

What if Hubbell should fail to get away with his expected victory in the first game of the series, or in later games? It would be a terrific jolt to Giant morale, with a corresponding jump in Washington confidence. Many National League supporters appear to be taking it for granted that Carl has the opener in his pocket already, with no thought of the possibility of failure. Yet there have been series this year in which Hubbell fell down in the starter and it took Hal Schumacher to put the New York craft back on an even keel. It may happen again.

Grover Alexander

Hubbell wouldn't be the first ace to fall short of series expectations. Grover Alexander was just as big a hope for the Phils against the Red Sox in 1915. He was lucky to win the opener and that was his only victory. Even the great Christy Mathewson twice lost two games in a world series. So did Burleigh Grimes and Three-Finger Brown. Other stars to suffer two defeats in one derby were Deacon Phillippe, Eddie Plank, George Mullin, Wild Bill Donovan, Rube Marquard, Hippo Vaughn, Art Nehf, Carl Mays, Joe Bush, Walter Johnson, Stanley Coveleskie and George Earnshaw. Nothing is certain in the post-season scrap.

PIRATES' TENTH FINISH IN SECOND PLACE

Pittsburgh fans who entertained strong pennant hopes early in the season, when they saw the Pirates as the best club in the league, will hardly forget their disappointment in the solace offered by the Bucs yesterday in clinching second place by cleaning up the closing doubleheader. But at least it's the next best thing possible, and they beat out other pennant aspirants like the Cubs and the Braves and the Cardinals, if you can find any consolation in that. Incidentally, the Braves, by finishing fourth, won that $5,000 bonus for Bill McKechnie in the last game under his original four-year contract.

The Pittsburgh club has finished second oftener than in any other position. This is the tenth time, including one tie with New York in 1908, that the Pirates have been runners-up in the city's 47 National League seasons. They have landed first sixth times; third, seven times; fourth, six times; fifth, four times; sixth, five times; seventh, four times, and eighth, five times.

SAD FATE ENDS STRIBLING'S RING DAYS

Young Stribling figured in some unsatisfactory fights, and there were spots in his ring record that invited criticism, but that his boxing career should be ended by such a tough break as the loss of a foot in an automobile-motorcycle collision, after hundreds of battles without serious injury, is regretted by every follower of the sport.

This district always had a particular interest in Stribling, as it was in Glassport, in his circus days, that he received from P. J. Morissey, of that borough, the first boxing lessons that formed the groundwork for his colorful career.

GREAT FIGHT REAL VICTORY FOR PREXIES

Wash-Jeff was picked as merely a sort of sparring partner for Pitt in the opening football game, and what those Prexies, under John Fife, captain of the day, did to Clan Sutherland in holding the local stars scoreless for 56 minutes is going to stand as one of the greatest exhibitions and one of the big upsets of the season. The nine points scored in the final four minutes made Pitt the winner in the records, but in every other respect it was a real victory for Hank Day's inspired team.

John Fife

Attributing the close call of the Panthers wholly to weaknesses and mistakes on their own part isn't doing justice to W. & J. - It was because the Prexies wouldn't let them that the Sutherlands didn't make a better showing, and it was the magnificent fighting spirit, deceptive hidden-ball attack and all around excellent play of the Washington boys, rather than Pitt's shortcomings, that caused the near-humbling of the Blue and Gold. Give the Prexies credit. They made the game and that 9-to-0 score was a victory for them. They were supposed to be stooges and they stole the show.

HOW CARL HUBBELL, GIANTS' ACE, WILL LOOK TO THE WASHINGTON SENATORS

The name of Carl Hubbell, greatest pitcher of the year, is on the tongues of all the baseball fans with the world series only a day away. The southpaw screwball ace is considered the Giants' chief hope for success and will pitch the opener. This is a Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture.

STRIBLING FOOT LOST, FIGHTS FOR LIFE

MACON, Ga., Oct. 2.—(AP.)—William Lawrence (Young) Stribling, heavyweight boxer, his ring career ended by the amputation of his left foot as a result of an automobile accident yesterday, was given a "fair" chance for his life by physicians today.

His mother and father reached his bedside early this morning. The elder Stribling, known to the boxing world as Pa, who has been his son's manager and adviser, came from Texas, and Mrs. Stribling from the Stribling plantation in South Georgia.

Pa remained at the bedside until an early hour, leaving Mrs. Stribling there while he took a short rest.

Mrs. W. L. Stribling, Jr., wife of the fighter, is in the same hospital convalescing following the birth of a third child, a son. Her family physician informed her of Stribling's injuries, which also included a fractured pelvis.

SPEAKS TO WIFE

She was permitted to speak to him after an X-ray had been taken. She bore up well after they exchanged greetings. Later she saw him again. Stribling asked:

"How's the baby?"

She replied:

"Fine."

Mrs. Stribling was crying when she was wheeled back to her room.

Hospital physicians said Stribling looked somewhat improved this morning and had spent as satisfactory a night as possible.

Traveling 35 miles an hour yesterday on a motorcycle, the "King of the Canebrake," en route to a hospital to visit his wife and their third child, born two weeks ago, waved a greeting to a friend passing in an automobile. He failed to observe another car behind that of his friend, Roy Barrow.

The ring veteran who packed 300 engagements into 15 years of fighting without receiving a permanent scar, attempted to dodge the second car, but was too late. The fender of the automobile struck Stribling, crushing his

Senators Rule 6-to-5 Favorites as Shift Occurs in Betting

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—(AP.)—The Washington Senators and the New York Giants today took their last workouts at the Polo Grounds, where tomorrow they will meet in the opening game of the 1933 world series, but there were few developments of interest to add to what everyone already knows about the two teams.

Manager Joe Cronin, of the Senators, still declined to name his starting pitcher, saying the choice still rested among Alvin (Gen.) Crowder, Earl Whitehill and Wally Stewart. The rail birds who watched the final workout, however, were impressed with the fact that only Whitehill, of the trio, did any pitching today.

SLUGGERS GET AIM

Heinie Manush, Leon (Goose) Goslin and Joe Kuhel, three of the four big guns of the Senators' attack, gave the Giants, clustered on the clubhouse steps to watch the workout, something to think about as they pounded the offerings of Bill McAfee and Bob Burke to all corners of the lot. Goslin and Manush especially were taking a toehold and parking the ball in the nearby right-field stands.

The Senators worked out for two hours and were followed on the field by the Giants for a similar drill.

Unlike Cronin, Manager Bill Terry, of the New Yorkers, made up his mind a long time ago as to who would pitch the first game and it's still Carl Hubbell, the ace left hander of the National League.

The only development of note in the Giants' camp was a cold contracted by Manager Terry and which has settled in his left eye. The eye was bloodshot today but Bill said the trouble was responding to treatment and he would be in good shape by tomorrow.

ODDS TAKE DROP

An overnight flood of New York money has forced the betting odds, favoring the Senators, down to 6 to 5 from 10 to 7, with prospects of a further shortening to even money unless stronger support developed for the American League champions.

The Giants' business office announced yesterday that beginning at 9 o'clock today reserved seats would be sold separately for either the first or second games. This ruling, reversing the Giants' previous policy of disposing of tickets only in strips of three, covering the first, second and sixth games, does not apply to the 4,000 box seats, all of wich have been sold, nor to the 5,000 bleacher seats which will go on sale the morning of each game.

WAGNER LOOKS FOR GIANTS TO WIN

By HONUS WAGNER

Baseball's Greatest Player; Now Coach of the Pittsburgh Pirates, With Whom He Starred for 21 years.

In my article on Saturday you may recall I said that, in my opinion, the Washington Senators, man for man, constituted a better ball club than the New York Giants.

Honus Wagner

In view of my statement you may be surprised when I predict that the Giants will win over the Senators in the coming world series. I do not, however, look for a clean sweep.

Now I fully realize the risk one assumes when he makes so bold a statement about a short series, for we all know that it is an easy matter for any club to go into a slump for a few days, and if you slump for several days in the October fights, you are all washed up.

PICKS GIANTS TO WIN

But I have given the matter due deliberation. If the two clubs were to fight it out over a long period I might have a different story. But the way the roads are I lean toward Bill Terry's club. Here are a few of my findings:

First—The series will open at the Polo Grounds, which is one of the trick parks of baseball. The Senators play half of their games at a big ball park. Some of them are sure to be a bit confused by the closeup walls of the Coogan's Bluff layout.

Second—Carl Hubbell is almost a sure bet to pitch the first game. Hubbell has a "screw ball" which fades away from right hand batters. Even though the fences are close in New York, it is hard for a hitter, especially a right hand batter, to get the range on the fences, as the low offerings drop away from such a hitter. This is a decided advantage in favor of the Giants.

Third—Many of the Giants' batters have stressed the knack of hitting into these same short stands. Unless an opposing pitcher is very careful and possessed of good control, any of these fellows may wreck a game.

Fourth—Hal Schumacher, who is likely to start the second game, has a mean sinker that baffles good hitters.

EXPECTS LONG SERIES

The chances for the Giants winning the opening game are strong, provided Hubbell has the same stuff to show the Senators which he had on display for the Pirates. I would not be surprised if Carl wins two games of the series. Schumacher should be able to land a victory and the same goes for Fred Fitzsimmons.

I would like to make it strong, however, that I do not look for any clean sweep by the Giants. The clubs are evenly matched and both are loaded with fight. Even if the Giants should win the first two scraps they would have to battle the Senators in their own yard and Cronin's team certainly would throw everything they have at the enemy.

I have a feeling that the series will run at least six games and that it will be filled with aggressive baseball.

(Tomorrow—The Opening Game.)

NELSON WINS HEARST SWIM MARATHON

By WARREN BROWN

Universal Service.

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—Marvin Nelson, Ft. Dodge, Ia., won the $10,000 William Randolph Hearst 15-mile marathon, held as the athletic feature at a Century of Progress yesterday.

The Iowan, recent winner of the Toronto marathon, covered the 15 miles in 7 hours 22 minutes 24¾ seconds, a new world record.

He was far ahead, at the finish, of George Blagden, Memphis Tenn., swimmer, from whom he had taken the lead during their second circuit of the north and south lagoons within the Exposition grounds.

Blagden, unable to keep the pace with Nelson, after the lead had changed, swam steadily on, to finish in second place, and take down the prize of $2,500.

WINNER GETS OVATION

Nelson, for all of his record-breaking effort, finished strong. He scorned any assistance as he emerged from the waters of the lagoon.

A crowd that taxed the regular stands at the North lagoon to its capacity, and overflowed into the runways and along the boardwalk, gave Nelson a tremendous ovation.

Gianni Gambi, the Italian and European champion, dropped out, having been in third place almost continuously, up to that time, and W. F. Goll, of Brooklyn, N. Y., moved into that coveted position, which carried with it $1,000 prize money.

For a while, towards the last two or three miles of the race, fifth place belonged to Dorothy Nalevaiko, of Glen Cove, N. Y. She was the leading woman swimmer of the field of more than 100 men and women that had started. She displaced Evelyn Armstrong, of Detroit, during about the tenth mile of the race.

LOCAL STARS WITHDRAW

Mrs. Myrtle Huddleston, of New York, world champion woman endurance swimmer, was painfully hurt at the start when she was kicked in the side by another contestant, and may have been internally injured. She was taken to a hospital for observation.

Nate Kaufman, Pittsburgh entrant, withdrew after covering nine miles. He was advised to withdraw by the officials, because, while still strong, he had no chance to finish in the money. Eli Radakovich, of Duquesne, left the water after six miles of effort.

WASH-JEFF BATTLE VALUABLE LESSON TO PITT

MAJOR ELEVENS VICTIMS OF UPSETS

By JESS CARVER

Viewed through the eyes of those citizens who swear allegiance to Northwestern, Tulane, Vanderbilt, Villanova, Waynesburg or Allegheny, the Pitt and Wash-Jeff gridiron embroglio of Saturday was a smashing triumph for the Panthers.

It would be interesting, to say the least, to look into the mind and heart of Dr. Sutherland, and it was interesting, even educational, to be on hand when he gathered his Panthers about him this afternoon.

The good Doctor did not take his young men to task for not rolling up a score on the Presidents. That is not being done these days, in case any future opponents of the Red and Black have any such ideas in mind. But what the Doctor did tell his boys had to do with the grade school exhibition of blocking they gave, and of the rather silly way in which they were made to look by an offensive which should have been more familiar to them.

PITT BETTER OFF

That game Saturday was the best thing that could have happened to Pitt. The Panthers have a swell chance to go places and do big things in football this year, and the test by fire they received Saturday should work to their great advantage. They should and (unless Sutherland has completely lost his touch) they will be better football players by Saturday, which hardly will cause joy to reign in the vicinity of Morgantown.

There was one great truth born in Saturday's Pitt game and that is that Warren Heller was a GREAT halfback. Sutherland has three or four promising youngsters, one of whom may develop into a fair substitute for the departed Warren, but not this year.

In a respect, Pitt is far better off today than their neighbors, the Dukes. The Panthers have had any taints of over-confidence that may have been lurking in their systems knocked galley west, to say nothing of north, south and east. The Dukes, on the other paw, are in grave danger of thinking they are good, which, even though they are, is a very, very dangerous thing for we humans to know.

DUKES SHOW CLASS

The Dukes turned in a very workmanlike job of beating the Mountaineers Friday night. They committed one big error, which at the time looked like it might be a fatal one, but from then on in, they played heads-up football. They took advantage of every scoring opportunity, and on the whole conducted themselves in exemplary football manner.

If this college football league operated on the same plan as the big leagues of baseball, it would not be hard to imagine Pitt officials offering a handful of guards, tackles and halfbacks for Mister Art Strutt, the Mingo Junction youth who has zoomed to the heights as the best looking backfield man on the Duquesne campus.

Slippery Rock's victory over Waynesburg was hardly an upset. Edinboro beat Allegheny last year and there was no good reason why they should not have repeated Saturday. Geneva had a trying time with West Virginia Wesleyan, due mainly to the great play of Barnum, who only recently was a member of the Pitt varsity squad.

'Bugs' Ahead Of Series

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—Polo Grounds: We got here a day early to look at the National League baseball in the pickle vat.

What will Crowder and Whitehill do when they try to throw that cocained tomato in the Polo Grounds?

How will Schumacher and Hubbell feel when they endeavor to hook that polished rubber heel in Griffith Park?

If a Washington batter manages to bang one to the infield he won't be called out until Manager Terry pins his shoulders to the ground.

The Giant outfielders can ride polo ponies in Washington. The batter will be out if a Giant fielder can grab the American League baseball before it stops rolling.

Before going to the plate in Griffith Park the batter must hand a sealed envelope to the umpire. If he knocks one over the fence the umpire shall open the letter and find out if the batter really meant it or was trying to sacrifice.

If a Washington batter can knock a fair and square grounder to the pitcher's box in the Polo Grounds he will be penalized one stroke and can tee off again.

In case the boys don't like these rules, it looks like the whole thing will be a contest between Heydler's specked apple and Harridge's low-winged humming bird.

No matter who wins the arguments will start. And when you go into a barroom this winter you had better have your pockets full of baseballs.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF LAST SATURDAY: A STRANGE BET—Mr. Swaney had wagered he would travel from Cromwell, Ind., to California in less than 100 days. He was to start without a cent in his pocket, never beg for food or money, be accompanied by a dog, and both he and the dog were to weigh the same as when they started. Upon arrival he was to be the owner of $5. A final condition was that he was to look at his donkey all the way to his goal. Every point of this curious wager was fulfilled and California was reached in this bizarre fashion in 97 days. FROM CONVICT TO CONGRESS—After serving a term of a year and a day in Leavenworth Penitentiary for addressing a Minnesota banker as a "Robber of Orphans and Widows," Congressman Shoemaker, Farmer-Laborite, of Minnesota, recently was permitted to take his seat in Congress by an overwhelming vote. In the litigation which the same "Orphans and Widows" instituted against the banker, the former were upheld by the courts.

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—(AP.)—Green Bay, Wis., where professional football is cheered with college spirit, took on a doleful aspect yesterday when the Packers, the civic pride and joy, sank to lower obscurity in the National League.

The Packers, once the mighty czars of the pro loop, suffered their second straight defeat at Milwaukee at the hands of the New York Giants, 10 to 7. The defeat shoved the Packers down to ninth place in the standing with two losses and one tie.

SPARTANS COP THIRD

Equally important as the Packers' defeat yesterday was the Portsmouth Spartans' 7-to-6 triumph over the Chicago Cardinals for their third consecutive victory, and the Champion Chicago Bears' 7-to-0 victory over the Boston Redskins.

That pass tosser deluxe, Harry Newman, and the accurate toe of Ken Strong gave the Giants the game at Milwaukee. Strong booted a field goal 40 yards in the opening period after Monnetti, the Packers' quarterback had fumbled. An intercepted pass gave the Giants their second opportunity in the next quarter and a pass, Newman to Burnett, was good for a touchdown. Harry kicked the extra point. The Packers scored late in the last period on a pass, Monnetti, to Blood, who raced 20 yards to score.

BEARS BEAT BOSTON

The Boston Redskins, who held the Packers to a 7-to-7 tie, gave the Bears a tough battle for three periods.

Fistic battles featured the Spartans' victory. The Spartans opened the second period with a touchdown, Caddell carrying the ball over, and Presnell adding the extra point. Tipton, the Cards' hight half, grabbed a pass from Lillard and ran 50 yards for a touchdown in the same quarter. Lillard missed the extra point.

Nick Does Some Debunking Of World Series Dope

By NICK ALTROCK.

Well, friends and enemies, our Washington club is supposed to be handicapped in the first two world series games because they'll be using the National League baseball. And to hear the experts argufy, you would think the American loop's ball was crammed with jackrabbits while the N. L. agate was packed with zinc. Well, they have been kidding themselves.

We've been practicing with the National League brand the last few days and there is no more difference between the two kinds of horsehides than there is betwixt the black and white horses that Moran and Mack are always talking about. In fact, when our lads started bopping the National League product, the government had to take in the Washington Monument for fear we'd crack it like the Liberty Bell.

Nick Altrock

Pounding the National League hoss-skin the first two games is no more handicap than playing ping-pong with barrel heads. And what gives me a laugh on this item is that the folks who are saying the N. L. ball will affect us are the same ones that claim we won't be able to hit the Giants' pitchers at all. So if we aren't even going to get a foul off 'em, what difference does it make whether Hubbell-Schumacher-Fitzsimmons pitch golf balls or cannon balls?

'WHO'S AFRAID OF THE WOLF?'

Well, I see the certified public accountants have been whipping their adding machines and computing the winning players will get about $6,000 apiece. And what Uncle Nick can do with six grand is too long for a one-column story. But, with that wad snugly tucked away, who's gonna be afraid of the big, bad wolf a-sitting on the doorstep? Uncle Nick makes it a quartet by joining the Three Little Pigs and chirping:

"Not me!"

I see the experts have been smoking opium pills again and doping out our Washington club will bunt Travis Jackson to death on account of his trick knee. I do not claim these hasheesh prophets are all soaking wet, because we may dump a bunt now and then to give the Giants' third baseman some work. But why should we spend a series dribbling bunts down toward Jackson when there are so many fences to be busted and center field flagpoles to be split?

MASTER MINDS ARE OUT

However, there is going to be one lonesome spot in this coming series. It will be conducted without any Master Minds on the bench. The last time us Senators warred on the Giants, John McGraw was operating his medulla oblongate and trying to thought-wave us into defeat. A Giant couldn't even foul off a ball without getting the high sign from the old Silver Fox. But, even with Mac jabbing his skull into the fray, we still managed to take the Polo Grounders then.

This year the Giants will be managed from first base. And they tell me Bill Terry is quite a hand for wig-wagging communiques to his boys. For our part, Joe Cronin goes on the principle that the rest of his lads know a thing or two about baseball and they do not require cerebral flashes every five or six seconds. Watch and see how this works out.

OLEAN, N. Y., Oct. 2.—St. Bonaventure College owned a football victory over St. Vincent today, but there was little in the triumph over which the Bonnies could crow.

They defeated the Latrobe, Pa., collegians here yesterday in the opening game of the season, 7 to 2, after being outplayed all the way. In the second period, Zayachek hurled a long pass to Petrucelli that resulted in a touchdown and Zavachek booted a placement goal for the extra point.

St. Vincent scored its safety in the third period after the Bonnies had made one of their goalline stands. Carney broke through to block Zayachek's punt, the ball rolling outside the end zone. The lineup:

THIS SERIES 'DIFFERENT,' TERRY SAYS

By BILL TERRY

Manager New York Giants 1933 National League Champions.

The world series action of the last several years has been dominated by the sluggers, the Ruths and Gehrigs, Simmonses and Foxxes, but the 1933 title battle, I think, will follow a different pattern.

Bill Terry

Defensive play will be more strongly stressed. The pitching standards are high this year, for one thing, and, moreover, the pitchers have more powerful weapons with which to work. The "dead" National League ball, in the hands of pitchers like Hubbell and Schumacher, has taken the power from the sluggers' bats.

And with the power of the sluggers broken, the worth and value of fielding skill is enhanced. There is a real chance that the fielders will be the thrill producers of the series. Teamed with the pitchers, I expect them to decide it.

A defensive world series, that is, a succesison of low-score battles, would be a perfect fit for the Giants. That's their type of baseball, the kind they've played all season. They have won 30 games by the margin of a single run.

I appreciate, of course, that the Washington club also is a well-balanced defensive unit. No club with Joe Cronin in the lineup could be weak defensively.

The Giants have no defensive weaknesses and we are ready for that tight little series. The tighter the better. We'll win.

PIRATES TAKE SECOND PLACE

Associated Press.

The Pittsburgh Pirates made secure their position as runners-up to the New York Giants in the National League yesterday as the curtain fell on the 1933 campaign, defeating the Cincinnati Reds in both games of a doubleheader. The scores were 7 to 5 and 6 to 5.

The second game went 10 innings as the Reds twice came from behind to tie the score. Finally in the Pirate half of the tenth, Swetonic, who had been doing a fine job of relief hurling, cracked out a single that scored Gus Suhr with the winning run.

Larry French, Pittsburgh's southpaw ace, was chased in the first game, but Swift turned in an excellent job of relief work.

The Chicago Cubs gained third place, walloping the St. Louis Cardinals, 7 to 1. Boston, thanks to a home run with the bases jammed by Wally Berger, made certain of a portion of the world series money by beating Philadelphia, 4 to 1, and taking fourth place.

In the American League, Babe Ruth pitched the Yankees to a 6-to-5 win over the Boston Red Sox; Washington was shutout in 11 innings by Rube Walberg as the A's won, 3 to 0; Cleveland lost to Detroit, 5 to 3, and the Chicago White Sox routed the St. Louis Browns, 5 to 1.

Although he failed to win any championships for himself or for his team, Lou Gehrig, of the Yankees, was the outstanding record-breaker of the season.

Gehrig smashed the major league "durability" record all to pieces as he played in every game for the Yanks for the eighth consecutive season. Starting the year with an unbroken string of 1,193 games to his credit, Gehrig went on to break the former record of 1,307, held by Everett Scott, on August 17 and lifted the mark to 1,350 games in yesterday's final game.

PITCHERS, EH? WE'RE READY —CRONIN

By JOE CRONIN

Manager, Washington Senators, 1933, American League Champions.

From what I have read and heard of the Giants' pitchers—I haven't seen any of them work this year — Manager Terry must have a wonderful staff. The records show they have done great work.

But I'm stating that our Washington club has some mighty fine pitching, too. I'm confident our pitchers could have made as much, if not more, headway in the National League as they have in the American League this year.

Joe Cronin

Terry seems to have a great pair in Carl Hubbell and Harold Schumacher. Some of our players have seen Hubbell pitch in recent seasons. From what they say and the way the records read, Hubbell must be one of the outstanding left-hand pitchers of modern baseball.

Schumacher has stopped the best of the National League batters often enough to warrant the praise he's getting. Fitzsimmons and Parmalee must have the goods. And Bell and Luque have been smart in pinches, particularly Luque.

But our Washington club has a great lot of pitchers to send into the world series. I'll stack our starting staff of Al Crowder, Earl Whitehill, Walter Stewart and Monte Weaver against any club's four in the American League, and I think that ought to go for the four best of any club in the National League.

Crowder I regard one of the finest right-handers in the business and the greatest "money" pitcher in baseball. He won more games than any other pitcher in the majors last year and seems likely to get this record again this year.

In Whitehill and Stewart, our Washington club has as fine a pair of left-handers as any other club in the big leagues can produce. With Washington, Whitehill has had his best season in his 10 years in the American League. Stewart has been one of our great assets in this pennant-winning campaign. Weaver, handicapped by illness up to August, has regained the form that made him a sensation last season.

I don't think Washington has any pitching problem on its hands.

STRIB FIGHTS FOR LIFE

left leg and sending him sprawling to the pavement.

Stribling's foot was left dangling and he was brought to the hospital here, where the member was amputated. Dr. A. R. Rozar, the surgeon, said:

"The foot was torn off at the ankle joint and the bones are broken so that another operation will be made as soon as the patient is strong enough."

In giving his version of the accident, Stribling said:

"I was on the right side of the road when all of a sudden a car loomed before me. I cut as far to the right as possible, and then it happened. The car hit me."

NURSE GIVES AID

A Miss Frances Jones, a nurse who was riding with Barrow, fashioned a tourniquet from her cape to stop the flow of blood from Stribling's leg and made bandages from her dress to bind the wounds.

Stribling did not lose consciousness at the scene. Barrow said as he ran to his aid, the fighter grinned:

"Well, kid, I guess it means there will be no more road work."

Early today he called for "something cool—ice cream or beer." The doctors ordered the beer.

The crash brought an end to Stribling's boxing career, which had seen him fight three world champions. Recently he won a newspaper decision over Maxie Rosenbloom, the light-heavyweight king, in Houston, Tex. It was his last fight.

HAD GREAT RECORD

Starting his ring life some 15 years ago, Stribling fought from coast to coast and abroad. He was often called "King of the Canebrakes" because he fought so many second-rate boxers in his quick hops about the country.

In 1923 he had two battles with Mike McTigue, then light-heavyweight champion. The first, in Columbus, Ga., brought about the famous controversy over Referee Harry Ertle's decision, which was changed three times before finally listed as a draw. In 1931 he was knocked out in the fifteenth roupd of his heavyweight championship fight with Max Schmeling, in Cleveland.

NET MATCHES STAGED

Five matches were played off in the McBride Park tennis tournament. The results: Loretta Johnson and Bus Noll defeated Louise Deardroff and Frances Amedeck, 6-1, 4-6, 6-2; Mrs. Neff and Juvenates the entire scalp. Harry Dugan defeated Jean Murdock and Harry Buergin, 6-4, 5-7, 6-1; Elizabeth Mooney and Wilford Bost defeated Mrs. and Mr. Russell Loach, 6-3, 6-3; Geneva Mort and Charles Badine defeated Mrs. Hallam and Charles Delahanty, 6-4, 4-6, 9-7; Hilda Johnson and Russell Ross defeated Audrey Eckbreth and John Degenkolb, 6-3, 6-0.

PAUL JONES WINNER

The Paul Jones Club, of Beaver, defeated the McKeesport Club in the first two games of the class A championship eliminations yesterday at Bridgeville, winning by scores of 2-1 and 5-1.

LUTHER WINS PRO MEDAL

By TOM BIRKS

Completing his round with six successive pars after having disfigured his card with three 6s, Ted Luther, of Valley Heights, the defending champion, won medalist honors in the qualifying round of the annual championship tournament of the Tri-State Professional Golfers' Association at the Oakmont Country Club today.

Luther's score was 39-38—77, two strokes better than that of Emil Loeffler, of Oakmont, who had 40-39—79. Vincent Eldridge, of Highland, was third with 80.

Par for the course and Luther's card:

Charley Manning, of Shannopin, withdrew because of illness after turning in a creditable qualifying score of 83, and three entrants were given byes for the first round of match play this afternoon.

The feature first round duel involved Luther and Perry Del Vecchio, of Greensburg, who met in the final last year. The pairings:

CLASS AA TEAMS VICTIMS IN UPSETS

By JULIUS LEVIN

Members of the class AA division of the Western Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic League, considered to be the topnotchers in district scholastic football circles, continued to feel the wrath of opponents' playing in lower classifications during the past week-end.

Washington, Wilkinsburg, Greensburg and Clairton were the victims in a flock of upsets. Clairton and Greensburg being involved in tie games, while Washington and Wilkinsburg were handed startling setbacks.

UNIONTOWN COMES BACK

Uniontown, pushed around by Scott High, of North Braddock, and Trinity, of Washington, got some satisfaction in holding George Woodman's Clairton eleven to a scoreless draw, while Greensburg, always a topnotcher in scholastic football, found itself held to a 6-6 stalemate by Ramsay High, of Mt. Pleasant, a class B opponent.

The biggest surprises of the weekend, however, were furnished by Pop Wenrich's Crafton High eleven, which defeated Wilkinsburg, 13-0, and Burgettstown Union, which scored a 19-0 triumph over Washington. Crafton, beaten by Coraopolis and Mt. Lebanon in its first two games, was considered a setup for Wilkinsburg.

ROCHESTER BEATEN

The class A race also was marked by a number of surprises, the outstanding one being the 7-6 defeat of Rochester at the hands of Midland. Rochester had been rated as one of the strongest contenders for the class A laurels, now held by Ambridge. Another victim of an upset was New Brighton, which bowed to Grove City, 13-6.

East McKeesport, a class B school, which the previous weekend surprised the scholastic realm by polishing off Norwin in an impressive manner, itself was a victim of a reversal of form and bowed to Elizabeth, a class B rival, 27-0.

Oliver High School, which succeeded in holding Turtle Creek Union to a 2-0 score two weeks ago, was slaughtered, 32-0, by Carrick in one of the upsets which marked the City League struggles on Friday.

SPORT VIGNETTES

Football is going back to the people. . . . No better example could have been given than those three field goal tries in the Pitt-W. & J. game at the Stadium last Saturday. . . . Now all the colleges have to do is to join the Pros in putting the goal posts back on the goal line. . . . Then we'll have an added threat in the game again. . . . The field goal tries and fakes. . . . The fakes consisting of runs with the ball and forward passes from the kicking position. . . . And what would be wrong with the spectacle of dashes from kick formation in scrimmage, with a protecting wall of interference for the runner? . . . Looking back, it does seem that the games were more spectacular in the days before they got to tinkering around too much with the rules and the teams weren't too proud to try for a goal from the field.

If a bad start presages a good fiinish, Pitt ought to be in for one of its greatest seasons . . . The Panthers struck a new high for poor starts against W. & J. last Saturday, when they had to kick a field goal to get into the running with only a little more than three minutes of playing time remaining, the lone touchdown following a few minutes later . . . If there isn't a decided rebound to an effective display against West Virginia at Morgantown next Saturday, then the graphs of the game are all wrong.

There are those who are inclined to excuse Pitt's failure to click in better fashion against W. & J. on the ground that the latter team had more time to get ready and wrapped up its entire season in this battle, while Pitt had to take the game in stride . . . In other words, that the Pitt game meant everything to W. & J. and it shot the works . . . Well, suppose Pitt had been beaten in the opener? . . . That would have been the virtual end of Pitt's season, too . . . Or maybe I'm wrong.

There can be no doubt of the fact that, aside from its fighting stand, its clever masking of the ball carrier had most to do with Wash-Jeff's fine showing . . . Its reverses and fakes had Pitt guessing all afternoon, and the home team consistently found itself in the unhappy extremity of having chased and brought to earth the wrong man . . . This was especially true when Bill King was playing fullback and was spinning through the line after having seemingly handed the ball to one of his crossing halfbacks . . . The uniforms worn by the visitors blend in color with the ball to aid in this deception . . . One newspaper photographer on the sidelines said he hadn't been able to follow the ball any time W. & J. handled it in scrimmage . . . So you can imagine the unfortunate lot of the defending team.—HARRY KECK.

W. & J. PRAISED BY HARPSTER

By Howard Harpster

Carnegie Tech Football Coach; All-America Quarterback, 1928.

Coach Hank Day's fighting W. & J. football team made a great hit with the spectators at the Stadium Saturday when it turned what was generally conceded as an easy victory for Pitt into one of the hardest - fought games seen here for a long time. Not only did the Presidents keep the Panthers from seriously threatening to score for more than 50 minutes of the game, but they also took the play away from their favored opponents by advancing the ball deep in the Pitt territory on several occasions. Twice the Day-coached team had first downs inside the Panther 10-yard line, but in each case the necessary punch was lacking, and the scoring chances ended with missed placement kicks.

Mr. Harpster

With less than four minutes of the final quarter remaining, the Pitt team completed its only pass of the game and advanced the ball from the 40 to the 10-yard line. Fighting desperately, the boys in the Red and Black held the Pitt backs for no gain on three running plays, and then, with fourth down and goal to gain, Weinstock sent a perfect placement kick over the bar, and the game was in. The Presidents made one last gesture after receiving the following kickoff and advanced the ball past midfield. An intercepted pass ended the threat.

Pitt then carried the ball to the W. & J. 40-yard line, and many spectators were leaving their seats as the Panthers lined up for what likely would have been the last play had it not been for a fine running halfback named O'Dell. The Pitt team lined up in the double wing back formation, and O'Dell, receiving the ball from the fullback, cut inside of tackle, reversed his field and ran 40 yards for the only touchdown of the game. It was a beautiful piece of work, aided somewhat by timely blocking.

There was many exciting moments during the game, and one especially startling play was a W. & J. punt which traveled out of bounds on the Pitt one-foot line. As Hogan went back near the end zone to kick out of danger, I heard Ted Husing, who was broadcasting the game from near my seat in the press box, tell the faraway listeners that "This is the boy who took the heart out of Notre Dame last fall when he kicked from the one-yard line to the Notre Dame 20." As Husing finished saying this, Hogan received the pass from center and sent a spiral punt over the safety man's head which didn't stop rolling until it came to the W. & J. 21-yard line, 89 yards away.

Penthouse

By ARTHUR SOMERS ROCHE

I was going to do for fear you'd not let me. I thought you thought enough of me to refuse to let me take a chance of getting hurt. And with all of Crelliman's men ready to do things to me, according to your own story. I took the chance of going out so that I could keep Murtoch in play.

"And what do I get for it? I get treated like a stepchild. I'm told to take the air. And that's how you feel about me, is it?"

Durant rose to his feet. Hardly knowing what he did, his arms went about her and his lips met hers. For a moment the embrace and the caress lasted. Then, as suddenly as he had seized her, he released her and stepped back from her.

"I—I'm sorry. I didn't mean to do that," he stammered. "I'm awfully sorry."

Gazotti Calls

The lips that a moment ago had been warm and delicious curled in a smile. "Is that so? Do you know, I'm awfully glad."

She sat down on the couch beside him and her big black eyes were filled with dancing imps. She sighed with mock distress.

"Now I've got to go in there and unpack that darned old bag all over again," she said. "Unless that kiss didn't mean anything."

"It meant that I've been a stupid fool," he told her.

"Is that all it meant?" Her voice was quizzical.

He colored again. She couldn't be lovelier, and he hadn't known that any woman's lips save Sue's could thrill him as had hers. He leaned toward her. Why not take the gifts the gods provided? She swayed toward him and in another moment the kiss of a moment ago would have been repeated, had the telephone not rung sharply.

He picked up the receiver and heard Gazotti.

"Hello, Mr. Durant!" The gangster's voice was shrill with merriment. "The boys didn't bump you off at my orders, did they?"

"Tony, I'm a damn fool," said Durant.

"Let somebody else say that and I'll chop them down," said Gazotti. "You're high-strung, that's all. I don't blame you a bit. Only, I'd like it better if I could just think that you thought I was on the square with you. But hell, that ain't so tough a load you thinking not so much of me. But I hate to think you'd feel that Gertie gal wasn't on the up and up. Maybe she wasn't. If I find out she wasn't"—his voice was deadly—"she'll never worry again whether her brassiere fits or not."

"She's here," said Durant. "She explained it to me. She went down to keep Murtoch busy."

"And you kissed and made up?" chuckled Gazotti.

Durant glanced at Gertie; he wondered if she could hear Gazotti's words. He ceased to wonder. Her giggle told him that she had heard.

A Problem

"Always romantic, aren't you, Tony? That hot Italian blood of yours! It must be great to live in a dream of love."

Gazotti's reedy tenor was higher than ever. "I got a hunch there may be a touch of romance in you somewhere. You don't look like no marble statue to me. Maybe Gertie will bring you to life."

"I hear they're letting out sewer contracts in Brooklyn," said Durant. "You could sell your mind at a nice profit, Tony."

Public Enemy No. 1 hit the top note of his tenor laugh. "The way you dish it out to me! But you always give me a laugh. Now I'm going to hand you something that maybe won't be so funny. Jim Crelliman had a guest at his penthouse tonight, Miss Leonard. Can you figure that one?"

"I've been trying to figure it since I saw her go in there two hours ago," said Durant.

"Hears all, sees all, knows all," said Tony. "If I were you, I'd tell her that Crelliman isn't any girl's tin soldier. She could cut her pretty fingers on that one. Well, pleasant dreams."

"The same to you, Tony," said Durant. He hung up the receiver and faced the girl.

"You're swell," she said. "You'll apologize to a man like Tony when you find out you're wrong, won't you? What was your row with him? I heard what he said, but I didn't get the point."

"Oh, I thought he'd been double-crossing me. You know, seeing you with Murtoch——"

"Forget it," she said. "We don't want to waste any more time in talk, do we?"

She swayed toward him and her arms reached out. He took both her wrists in his hands and placed them gently but firmly in her lap.

"We'd better talk. Speech may be only silver but silence may be dynamite."

"I'd like to explode," she said. "What's the matter with me? Don't you think I'm nice?"

"I don't think it; I know it," he told her. "And that's why I think you rate better than—well, a night or so."

She smiled, but only with her lips; her eyes were grave in their searching regard of him. "I think so myself. I had an idea it might run into a week or two."

"You rate better than that," said Durant.

Gangster's Girl

Now her eyes smiled. "Don't overwhelm with flattery, Mr. Durant," she laughed. "But just the same—I like to hear it. What do you think I rate?"

"Marriage," said Durant.

"You're asking me?"

He shook his head. "I'm telling you what you rate."

"Then what makes you place me at that rating? I'm a gangster's girl, tapping in the floor show of a night club. The kind of girl that takes up with big or little shots, depending on her luck. Tony Gazotti dates me up with you, and don't I run away from it? I mean, am I the shy young violet that has to be chaperoned? Yes, I am! I come right to your apartment. Of course you didn't mean I'd rate marriage from a man like you; I mean, a gentleman."

"That's exactly what I meant," replied Durant. "You've been fooling a lot of people for a long time, haven't you, Gertie? Tough and hard and rough and ready. That's you, isn't it? Why, when you had a hundred thousand dollars, did you give it back when the man who gave it to you needed it? That isn't tough; that isn't rough. I should think you'd be ashamed of a weakness like that."

Her face was white, making her eyes seem larger than ever. "Who spilled that?"

"Tony," he replied, "to prove what a great girl you were."

"Do you suppose Tony knows why I gave it back?" she asked.

He shook his head. "Tony wouldn't be able to think that far. Of course he doesn't."

"But a smart man, a man who could think that far, a man like you, for instance, would be able to guess why I did it?"

STUYVESANT REFUSING TO SURRENDER

New Amsterdam was a flourishing settlement on Manhattan Island, founded by the Dutch in 1621. In 1664 a British force arrived and claimed the city as English property given by royal charter to the Duke of York. Peter Stuyvesant, the Dutch governor, first resisted, but finally — finding the people favoring the change — surrendered. The city was named New York by the British. (U. S. History)

THE HORSE OF TROY

PISISTRATUS' RETURN

Pisistratus, a near relative of the great lawgiver Solon (639-59 B. C.), headed a new party and seized Solon's power over Athens (560 B. C.). Forced out twice by other political parties he finally established a firm rule, beneficial to the people. He fostered art and literature, also collected Homer's poems preserved as "Iliad and Odyssey," the only presentation of the "Homeric Age" (1000?-750 B. C.) the transition period between the vanishing Aegean and rising Greek culture. One famous episode of Homer's narration is the capture of Troy by the ruse of the "Wooden Horse." (World History.)

THE SEASONS (Gen. Science)

The earth, like other planets, moves around the sun in an ellipse with the sun at one focus (Keppler's 1st law). As the earth's axis makes eca. 23½° angle with the perpendicular to the plane of its orbit (ecliptic), the sun rays hit vertically the points on earth 23½° north of the equator on June 21 (A), marking the beginning of summer on the northern hemisphere (and of winter on the southern). According to the obliquity of the sun rays the other seasons start at B, C and D. (Nassau: Pract. Astronomy.)

OXYGEN BREATHING APPARATUS (Chemistry)

It is indispensable for work in presence of poisonous gases (as for firemen, mine rescue crews, etc.) and in fighting pneumonia and other diseases when there are symptoms that the blood lacks oxygen.

Above right: Diagram of breathing apparatus. Oxygen is released from the cylinder by a reducing valve through the injector. The outrushing oxygen sucks the used air from the helmet through the exhalation tube and carries it into the regenator which retains moisture and carbon dioxide. The purified mixture enters—through the breathing bag, cooler and inhalation tube—the helmet for use.

BUSINESS TRENDS OF 1932 AND 1933 ENDING AUGUST 31

This chart shows the fluctuations of the most important factors and indicators of economics, industry, commerce, finance, agriculture, freight car loading, etc. Note their similar trends, proving their dependency on each other. PREHEATING AND SUPER-CHARGING

Preheating the intake manifold by exhaust gases (above) improves vaporization of the fuel. Leading air under pressure through the carburetor into the motor is supercharging (right). It increases the fuel intake and power. The rotating compressor may be turbine-driven, using the exhaust gases as motive power. (Moyer: Gasoline Automobile.)

BLACK SCURF

Its cause, the fungus, Rhizoctonia solani, attacks all underground parts of the plant. Above: How an injured tuber looks. Prevention: Disinfection of seed by corrosive sublimate.

LATE BLIGHT

Blight is the most destructive potato foliage — and tuber-disease caused by the fungus, Phytophthora infestans. Above: Tubers affected by it. Control: Spraying with Bordeaux (three to six times). (Stuart: The Potato).

SCAB

The parasite causing this disease is the organism Actinomyces scabies which attacks the tuber as shown above. Prevention: Immerse tuber to be planted into corrosive sublimate or formalin solution.

STREAK

It is believed to be of bacterial origin though the germ has not been found. It attacks leaves and reduces the potato yield. Control: Remove affected plants, use seed from uninfested soil. (Stuart: The Potato.)

Junior Patrol Mail Box

Are you helping your father and mother all you should, fellows?

Fine new laws which the government has passed don't allow people to employ children less than 16 years old in factories or shops any more, and now, in many sections of the country, there are thousands of kids who are going to school and playing these days instead of working hard all day.

They are getting their chance to have an education. They can enjoy what every fellow and girl ought to have—plenty of fresh air and sunshine, rest and play and activity.

But that doesn't mean that you shouldn't help around the house. Running errands is good exercise and gives you the fun of responsibility. Helping your mother washing and drying the dishes gives her a big lift and doesn't take much of your time.

Now is the time of year to clean up the yard, ready for winter. Soon the golden leaves will fall from the trees and scatter on the walks and lawn. They should be raked neatly together and either burned or buried for fertilizer to make new ground ready for the next spring. There's a job for every Junior Patrol member.

It takes more skill than you would think at first. Fall winds are frisky, and if you don't watch out they will blow your little pile of leaves every which way! Pack the gathered leaves in baskets or weight them down with a board or two so you won't have your work to do over again.

And besides, did you ever notice how good dinner and lunch tastes after you have done a little work?

There is a dandy magazine article in one of the big magazines this week. It tells just how little fellows, who aren't so big and strong as some of their friends, can learn to kick a football just as good as a big man with strong muscles.

Skill does it, and practice. That's a good thing to remember about anything you do fellows. Skill makes it easier and practice makes you do it better. Even if you are dusting off your father's automobile you can practice your tennis stroke. The long, vigorous swing of the arm is just the stroke a champion uses to hit a forehand drive!

JUNIOR PATROL PLEDGE

I promise to help children less fortunate than I am.
I promise to do my best to make my parents proud of me.
I promise to watch carefully when crossing streets and to aid other children in keeping out of danger.
I promise to study hard and do errands willingly.
I promise to be a 100% Junior Patrol member.

An Old Gag Will Fool the Young

The kids kept tabs on their daddies harvesting and made them empty their whiskers in the community silo.

It was all for the good of the nation. But think of the splendid opportunity a spoiled Russian child has when he can send his old man to Siberian salt cellars for palming a bale of hay or eating a specked apple out of season.

There is too much of this juvenile snooping anyway. All children are natural detectives. We went walking with little Altoona yesterday. When we got home, she said, "Mamma, a lady spoke to popper in the park."

We tried to explain the lady spoke first and said Altoona was a lovely child and why did we name her after a city when the suburbs were so beautiful. We agreed with the lady on everything she said and also some things we thought of ourselves.

We forget that little jugs have big ears and that sharper than the serpent's tooth is the bright child. Certainly, we answered her when she spoke about the weather. After this, we stroll with the baby. He is four months old and his mumbles do not yet synchronize with authentic data and information.

That's why we do not subscribe to the espionage system in the vicinity of the home hearth. We feel certain that 36 states will never vote for repeal of this sober second thought. If the Soviet gives police whistles to the children of Russia it is going to build up a network of shrill chirping and twittering.

It's just too bad if you cannot spank your own child without having him write a letter to Congress. The Soviet should postpone this five-year plan and wait until the children are 11 or 12. By that time they will be old enough to help their daddies in the fields instead of perching on the barn roof with a spy glass.

The Russian kids are supposed to see that their poppers split the crops evenly with the government. It is a dumb father who cannot outsmart a wise child. All you have to do is to weigh the young overseer with the government's half while he is watching to see the smoke come out of your ears.

The Cost of Hard Water

It Is Unfair to Make the Taxpayers Pay For the Damage Done to the River by Coal Companies

Scientists at the Mellon Institute of Industrial Research are reported to have discovered a new chemical compound which, when used in laundering, dissolves lime soaps by converting them into sodium soaps—and this without injury to fabrics or colors. They have baptized the process by the name of "calgonizing."

What this means is that the new substance removes the tiny particles of lime and magnesium which embed themselves in clothing that is washed with our hard water and make it feel harsh to the touch—and which also damage the material.

But a much more satisfactory solution of the difficulty, of course, would be to have the water come from the faucet sufficiently soft to render the use of chemicals unnecessary.

Unfortunately the cost of softening the water would be heavy, and the city administration is unwilling to impose this new burden on the taxpayers.

The cost of neutralizing the free sulphuric acid in the water is in itself becoming greater and greater—the city was using soda ash for the purpose at the rate of more than a thousand dollars' worth a day in the early part of last month—and to remove the hardness as well as to neutralize the free acid would be much more expensive. The city of Columbus, O., with a population less than half of that of Pittsburgh, spent more than $100,000 last year to soften its water—and after it was softened it had to be recarbonated to make it potable.

Steel mills use muriatic acid in some of their processes, and let the used acid drain into the river; but the damage done to Pittsburgh's water by the mills is negligible. The chief culprits are the coal operators, and it is a fair question if they, rather than the taxpayers of Pittsburgh, should not be required to pay for the damage they are doing.

The wartime demand for coal led to the opening of many new mines. In the last five years one-fourth of the bituminous mines in Pennsylvania have been permanently abandoned and many of the others allowed to fill with water.

Sulphuric acid is draining from the mines into the Allegheny River, particularly from the Kiskiminetas and its tributaries, in larger and larger amounts, and has the officials of Pittsburgh's Bureau of Water frankly worried.

The sulphuric acid coming in contact with the limestone in the beds of the streams, and the free carbonic acid liberated by the action of sulphuric acid on limestone, introduce into the water calcium sulphate, magnesium sulphate, magnesium carbonate and calcium carbonate, and it is these compounds that make the water hard. There is also manganese in the water from the mines, and it is the manganese that causes the brown spots often seen on clothing when it comes from the laundry. Less than one part of manganese in a million parts of water is sufficient to stain clothing.

Suspicious of the effect that the drinking of acid water might have on the health of the people, the officials of the Bureau of Water are using soda ash in whatever amounts are required to make the water alkaline; but they say they cannot soften the water without going to an expense six times as great as the cost of combatting acidity.

The consequence is that filtered water during the last year has reached a hardness as great as 200 parts per million—that is, has had the hardness of 1,000,000 pounds of water in which 200 pounds of lime have been dissolved.

Water of such hardness not only makes laundering difficult, but causes "China scale" to form in boilers, unsightly scums in wash bowls and bathtubs, and incrustations in tea kettles and pipes through which hot water runs, interfering with the heating of water. Hard water clogs the pores of the skin, prevents thorough cleansing, and is responsible for the chapped hands with which so many Pittsburghers are afflicted.

The potability of the water is not in question. Water is not unfit to drink because it is hard. In fact, some kinds of hard water are beneficial from the standpoint of health.

The best racehorses come from the blue grass region of Kentucky, which is reputed to have the hardest water in the world. And indeed Pittsburgh horses are supposed by some persons to be unusually strong and vigorous because of the hardness of our water. A United States Army officer came here several years ago to inquire about it.

There is a belief in some quarters that the river water is poisonous because when the acidity is high fish cannot live in it. C. F. Drake, of the Bureau of Water, who has charge of the filtration plant at Aspinwall, has demonstrated, however, that the fish are not poisoned, in the ordinary use of the word, but are killed by the excess carbonic acid gas that is formed in the water by the action of the sulphuric acid on limestone. Their gills, not designed to assimilate so much carbonic acid gas, suffer a physiological breakdown. This can be demonstrated in an aquarium by the use of a siphon of soda water. Yet human beings can drink soda water and thrive on it.

It is the economic loss that is giving cause for concern.

The situation has become so serious that Dr. W. W. McFarland, director of the Department of Health, has appointed a committee to investigate it and has suggested that "at some future time the city may wish to secure its supply of water for domestic use from some source other than that of the rivers."

Unfortunately there seems to be only one other possible source of Supply—Lake Erie—and as it lies at an altitude 150 feet below that of Pittsburgh the cost of pumping water from there probably would be prohibitive.

Unless the taxpayers elect to bear themselves the expense of softening the water, the only feasible plan for obtaining complete relief is to make the coal companies which are responsible foot the bill.

In the meantime there is hope of partial relief in the flood control project now being considered by the National Recovery Administration; for the release of impounded flood water from the proposed storage reservoirs in time of drought and low water would reduce the acidity and the hardness.

Einstein, Ex-Pacifist

"Circumstances Alter Cases."

Prof. Einstein, lifelong pacifist, shocks other pacifists by suddenly advising two conscientious objectors in Belgium to join the Belgian army because Hitler menaces the safety of their country.

This is a complete reversal of the professor's position.

Where he formerly preached absolute non-resistance he now advocates military preparedness as frankly as any admiral or general.

His own life has been threatened by the Nazis, his co-religionists in Germany are being persecuted by them, the peace of Europe and the rights of small nations are endangered by them.

Hence the change in the Einstein views.

Shocking as pacifists will find it, however, the professor's candid statement will raise him in the estimation of most people as a man who is honest enough to admit that he has been mistaken.

That is a rare quality.

It also reveals him as possessing a fund of hard common sense. In a philosopher that is a miracle.

The Shout Heard Round the World

(Copyright, 1933.)

Rear Admiral Richard H. Leigh, chairman of the Navy General Board, has gone to Europe to serve as naval adviser to the American diplomatic representative at the Disarmament Conference.

Declaring as a policy that the American people "want a Navy strong enough to insure security," Admiral Leigh said: "I regard as settled the question of the British suggestions, rejected by Washington, that work on the four new 10,000-ton cruisers be halted."

Those are words for the diplomatists to heed and to be guided by.

The American people do not intend that ever again shall any foreign Power or group of Powers tell Uncle Sam what kind of Navy he may have.

John McCormack, Ireland's Sweetest Singer—How He Acquired His Voice—Col. Jacob Ruppert, Byrd's Financial Backer

By EDWIN C. HILL

JOHN M'CORMACK, sweetest singer Ireland has produced in lo, these many centuries, poured out his soul in the "Ave Maria" at his daughter's wedding in England, while hundreds sat entranced at the magic melody of his golden tones. No living man, somehow, so symbolizes Ireland as the famous troubadour she produced to give so much pleasure to other lands and other peoples.

Mystery, melody, beauty, romance, haunting sadness clothe forever the name of Ireland! For 2,000 years she has plucked at the heartstrings of mankind. The echoes of her past tremble in memory like the reverberations of tolling bells; the battle cries of her kings, the chanting of her widowed women, the laughter of her girls—bitter grief and rollicking gayety, and always the minor strain of her aspirations and her struggles, her partings and her farewells.

What magic there is in the old names of the Irish countryside—Kilkenny and Kildare, Tyrone and Tipperary, County Down and County Clare, the Lakes of Killarney and the River Shannon and Athlone, with a name like a trumpet call. Ireland and her people are like no land or no people elsewhere on this earth. A land whose history throbs in her songs—"The Wearing of the Green," "The Irish Immigrant," "Kathleen Mavourneen"—the chanting of struggle, the wailing of sorrow, the beating of weary wings—the songs of the Emerald Isle. And of all her minstrels and troubadours, never a one has sung them with the power and sincerity of John McCormack.

Let me try to picture him for you, this man of Athlone. He is a tall man and broad; robust as a blacksmith. Thick black hair crowns his wide-browed head. Brown eyes, almost black, sparkle under heavy, black brows. His nose is short and sturdy above sensitive lips curling in gayety or drooping in wistfulness. Years have not stolen his rollicking boyishness.

His Voice a Gift From the Gods

HE is a playboy of the western world, but when it comes to the business of singing he is another man, putting into his art flawless diction and every ounce of his marvelous training, his boundless energy, his unfailing intelligence and his ringing sincerity. Gay, wistful, impassioned or religious, always the melodious interpreter of the soul of Ireland; swept along through his whole career by the inescapable hand of destiny.

There is only one way to account for him—a gift from the old gods, a secret they whispered to my good friend, William J. Henderson, dean of American music critics. And this is the way of it:

It seems that the Greek god, Pan, who had no business in Ireland at all, had gone there to play in the valleys on those little pipes of his which he ran up and down his mouth making a scale of notes. And whenever Pan played on those little pipes, rabbits turned somersaults and goats stood upon their hind legs, and all nature was filled with gay intoxication. All of which had no business in Ireland at all, at all.

So up rose Angus Oge, the Irish god, and said, "What is this Greek wastrel doing here, anyhow?" And Angus Oge went down through the valleys, with all the birds singing and all the streams sparkling and all the clouds going white and all the world going pure and sweet and merry. And thus Angus Oge went down through the valleys where Pan was playing on the little pipes—and Pan dropped his little pipes and took to his heels.

And Angus Oge picked up the pipes and said, "What will I be doing with these, at all?" And then he said, "I'll put them in the throat of a good man." And so he went to the cradle where the little boy, John McCormack, lay asleep, and he put the pipes of Pan in the little boy's throat.

And ever since then they have been singing to you and me, and making the world glad and merry.

Byrd Gets Aid From Col. Ruppert

Brewing is Col. Ruppert's business. Baseball and the ownership of his celebrated New York Yankees, including title to the one and only Babe Ruth, is the colonel's relaxation from business and the management of an earned fortune which makes him as solvent as a Mellon, a Ford or a Rockefeller.

He springs from what one might term the old-time aristocracy of the brewing business—from an honest German strain who took honest pride in brewing pure beer and in dealing fairly and liberally with working men. Young Jacob learned the trade from his father, passing through all the grades from day laborer to the front office. When the elder Ruppert passed along, the young man's common sense and business acumen greatly increased the fortune his father founded.

His vast parked estate at Garrison, N. Y., faces West Point across the Hudson. There he indulges his love for animals, this warm-hearted gentleman who has been known to stop in the street and use his own handkerchief to bandage the leg of an injured dog, and to belabor with his cane a truck driver who had been cruel to a horse. Thirty mischievous monkeys frisk upon Col. Ruppert's estate, and night brings from trees and fields the cries of the jungle.

He is 66 now, gray, of course, with a stubby, gray mustache and a broad, pleasant face. A vigorous man, full of the zest of life. Always abstemious, Col. Ruppert never touched a drop of alcohol until beer was free and legal once again—far more law-abiding than many statesmen who drank one way and voted another.

He owns more real estate in New York than anybody except the Astors. He collects Chinese jade and Newfoundland dogs. He breeds aristocratic Holstein cows and pays special attention to eight enormous, but beautiful, brewery horses of the old days.

At present, he is wondering how much longer his star, the rugged workman Babe Ruth, can defy Father Time.

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Heart-Snatchers

The cruelest thing that you can say to a woman is "You must have been a beauty, in your DAY!"

* * *

Try this on your worst enemy—and watch her shrivel! But if you want to compliment a friend, it would be more Christian and human to ask her what she uses on her finger-nails to make them so attractive and shiny.

* * *

Never before was YOUTH so treasured, so sought after and so desperately clutched at by both men and women, as it is today. And never was youth so fleeting!

In the gay and glamorous nineties, Rudyard Kipling rhythmically voiced the 17-year-old flapper's jealousy of the fascinating woman of 47. But that was before the glorification of YOUTH, when men sought the riper and more sophisticated charmer. NOW, a woman feels that she has one foot in the grave if she is tottering toward 27. And 30 is the dead-line!

This is because vamping the male has become the one passionate obsession of the average woman's life. And because every woman yearns to be a heart-snatcher and a Ninon de L'Enclos!

There have always been vamps and man-charmers, of course—but they were the exception, not the rule. Love and admiration have always been necessary to a woman's happiness. But this passion for conquest was not woman's sole object in life. She wasn't collecting hearts and scalps as a life work.

No woman is ever really oriented or happy until her flirting and vamping days are over, and she is ready and content to settle down to her husband, her job or her profession, and just take men casually. It's a dog's life, having to doll up like a chicken, paint up like a fire-alarm and go toddling around a ballroom in the arms of a young gigolo. Touching up the gray hairs, watching the crows-feet come one by one and starving down the hips, when you're longing for a full meal, with steak and baked potatoes, must be hard on the nerves!

It must be simply heartbreaking to see the light of interest gradually die out of men's eyes, and to watch their eagerness simmer down into careless respect, no matter HOW much mascara you have on your eyelids or WHAT new shade you have just made your hair!

It's all so futile and such a waste of life! Such a waste of golden years! And, whether you're married or single, widowed or divorced, what in the world do you get OUT of it? Nothing but a few synthetic thrills and a painful everlasting inferiority complex!

* * *

Personally, I'd rather do a Fanny Ward or a Marie Dressler and shout my age from the housetops, when my vamping days are over—and tack on a few years, just for good measure and to make a "good story."

* * *

It's a wise woman who knows when it's time to retire!

LENOX DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

LENOX, Mass., Oct. 2.—The Berkshires in russet robe are even lovelier than when I saw them 15 years ago with Ray Long when they were verdant and spangled with gladiolus. In the fall a misty helitrope hazes the hills. A crisp, heady chill suggests waffles, sausage, tankards of fresh cider!

The imprint of early Shaker sobriety remains. Pittsfield, heart of the vast vacational area, has that straight-laced look of immaculate sobriety so typically New England. Instead of youngsters whooping it up with gin, they turn to tennis, golf, hiking. It's all bees, birds and wild-flowers.

Little wonder Longfellow found inspiration here for his "The Old Clock on the Stairs." Pittsfield has that sort of gaunt, rhythmic tick. Not even Lake Como is a more silvery paradise for moonlight careers. Six lakes and ponds are in and about this city. Marriage license bureaus are busy.

The ornithological urge is expressed by more than 200 birds that have been identified at the bird and wild flower sanctuary at Lenox. Among them the white-throated sparrow, red-winged black-bird, ruby-throated humming bird, pine warbler, bobolink and Maud Adams' favorite, the snow bunting.

Lenox is a cluster of richly kept estates, peopled chiefly by Bostonians and New Yorkers who come in mid-August, remain until opera season and often until after Thanksgiving. Incidentally and appropriately, the finest Thanksgiving spreads in America are held at these enormous arcadias where, to the outlander, only the lodge-keeper's chalets are visible. That sort!

* * *

In the 50's Nathaniel Hawthorne lived in a lonely Lenox gulley in what he described as "the ugliest little old red house you ever saw." The site now bears a marker. Hawthorne's pen dripped dactyls and sentimental essays about mistrals rolling up the slopes and of Indian summer with regimented corn-fields rustling toward the sunset. Of tablelands with lakes below lazily opening blue eyes!

Great Barrington, Vt., second oldest town in the Berkshires, welcomes with shaded streets of elm and copper beeches. It is still current with ancient piety. There is a coziness, and Browning Society culture into which commerce makes little inroads. The oldest house, gallantly preserved, was the home of the poet Bryant. An old print of him is a double for Yorke, of Yorke and King.

Stockbridge, Mass., perhaps attains greatest cultural developments in the section. The late Frederick Crowninshield, distinguished artist, lived here. And the estate of Daniel Chester French, noted sculptor, is here. Painters at easels in the open everywhere. Plump ladies, in split skirts, ride bicycles.

Poughkeepsie is noted chiefly for Vassar College, although a lively city. One comes plump on Vassar in a low-lying meadow at the foot of a sort of back street. There is no surface show, rather the air of suburban acadame. I have high regard for Vassar. A very lovely girl next door in our town, Adele Henking, went there shyly in pig-tails and came back so magnificently plushed I could only find courage to peep at her through a knothole in our backyard fence.

At Peekskill we dropped in at Anna Held's daughter's farm for a memorable dinner. The place is named for the distinguished actress, who could not make her eyes behave. The house is a rambling colonial, of yolk yellow with bright turquoise shutters, cunningly bowered with clusters of windgrieved poplars and firs. In the rear, a network of toy Japanesey bridges over a well filled duck pond. Hard by, a thatched, moss-spotted well with oaken bucket.

* * *

Anna Held, Jr., in private Mrs. Martensen, has her mother's lustrous brown eyes but otherwise suggests a plump and perky version of Irene Bordoni. She moves from table to table followed by her Peke and setter, and gives impression she is having a rather grand time. There are chintz bedecked rooms for 18 guests, all with crackling hearths and a sheaf of well selected books. Holliday's "Walking Stick Papers," for instance.

* * *

Watching Miss Held's ducklets in the moonlight was a lark. I never knew about that flirty wiggle as they slip into the water just before gliding off. As much as to say: "The back of my hand to you, sir!"

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

A gold brick was a beautiful thing. We saw them often in the bad old days of the wild and woolly west.

It was practically impossible for a tenderfoot to tell a gold brick from the real article. There was the same, small, compact, hand-filling chunk of heavy metal; the same alluring gleam.

"Just out of the smelters," the con man would murmur confidentially, releasing the brick from its numerous wrappings. Big-eyed, the tenderfoot would watch the mysterious proceedings — listen eagerly to the fascinating tale of how the glittering treasure was released from the stubborn ore, refined into this precious package. Presently he would depart in triumph, cuddling in his ecstatic fingers the magic cube for which he had exchanged his hard-earned cash.

But of course he didn't cuddle it long! For beneath its delightful dazzle, the gold brick was just common lead. And gilded lead is a very unsatisfactory substitute for hard cash.

We laugh now when we think of the stupidity of the gullible tenderfoot. Yet handing ourselves gold bricks is still our favorite indoor sport!

I know a man who's a coward. Nothing could tempt him to confess that he is a coward, for he is both proud and ambitious. He wants to go far in life, and he knows that cowardice is a dreadful handicap. Men would despise him if he admitted that he is a coward. He would despise himself!

So what does he do to hide from the world, and even from himself, the shameful fact that he is a coward?

He hands himself a gold brick! He tells himself that he is "prudent."

Every day, life sends that man splendid challenges; offers him splendid adventures. But of course there is an element of danger in these challenges and adventures. They're bound to bring hardships. And suppose he failed? Suppose people laughed at him, blamed him? His craven soul quails before those possibilities.

But he won't face the fact that he is quailing. Instead he tells himself that it is wiser to "think things over"—to "look before you leap." He has said these things for so long, and so vehemently, that he really believes they are the truth. He believes in them as sincerely as the poor tenderfoot believed in his gold brick. He does not see, any more than the tenderfoot could see, the baseness beneath the gilding.

Sometimes he wonders what's the matter with his life. He envies other men their more brilliant careers. Why can't he ever get ahead?

The answer is—HE'S HANDING HIMSELF A GOLD BRICK.

HE'S FALLING FOR HIS OWN CON GAME: EXCHANGING HIS BIRTHRIGHT AS A MAN FOR A COWARD'S GILDED ALIBI.

As long as he continues to do it, his life will be a failure—and he'll never know why.

I know a woman who is spoiling her own and her family's life by her ruthless selfishness. She doesn't call it selfishness of course, and she'd be furious if anyone else did. She calls it "love"—and in the name of love she does the most abominable things to her husband and children. She meddles, nags, whines, loafs, imposes, flies into tantrums, demands constant attention.

Yet, in spite of her ceaseless efforts, she is never happy. She is neither loved nor respected, as other mothers are. To the contrary, her children try in every way to evade her, and her husband openly despises her.

She wonders why. She is honest in her wonder. She sincerely believes that she is a Wonderful Mother, tragically unappreciated and mistreated. She's dreadfully sorry for herself, and unhappy.

And, of course, she'll continue to be, as long as she continues to hand herself a gold brick.

EACH TIME SHE EXCUSES HERSELF, SHE IS CHEATING HERSELF.

EACH TIME SHE REFUSES TO FACE THE TRUTH, SHE IS PUTTING HERSELF DEEPER INTO THE HOLE.

Don't hand yourself a gold brick! If things aren't breaking right for you, you can be sure there is something wrong IN you. Face what's wrong. Cowardice, selfishness, laziness, greediness, conceit, dishonesty—whatever it is, face it, in all its shamefulness. It will be hard to take; but it won't, in the long run, be as hard to take as the double-crossing you are handing yourself now. So—

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Recently you saw some old friends, and you were surprised and disappointed, much as you had looked forward to the meeting.

Aged prematurely, not particular about personal appearance as in days of yore, they did not seem like the same persons you knew in youth.

They also had developed certain manners that displeased you. The characteristics that attracted you in bygone years seemed to have disappeared.

Once they were light-hearted and companionable, but now they seemed irritable and hard to please.

Is it possible that, because of similar changes, you are far less attractive than you were once to these friends?

You do not notice your own unpleasant traits, but your old friends do.

In reaching mature age you have probably lost much of the charm you once possessed.

This may be the reason that some old friends seem to be less friendly than formerly—because you have allowed the dust of the years to hide your former charm.

Perhaps you and they both have been disappointed.

It is not too late to take stock and improve yourself, is it?
